LINDSAY LOOKING UP.

His Chances For Furnishing a Bail Bond Look Brighter.

WAS NOT FLECHTNER'S BODY.

The Floater Found in the Missouri Near Bartlett, Ia., Proved to Be the Remains of Another Unfortunate—Other Notes.

Liberty in Sight for Lindsay.

Things are looking brighter for pugilist Jimmy Lindsay, who is occupying quarters at the county jail by reason of his inability to furnish the $2,500 bail bond fixed by Justice Archer when Lindsay was bound over to the district court, on the charge of killing Fletcher Robbins. At first Lindsay was exceedingly sore at Griswold, Gurley and Omaha people in general, claiming that he had been deserted when bail was furnished Griswold and not himself. Now, however, Lindsay is singing a different tune, as he thinks he will be able to furnish a bond, and thus secure his liberty until the time of his trial in district court. Lawyer Matt Gering, counsel for Griswold, was in Omaha yesterday and at the request of Attorney Gurley, Mr. Gering was searching today for a Plattsmouth man who would be willing to go on Lindsay's bond, providing he was properly secured by Omaha parties. Mr. Gering says that he has no interest in Lindsay's defense, but is only acting at Gurley's request, and when seen by a JOURNAL reporter today he said that he had found the necessary Plattsmouth man to go upon Lindsay's bond. This being the case, and providing, of course, that the aforesaid Plattsmouth man is properly secured, Lindsay is apt to be liberated in a few days.

Plattsmouth people who were in Omaha yesterday state that a report was current in Omaha that Editor Rosewater took the trouble to inquire of Omaha parties who saw the contest between Robbins and Lindsay and that on the strength of their stories he dispensed with Griswold's services as sporting editor on the Bee. None could vouch for the exact truth, but that the report was current is certain.

Was Not the Body of Earnest Flechtner.

The body of the boy found floating in the Missouri river yesterday twelve miles below this city and near Bartlett, Iowa, was not that of Earnest Flechtner, the lad drowned at this point last Sunday afternoon. John Sattler, of the firm of Straight & Sattler, the undertakers, drove down to Bartlett, Ia., yesterday, and after viewing the body pronounced it as not being Earnest Flechtner. Several drownings have occurred lately in Omaha and Mr. Sattler telegraphed a description of the body to the Omaha police last night.

The Plattsmouth Slugging.

This paper has no love for prize fights and very little respect for those who indulge in them. They are a worthless and, for the most part, a dangerous element in society, but it cannot but hold that they have rights to a fair trial, even for breaking laws. It has already commented upon the peculiar manner in which the case against Slugger Lindsay, now on trial for murder at Plattsmouth, is being conducted. Lindsay and the referee, Griswold, were bound over for trial August 20, and in fixing the bail bonds Lindsay's was put at $2,500 and Griswold's at $7,500. The Dogberry said that in fixing the bail he took into consideration the respective ability of the men to furnish bonds. Thus, because Griswold was presumably able to furnish a large bond, his is fixed at three times the sum required of the man who is alleged to have been guilty of manslaughter. And the two Plattsmouth seconds in the fight have not even been informed against.—Omaha World-Herald.

Such slanders upon Justice Archer are entirely unwarranted. To make Griswold's bond larger than Lindsay's was perfectly proper. The object of a bond (fearing that the World-Herald needs some instructions) is to bring a prisoner into court for trial. A bond of $1 might be sufficient to bring one man into court, while a bond for several thousand might fail to bring another, and it necessarily follows that the respective financial standing of men charged with crime should enter into the fixing of their respective bail bonds. And still further, counsel for the defense virtually fixed the amount of both bonds at the solicitation of Justice Archer, as the magistrate wished to act fair in the matter and place the amount within the resources of both men. In its desire to slander Justice Archer, the World-Herald has made a consummate donkey of itself.

Majors Picked the Plum.

OMAHA, Neb., Aug. 22, 4 p. m.—[Special to THE JOURNAL.]—The republican state convention convened in this city this morning, the credentials showing that 916 delegates were present and entitled to vote. C. Adams of Superior was chosen permanent chairman. The balloting for the gubernatorial nomination was commenced in the afternoon session, the first ballot resulting as follows: Majors 450 and the balance divided between Macoll and Crouse. On the second Majors was nominated, the ballot resulting: Majors, 542; Macoll, 411; Crouse, 8. Cass county gave 20 votes for Majors and 3 for Macoll. R. E. Moore, of Lancaster county, is thought to be in the lead for the nomination for lieutenant-governor.

Crop Report for the Week.

The weather for the past week has continued hot and dry, with slight changes in crop conditions. The temperature has averaged about seven degrees above the normal, with more than the average amount of sunshine. The rainfall for the past week has been everywhere below the normal, except in a small area in the northern part of the state, where over an inch fell, reaching a maximum of 1.63 inches at Kennedy.

The bulk of the corn is either cut or being cut for fodder, although a few fields, particularly of late corn, still promise a small yield of ears, and these fields have generally been helped somewhat by the showers of the past week, especially in the northeastern section. In the northeastern portion of the state, where good rains have fallen during the past week and the last few days of the week preceding, the pastures have been considerably revived.

In a few instances fall plowing is in progress and a little wheat has been sown and some rye, but generally the ground is too dry to plow.

Sued for Seduction.

