

St. John's Holds Closing School Program Friday

Exercises Are Very Largely Attended - Mary Kratochvil and Mary Helen Zimmerer Orators

Last evening the closing exercises of the St. John's parochial school was held at the Knights of Columbus hall with a very large audience in attendance to enjoy the fine program.

The event was also the graduation of the class of seventeen young men and women from the eighth grade, a ceremony that marked the attainment of eight faithful years of study, in this old and long established church school, one of the oldest in the state.

The class valedictorian was Mary Helen Zimmerer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. I. Zimmerer, while the salutatorian was Mary Kratochvil, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kratochvil, the two young ladies having been very brilliant students in their years at the school.

The members of the class comprised the following young people: John Altschaff, Terrance Bennett, James Brown, Richard Case, Thomas Doody, Matilda Glaubitz, John Hadraba, Nadine Heigl, Mary Kratochvil, William Knoflicek, Edward Kubicka, John Lorenz, William Pittman, Elizabeth Pittman, Arthur Salerno, Helen Wiater, Mary Helen Zimmerer.

The program of the evening was quite extensive and in which each of the students from the school was given a participation in the clever and entertaining playlets, recitations and sketches that had been prepared for them, all of these being well given.

The program of the evening was salutatory of Miss Kratochvil, in which she extended the welcome to the families, the faithful teachers, the religious instructors and the large group of friends of the school. It was well given and carried the sincere message of the young people about to attain the goal of their school work.

Present Play Programs

The little folks of the kindergarten department were very winsome in their recitation and which was a fine example of the training that they have received even at their tender years.

The second grade students were presented in a recitation sketch, "Doctor's Busy Day," cleverly given and much enjoyed by the audience.

The older boys of the school, comprising the graduates and seventh grade groups, gave an interesting playlet, "The Camp Up Copper's Creek," one in which they portrayed the life of the boys in their club organization and of the outing in the country camp, filled with many clever dialogues and special features that held the close attention of the audience. The members of the cast comprised: John Altschaff, Edward Gradoville, Thomas Doody, Richard Case, Edward Kubicka, James Brown, Wilbur Eaton, William Knoflicek, Arthur Salerno, John Lorenz, Terrance Bennett, William Pittman, John Hadraba, Vernon Shiffer, Leo Brink, George Altschaff, Edward and John Berlett.

One of the clever presentations of the program was the little folks of the first and second grades in their costumed sketch of "Men and Women of Tomorrow," the little folks expressing their desire of the part that they might take in life, each dressed for the role that they wished to have.

The girls of the upper classes presented a play, "Don't Tell a Single Soul," which they gave a most realistic setting and cleverly carried out their roles. The play was one of the residents of a neighborhood and the gossip that kept all astray with the affairs of their neighbors. The young ladies in their clever lines kept the audience in a constant laugh as the plot of the story was revealed. The cast comprised Charlotte Jaeger, Mary Helen Zimmerer, Elizabeth Pittman, Mary Kratochvil, Patricia Lbershal, Helen Wiater, Nadine Heigl, Dolores Glaubitz, Matilda Glaubitz.

The intermediate grades of the school from the third to the seventh were presented in the playlet, "The Luck Clover" in which the students gave a very clever presentation.

Presents Valedictory

The valedictory of the class was very ably given by Miss Zimmerer, who expressed the appreciation of the class for the care and help that had been given them in their years of work as students. The careful and earnest religious instruction that had been given by Rt. Rev. Monsignor George Agius, the love and care that the faithful Ursuline Sisters who had served as the teachers from their first steps into the school to the graduation day, was most gratefully acknowledged by the speaker, who also expressed the deep feeling of the class members to parents for their aid and making possible the advancement to the goal of commencement. Miss Zimmerer urged that the class members, now embarking on careers in other schools or activities, should carry with them always as a safeguard the religious inspiration that had been made the foundation on which their education had been based.

Monsignor Agius expressed his gratification at the fine class that had completed their work, praising them for the years they had come through in attaining this goal. He thanked the parents for their fine co-operation in making the school to function and also to the Sisters for their untiring devotion. Monsignor Agius also presented County Attorney Walter H. Smith, as the speaker of the evening, who spoke briefly.

Walter H. Smith Class Orator

Mr. Smith stated that the occasion recalled to his mind the day when he too had graduated from the eighth grade parochial school, the pride that the young boy or girl might feel in attaining that goal to which they had pointed their way for the eight years of school life. Mr. Smith urged the class to make their lives worthy of the teachings that they had received and the sacrifices that their parents had made for their education. He urged that all strive to make honesty and loyalty the cardinal principles of their life.

Mr. Smith pointed out that the students to attain their full measure of successful service must be true to themselves, to make their responsibility a matter of personal honor and pride as a part of an honorable living.

Monsignor Agius made the presentation of the awards to the students for their activities and services to the school during the eight years of service.

The closing exercises was a real tribute to the fine work that the Ursuline Sisterhood has carried out in this city in the years that they have served at the St. John's school. Their wholehearted and unselfish devotion to the school has been responsible for its success and in the success of the students they have sent forth a reward at which they are deeply gratified. Many of their students have been outstanding in higher educational institutions as the result of the fine groundwork of teaching and character that the sisters have given them in the eight years of schooling.
