Funeral of Mrs. Ida Roddy. Miss Ida Davis was born at Wyoming in Otoe county September 24, 1872, and spent all her life in Otoe and Cass counties. She was united in marriage with John Roddy April 5, 1894. To this union seven children were born, two of whom, Benjamin, who died as a member of the expeditionary forces in 1918 and Bernard who passed away in 1921, preceded her in death. Those surviving are Mrs. Stuart Earles of Snohomish, Washington; Mrs. A. F. Shelley of Nebraska City, Patrick Roddy of Beatrice, Eugene and Margaret of Union. Mrs. Roddy was a lifelong devoted member of the St. Mary's Catholic church on Nebraska City. She had a large circle of friends who were endeared to her on account of her kind disposition and true Christian character. Postal to Resume Operations The Postal Telegraph and Cable company, operated throughout south-east Nebraska since 1933 by the Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph company, will resume complete operation of its facilities in this territory on August 1. New office locations for the telegraph company have been secured in Lincoln, Hastings and Beatrice—the only telephone company points in which complete telegraph and messenger organizations were maintained. Conditions over which it had no control—chiefly matters of national legislation and regulation—made it impractical for the telephone company to continue to operate the Postal Company's facilities in this territory. The Postal Telegraph company will, however, continue to make use of the telephone system for the receipt and transmission of messages to and from its offices, and telegram and messenger charges will still be billed on telephone statements, according to Area Manager George Dobson, of Plattsmouth. d&w

Bible School Lesson Study!

Sunday, July 23rd By L. Neitzel, Murdock, Neb.

"Asa: A Life of Trust" II Chron. 14:1-12. To study this man includes Chapters 15 and 16; the printed portion of Chapter 14 would give us only one side of his life—the best side. The scriptures give us a complete story of each Bible character, so in this case. There are few men of which the Bible speaks but who had some faults. Asa, the third king of the kingdom of Judah, a direct descendant of David, had much of his ancestor in his make-up; the beginning of his reign was pleasing to God; his start was such that we would look for a brilliant career, and if continued would end in a blaze of glory. His simple trust in the almighty God, when forced into a defensive war with the armies of Zerah, king of Ethiopia, with untold numbers—thousands and thousands; Asa could only muster an army of 580,000. This would be an unequal battle, and the outcome would be the defeat of Asa's host. In this extremity, Asa had a talk with God, and God heard and gave Asa a great victory. But, as stated above, Asa had pleased God, in that he had a great housecleaning, restoring the worship of Jehovah. It seems it has always been so—that there comes a slump after a great revival, a relaxation, a reaction—hence the everlasting urge of the church for a renewal, a replenishing of the fire upon the family altar—an infilling of pentecostal power. It is so human to take a rest after the battle and victory, but Asa did not stop there, he pursued when he had the enemy on the run. Had the dry element pursued the "wets" when they had gained the battle, and utterly routed the booze crowd, there would have been no "repal." So, in the Christian life, which is a warfare, from beginning to the end; the enemy will not give us rest. If there comes a lull in between open battles, then is the time to prepare for the next battle. Here Asa gives us a fine example. Where his first ten years as king were a fine example for a king to his people, the next five were better. His reformation and abolishing idolatry went so far that he put his mother, Maachah, in her place, deposed her from being queen because of her idolatrous life and bad influence on the life of the nation. Now God gave Asa another ten years of peace. What a wonderful blessing he and his kingdom enjoyed