Alva Druesedow was arrested at Nebraska City on Tuesday morning, charged with being the father of Miss Effie Cornwall's child. It will be remembered that Miss Cornwall gave birth to a girl baby at Lincoln on July 31. At the time she accused Druesedow of being the father of the child and said he had deserted her. He was placed under $500 bonds for his appearance August 31. He has employed counsel and will fight the case. The accused is a brother of Robert Druesedow, well known in this city.

All legal business given prompt attention, D. O. Dwyer, attorney, Plattsmouth.

COMMENTS ON THAT FIGHT.

The following clippings from JOURNAL exchanges demonstrates the feeling against Lindsay and Griswold to be rather general:

"My readers" of Sandy Griswold's sporting department of Mr. Iwater's paper are likely to lose their friend Griswold. He has been indicted for the murder of Fletcher Robbins, who was killed by a prize fight at Plattsmouth. Griswold was referee of the pleasant little game and he has been held without bail as an accessory. He is as contemptuous and egotistical a plugger as any of the short-haired bruisers with whom he associates, either at the prize fights or elsewhere. If he should test the Dodge county crop of hemp, Mr. Iwater will not be low-spirited or cast down, for he will still have Ed Roegen and Seth Cole left.—Fremont Tribune.

Fletcher Robbins, a young man of Plattsmouth, engaged in a prize fight with James Lindsay of Omaha and now lies in his grave. The referee in the noble contest was Sandy Griswold, the sporting editor of the Omaha Bee. That gentleman is now being savagely criticised for having a hand in such an affair; of course he didn't know that anybody was going to be killed, or he would have stayed in Omaha, compiling his usual column of bombast for the great newspaper of which he is an ornament. Colonel Griswold should set an example to all the other colonels of his kind; he should either go out of the newspaper business or go out of the prize ring business. The two professions do not dove-tail worth a cent. Newspaper men should be at prize fights only as passive spectators, in the stern walk of duty. It is probable that the colonel will turn over a new leaf when he gets out of his present trouble, if he ever gets out of it.—Beatrice Express.

Sandy Griswold, the great sporting editor of the greatest newspaper west of Chicago, is now fighting the charge of being accessory to a murder. The man of superior intelligence, who by virtue of his responsible position, should have used his talents and his efforts to uplift legitimate sport from the level of Jimmie Lindsay, and thugs of that ilk. Griswold in an interview said that he had lost his head in the fight; that he was not the proper person for referee; that he did not have the proper protection. Proper protection! Great Scott, from whom? From his Omaha friends! The great sporting authority, Sandy Griswold, to have lost his head! Heavens, the only thing he lost was his honor, with the sure prospect of his liberty, for a year or two. The man who witnessed the great Sullivan-Kilrain fight; the Corbett-Mitchell fight; the man fresh from the mill between Ryan and Smith at Minneapolis; the trained newspaper man, schooled to keep his head cool and his thoughts collected, to lose his head in a glove fight. Bah! The only way he lost his head was in the trepidation Fletcher Robbins would knock out his man before he could get in his dirty work. Griswold realized his awful position, and in an agony of mental distress referred to his family. Yes, how about Robbins' mother and sister who are seriously ill from the shock. Griswold has forfeited all claims to sympathy.—Junction Recorder.

MURRAY NOTES.

Very little grain is being delivered just now.

Walter Dickinson of Elmwood is visiting relatives this week.

Miss Effie Edson will preside over the Murray school this winter.

Alex Walker expects to return to school at Lincoln in September.

Remember the Demorest contest Saturday night. Admission ten cents.

Willie Berger is riding a new bicycle, which he purchased from Milton Morrow.

Where was the man who had charge of the World-Herald drawing for the top buggy last Saturday?

Bob Carr of Weeping Water was here last Friday looking for a school to teach this winter.

Why not organize a bicycle club in Murray? Boys, you are behind our neighboring wheelmen.

Murray is expected to be well represented at the G. A. R. encampment this week at Weeping Water.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Hodgins returned last week from Iowa, where they have spent the past month visiting friends and relatives.

Mrs. B. Seibold returned from the western part of the state last week, where she has been visiting relatives for some time past.

Dr. Champney's office on Main street is almost completed. His residence on the opposite side of the block is nearing completion, and promises to add greatly to the appearance of our village.

The picnic held in Mrs. Wiley's grove last Thursday by the different Sunday schools around Murray, was a very pleasant occasion. Aside from the regular program the day was spent in games, etc., and the little ones enjoyed a general good time.

The foot race which took place last Saturday evening between Alex Walker of this place and a Mr. Carrier of Union, who seems to be quite a professional sprinter, was won by the latter, but in no sense did he do it fairly. Some time was spent in trying to effect an even start, but by some tactics Carrier got the start by ten or fifteen feet, and only won by two or three feet.

The "Plan Sifter" flour is the popular brand. Ask for it from your grocer.

More Trouble for Father Corbett.

Father Smith came in from Elmwood this morning and informs us that Father Corbett some two weeks ago violated the order of the court, as he performed the burial rites over one of his former parishioners. Father Smith says he was on the ground at the time and ready to perform the services but was unable to do so because of the presence of Father Corbett and his friends. He said he asked the constable to remove Father Corbett, but the latter refused. The matter was referred to the Bishop and perhaps some action will be taken. It is claimed that Corbett can be arrested for contempt of court.—Nebraska City News.
