

Twenty-Five Year Peace Pact Claimed Pending

Philadelphia Inquirer in Story Says France, Great Britain, Germany, Italy and Poland Agree.

PHILADELPHIA, July 22 (UP)—The Philadelphia Inquirer said today in a copyrighted dispatch from Washington that it had been informed that Great Britain, France, Germany, Italy and Poland had reached a tentative agreement to preserve peace for 25 years.

An American ambassador in Europe sent a copy of the proposed agreement, expected to be ratified at a five-power conference within two weeks, to the state department, the newspaper said. A "noticeable lack of information" about the probable meeting place of the conference was reported.

Under the terms of the agreement, as reported by the Inquirer, Danzig will be returned to Germany, but would remain a free port open to Polish commerce, and the status of the Polish corridor would be modified, presumably giving Germany free access to East Prussia without impairing Poland's communications with the sea.

Other provisions, the newspaper said, would give Italy representation on the Suez Canal directorate and participating rights in the French-owned Addis Ababa-Djibouti railroad; establish a neutral zone in North Africa opposite Gibraltar to insure British sovereignty there; guarantee the present Franco-German and Franco-Italian borders permanently and those of other European countries for 25 years, and limit armies of the signatory powers to a maximum of 300,000 men each for 25 years.

The Inquirer reported indications that the agreement might have been sent to Washington by Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy at London or Ambassador William Bullitt at Paris and said that the United States, although not a party to the negotiations, had been kept informed of their progress.

The text was made available in Washington, according to the dispatch, so that "the private and unofficial reactions of those responsible for American foreign policy could be learned."

PRESIDENT WANTS CLEANUP

HYDE PARK, N. Y., July 22 (UP)—President Roosevelt dropped back into his role as a Dutchess county farmer today to call for a complete cleanup in the county sheriff's office.

The sheriff is Dwight Sedgwick, a republican, but the president said his opinion was not based on party consideration. He suggested the housecleaning as a farmer of the county rather than as president and said its method must be determined by the voters at a forthcoming election.

His remarks made yesterday at a press conference were based on a liquor conspiracy case in which thirty-two persons, including three deputy sheriffs were indicted on charges of violating federal internal revenue laws. Twelve pleaded guilty and fourteen others were convicted. The government charged it was defrauded of $2,500,000 in taxes by the violations which extended back to the period before Sedgwick took office.

Threshing Completed

Threshing has been completed for this year in the vicinity of Wabash. The machine owned and operated by J. E. Golden and Ralph Richards, which has been going pretty steady since the completion of harvest, finished up work last Wednesday morning. They made eleven settings and put through approximately 3,000 bushels of grain, mostly wheat and oats. While this seems like a small figure, one must remember this has been a year of small yields and a goodly portion of the small grain is now being cared for by combines.

Road is Graded

The road one mile north of Wabash which runs parallel with and extends from the former McCrory place two miles to the east has been graded up and put in fine condition, with entranceways cut into several farms along the route, so the occupants can get in and out of their places. Road Supervisor Louis Schmidt, with the assistance of John Finkle and Henry Christensen, did the job and an excellent piece of work it is.

Eleven-Year-Old Boy Slays His Sister

Stanley Dobruk, 11 Admits Killing Sister Because She Slighted Him Out of Two Cents.

NEW HAVEN, Mich., July 22 (UP)—Eleven-year-old Stanley Dobruk confessed today that he shot and killed his sister, Frances, 14, "because she owed me two cents."

Prosecutor I. A. Johnston announced, "I didn't mean to shoot her." Johnston quoted the boy, "I only wanted to scare her." The confession was obtained after additional questioning today. The boy's father, John Dobruk, broke down and sobbed as he heard his son admit the shooting.

Stanley said he and his sister had been berry picking and that they had divided the money. He said his sister withheld two cents from him.

"I got my gun to scare her," the boy said, as huge tears streamed down his cheeks. "I did not think the gun was loaded. I pointed it at her head just to scare her, but it went off and she fell down."

At the time of the shooting Frances' mother and father were in the field. They were attracted to the house by cries of another son, John, 4, that "his sister had fallen down."

TAR AND FEATHER GIRL

CALGARY, Alberta, July 21 (UP)—Calgary's social circles buzzed with speculation today on a motive that had substantiated the charge of a student nurse that she had been tarred and feathered by a socially prominent mother and her daughter.

Principals were Alice Knowles, 28, undergraduate nurse still in a hospital for treatment of shock and face and body burns; Mrs. Ethel Allen, 53, wife of a well-to-do physician and her daughter, Betty, 24, socialite. Mrs. Allen and her daughter face trial July 27 on a charge of "assault occasioning bodily harm."

Miss Knowles told police Sunday Mrs. Allen and her daughter visited her apartment and slapped her. She feared another attack and asked protection. Tuesday Miss Knowles, smeared with stick roach paint and feathers, stumbled into a neighbor's suite after police said Mrs. Allen and her daughter had been seen leaving Miss Knowles' apartment. Removed to a hospital Miss Knowles told police that Mrs. Allen and her daughter had applied the tar and feathers.
