MASHED IN A WRECK.

Con O'Connor, a Former B. & M. Engineer, Seriously Hurt.

EARLY DECISION EXPECTED.

The U. S. Supreme Court Soon to Decide the Somewhat Famous Elevator Suit Between the Farmers' Alliance and the M. P.

Information reached this city yesterday of a recent railway accident on the M., K. & T. in Texas, in which Con O'Connor, an engineer who formerly lived in Plattsmouth and pulled an engine on one of the B. & M.'s main-line passenger trains previous to the strike in '88, was seriously, and perhaps fatally, injured. The accident was the result of a collision between two trains, one a passenger and the other a freight, Mr. O'Connor being on the latter. According to the information at hand Mr. O'Connor was caught under the falling locomotive and both legs were so badly mashed that his life is endangered. The freight conductor was instantly killed. Mr. O'Connor is known in railway circles as one of the most competent engineers in the west. Socially, he was an excellent gentleman, and his misfortune will be deeply regretted by his hosts of friends in this city and all along the line of the B. & M.

Will Soon Be Decided.

The state board of transportation has received notice that the famous Elmwood elevator case will come up in the United States supreme court within a few days for a final decision. This is the case wherein the farmers' alliance sued the Missouri Pacific to secure an elevator site. It involves the question of whether a railroad company must grant elevator sites to all applicants when they have granted such to one. The Nebraska supreme court held that the site must be granted. The railroad carried the case up and after the lapse of several years it is now to be decided.—Lincoln Journal.

The Attachment Released.

The three attachment cases commenced against C. Benson in Justice Archer's court by P. J. Hansen, Streight & Sattle and Dr. Marshall, were dismissed Wednesday upon payment by Benson of the claims, and the goods held under the attachment were accordingly released. Benson is the ex-laundryman who endeavored to skip to Iowa without paying his debts. His creditors learned of his plans and attached his household effects while they were standing in a car at the B. & M freight house ready for shipment.

The Lincoln News never loses an opportunity, and rightfully too, to call attention to the Lincoln Journal's employment of "rat" printers at starvation wages. General Weaver, the fusion candidate for congress in the Iowa district just across the river, spoke in Lincoln Tuesday afternoon and the following is a part of the mention which the News made of the general's address: "While the general was hurling an anathema at the republican party a piece of plastering fell from the ceiling and lit just behind him. 'There goes one chunk out of the republican party,' he ejaculated. Just at this moment Col. Fowler, a reporter for the Journal, slipped off the platform and headed for the door. 'There goes another chunk,' yelled some pop who knew him. 'No, that's only the hole,' yelled another. 'It's a State Journal chunk,' cried another, and the crowd said 'Rats.' And Col. Fowler threw himself madly down the stairs."

A Splendid Meeting.

Many people from the county were among the audience at the Waterman which greeted the appearance of Hon. A. H. Weir and D. B. Carey last evening. Judge Archer presided and introduced the speakers. "It gives me pleasure to introduce to you the man whom the independents nominated for congress, and whose selection was so eminently fitting and unobjectionable that the democrats also nominated him.—Mr. A. H. Weir, the present mayor of Lincoln."

Mr. Weir then began an address of an hour and a half, devoted almost exclusively to the financial question. While not an orator he was listened to with close attention throughout. Beginning with quotations from the most eminent authorities showing that the prosperity or adversity of the people depended upon the amount of money in circulation; that plenty of money meant prosperity and a scarcity of money meant a cheapening of every species of property and a stoppage of all enterprise and advancement and poverty and wretchedness among the masses. He argued that for twenty-five years there had been almost constant shrinking of the volume of the currency and a consequent lowering in prices of everything raised or manufactured by man, and that the condition of men was as a consequence growing worse all the time, while the wealthy were all the time growing more so. He referred to the prosperity of the people during and at the close of the war and proved it by citing the fact that there were but four and five hundred failures a year for several years while there was from $40 to $50 per capita in circulation, while after the destruction of the 7-30 notes and greenbacks began the number of business failures largely increased, bringing on the crash of 1873-4, after which the Bland act provided for the coming of silver, and that partially stopped the pressure of hard times on the people. Thus he traced the history of finance from cause to effect, until now, when even the lowering of taxes under the Wilson bill was slow to effect a relief from the pressure for more money. He advocated free coinage of gold and silver on equal terms because they would be self regulators of the volume of metal money and be certain to bring prosperous times for all business and the masses of the people. The rugged honesty of his argument and his freedom from mud throwing created a very favorable impression and brought frequent applause.

