Rauth of Manly and sister, Miss Lilly Tighe, of Omaha, departed for Sioux City, in response to a message telling of the serious injury of a nephew, Joseph Huse, of Jackson, Nebraska. Mr. Huse who just a short time ago narrowly escaped death from the attack of an infuriated bull at his farm, was injured Tuesday when struck by a large limb. He had been out in the farm yard where a tree was being trimmed and a large limb suddenly fell and struck Mr. Huse on the head and with the result that he suffered a compound fracture of the skull. The injured man was taken to the hospital at Sioux City and where his condition is very grave.

BANK SHOWS FINE RESULTS

On March 14, 1933, during the famous banking holiday which was one of Mr. Roosevelt's first acts upon taking office as president, the Farmers State bank of Avoca called a meeting of the people of its community. The people raised $37,250 so that the Avoca bank could open on schedule on an unrestricted basis. The bank and its stockholders agreed to waive all dividends until non-stockholders could be paid in full. On August 10, 1939,—last week—the final payment was made to the non-stockholders, who had contributed, in all, $23,750. (Stockholders contributed $13,500.) Announcement of the completion of this community transaction, which demonstrated 100 per cent faith in the Avoca bank at a time when a good many people were suspicious, was made by Elmer Hallstrom, the cashier of the bank. When the bank reopened in 1933, the bank had capital of $15,000, surplus of $10,000 and undivided profits of $3,297.03. After making the final payment to non-stockholders last week, the bank had capital of $15,000, surplus of $15,000 and undivided profits of $6,293.16, representing an increase in the capital account of $7,996.13.

All Are Pleased
"We are proud of our achievement," Mr. Hallstrom said in an interview with a Nebraska City News-Press representative, of the completion of the transaction. And the people of Avoca should be, too. Few banks can point to a similar achievement. Deposits in the period have increased. In March, 1933, they amounted to $205,695.05. On August 12, this year, they were $252,786.69.

From Platte River to Fort Crook Before Finally Stopped and Driver Jailed.

From Tuesday's Daily—
Last evening travelers on highway No. 75, north of this city were treated to a race staged by a truck driver and a state highway patrolman attempting to bring the racing truck to a stop.

The truck was coming north on the highway, driving at a very high rate of speed and as it neared the Platte river bridge passed the patrol going as fast as the truck could race. The patrolmen took after the truck, the siren being opened on the patrol car to attract the attention of the truck driver, the patrolman also flashing on his spotlight and also flashing a red light for the truck to stop. The truck raced on, barely missing several cars and it was not until Fort Crook was reached that the truck was forced into the roadside and the driver removed by the patrolman. He was apparently intoxicated and claimed to have not heard the patrolman or seen his light signals. The man was taken on over to Papillion where he was lodged in jail to await a hearing and sober up.
