"They have no Lowells in the south and west," say the New England republicans, charusing after Reed.

Mr. Bryan proceeds to show that the people of the west and south are more likely to exert their intelligence boldry and fearlessly by not living in Lowells and Lynns. In Lowell there are 14,836 families occupying homes. Only 14 per cent own unincumbered homes. The percen'age in Lynn is 16. In Fall River only 9 per cent own free homes. In Holyoke the percentage is between 6 and 7 per cent.

So, when it comes to freeholders the Massachusetts supply is light, and in the typical manufacturing towns the population is evidently dependent on weekly wages for means to keep roofs over the heads of families.

Is this a condition which develops courage to speak and act the truth? ent? Between 1,000 western farmers and 1,000 Lowell operatives, where would anybody look for outspoken American thought?
