CAPITAL CORRESPONDENCE.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 24, 1894.—It appears that the senate has finally "got a move" on itself respecting the tariff bill, and although nearly everything has been given away to the traffickers in particular "industries" or interests—the Gormans, Brices, Murphys, Smiths and Camdens, who have had rates raised to suit them and their friends outside the senate in certain lines—the bill is now being pushed with some vigor, and about one-third of the items have been gone over and agreed to.

I notice that my friend, Annin, of the Lincoln Journal, is doing right well for a starter in his effort to write Mr. Bryan down. Of course everybody here understands the animus of Mr. Annin's persistence in that direction. Considering that he has the reputation of acting and drawing pay as clerk or secretary for Senator Manderson and Mr. Hainer, of the house, and possibly of Mr. Mercer also, it is to be expected that he would do a manly part by them, and do what he could to knock out the man whose success might shelve the ambition of his employers.

And, by the way, it seems that Mr. Morton is again convinced that Mr. Bryan is going to become a populist. That isn't anything new for him. He made a similar charge last year, while Mr. Bryan was making his southern tour, but it didn't "take," as they say about vaccination, then any more than it will now.

Coxey, Browne and Jones, the commonwealth leaders, are in jail, serving out a twenty days' sentence for their awful crime of walking on the grass at the capital grounds and carrying banners on the first of May—the "banners" consisting of badges about two inches wide and four inches long, bearing the inscription of the "Commonwealth of Christ" as invented by the eccentric genius, Carl Browne, whom nearly all Plattsmouth will remember as the man who unrolled a panoramic picture of the "aggressions of the money power" on the streets there in 1892, and lectured about it.

The house committee of the whole knocked out the salary appropriation to pay the salaries of the civil service commission. This was done because of the general opinion that the commission is not conducted in accordance with the spirit of the law, and that the president has not treated democratic members of the board in a proper spirit.

But for this time nuff said.

GIVE BRYAN A TOGA.

Chicago Times. Though William J. Bryan, the brilliant young congressman from Nebraska, has positively declined to be a candidate for re-election to the lower house, the democracy of that state should not permit him to retire from politics. Mr. Bryan has said that while he will not make the race for congress again he is willing and proposes to devote all his influence and ability to the service of the causes of silver and tariff reform in the west and to the consolidation of the Nebraska democracy on those issues.

SOMEbody will make a neat sum on sugar when the new tariff goes into effect. The importations of free sugar, exclusive of beet sugar are larger than were ever known before. In the four months ending March 31, the amount imported was 277,000,000 pounds in excess of the importations for the corresponding period last year, and they are still heavy. All this comes in free, and most of it has been imported by the sugar trust, the largest dealer in this sugar in this country.

In everything, from his jury bill to his tariff speeches, from his position on the income tax to his expressions on bimetalism, Mr. Bryan has stood up for the interests of the people, the interests of the producers of the west and south as opposed to the selfish schemes of the mortgage sharks and money lenders of the east.

vate life. He should not be sent to congress to represent a district, but to the senate to represent a state, a section, a principle. The senate needs rejuvenation and the infusion of the vigorous young blood of the west sadly. No better man could be found to begin the task than William J. Bryan. Nebraska will do herself honor when she invests this young Ajax she has nurtured with the toga.

THE Nebraska City News has lately been barking about THE JOURNAL to an extent which makes one weary. One claim which the News makes is that THE JOURNAL is "close to crawling into the populist camp." If the News had said republican instead of populist, the editor of this paper might have just cause to feel angry, but as the News said populist, a laugh is only in order.

THE Washington dispatches assure us that the republicans of the house are "still kicking" against the enforcement of the salary-docking statute. Let them kick. They have only themselves to thank for the revival of that law. They wasted weeks of filibustering against any legislation whatever unless the majority furnished a quorum, and the enforcement of the regulation which compels them to attend congress or forfeit their pay is due to their own "smartness."

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the eustachian tube.
