GREAT NATURE LOVER

Jack Rachman, in his interesting column, "Town Tattler" in the World-Herald, tells of a former Plattsburgh man, Dr. Carl F. Schmidtman, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Schmidtman of this city: "Omahobbies: If you pass Graystone House, Loveland, and see a turkey gobbler trotting along after a man that would be Dr. Carl F. Schmidtman, whose profession is healing foot troubles but whose avocation is making friends with wild life. The gobbler, a month old, comes at the doctor's whistle. Just like a little dog. As a reward, the doctor catches bugs, grasshoppers and worms for the turkey's meat courses. No bird language is unintelligible to the doctor who converses with his feathered guests. Trees, bushes and plants also engage his attention and his friends are loaded down with specimens he has raised for them. Botanist, humanitarian, lover of nature—you should know Dr. Schmidtman."