Mr. Carey then took the floor, and dwelling on state issues, soon had the audience at his feet. He spoke for forty minutes and showed himself to be not only an orator but thoroughly posted on state politics. He is a large, fine-looking man and his voice and presence are equally attractive. His review of the robberies of republican state officials and the rule of the party by that class of men, was graphic, plain and convincing, and when he urged the election of the fusion legislative ticket because it would help elect W. J. Bryan to the senate the applause shook the building.

Geo. Leidigh, candidate for float representative in Cass and Otoe counties, was interviewing friends in town Wednesday. Mr. Leidigh was nominated by the independents, but in reality he is a democrat, and as such has been elected to the legislature from Otoe county, serving during the last session. He is a pronounced Bryan democrat and has for his platform the election of that gentleman to the U. S. senate. Mr. Leidigh will receive a tremendous vote in Otoe county, and if the democrats and independents of Otoe county do their duty, his election will be assured.

ONE THING AND ANOTHER.

Mayor Weir, of Lincoln, was regularly nominated for congress by the democrats of this district at Tecumseh, and the democrats all over the district are universally satisfied with the nomination and propose to give Mr. Weir their votes. The Nebraska City News, a so-called democratic organ, is doing all it can on the quiet for the republican candidate, Mr. Strode, but there is nothing really surprising in this action of the News, as it is an old-time trick for that sheet to stab some regular democratic nominee in the back.—J. M. Stone, the democratic candidate for float representative two years ago, being an example. It is certainly time for the News to cast aside its mask and come out flat-footed as a republican organ. It certainly is nothing else.

"In my humble opinion," remarked a well-known traveller for an Omaha jobbing house at a local hotel Tuesday, "the wholesale houses of Omaha and Lincoln will find that their effort to dictate the election of Tom Majors will have a damaging effect on their trade in this state. My territory is in the near vicinity of Omaha, but I have lately conversed with salesmen who tour out in the state, and particularly in southern Nebraska, and they tell me that there are many merchants who resent the action of the jobbing houses in dabbling with politics and will show their disapproval by patronizing other houses. The upshot of the whole matter is that the jobbing interests of both Omaha and Lincoln will suffer, while St. Joseph and Sioux City will be the gainers. The Bee made the same kind of a statement only a few days ago and I notice that the Majors organs vigorously denied it, but the statements of travelling men whose order books are not filling up as rapidly as before, is certainly convincing. As a rule, travelling salesmen are not given to admitting that their trade is dwindling and when they make such an admission it can be put down as true."

Polk's News of this city is another sheet that has been making an awful fuss about the "credit of the state" being endangered by the election of Judge Holcomb. The sickly plea is made that every loan company in the state will withdraw and refuse to make loans on Nebraska farms, and a picture of poverty is drawn upon the campaign canvass which would excite the admiration of the masters in art. The cry has been hashed and rebashed in every republican organ in the state, but it remains for Polk's organ to put the lie to the whole outfit. Every day in which the News has made that plea its columns contained an advertisement which proves how really little it cares to print the truth. The advertisement mentioned is as follows:

MONEY TO LOAN.

We have money to loan at 6 per cent on farm or city property in any section of country where property has a fixed market value. Money ready for immediate loans where security and title is good. No commission. We solicit applications. Blanks furnished upon request ALLEN & Co., 40 and 42 Broadway, New York.

Polk's nose has been pinched in his own trap. The man's hypocrisy could not better be proven.

The Nebraska City News styles itself an administration organ and at the same time it refuses to support Mr. Weir, the fusion candidate for congress. The real facts are that President Cleveland has stated it as his express desire that the democrats of Nebraska, when they have no chance to elect a candidate of their own, should vote for populist nominees and thus defeat republicans, and especially is this true in reference to candidates for congress. The president is for tariff reform first, last and all the time and it is not at all strange that he would rather have a low tariff populist in congress than a high tariff republican. If the News wishes to make good its claim of being an administration democratic organ it must necessarily support Mr. Weir. Otherwise it must acknowledge itself as a traitor to the cause of tariff reform. Here's a splendid opportunity for the News to get in out of the wet.

He Found His Men.

"The strangest experience of my career," remarked a gentleman at the Hotel Riley the other evening, "happened some ten years ago when I was serving as a U. S. deputy marshal in the territory of Dakota. At that time federal court was held at Yankton, and travelling over the state was done almost exclusively by stage. Deadwood was then the scene of considerable lawlessness and the officers of the court who were called to the Black Hills country on official business found it an exceedingly tiresome journey. It was in connection with a trip to Deadwood that an incident happened to me which I certainly shall never forget. I had a whole pocket full of federal court papers to serve on people in the neighborhood of Deadwood, but found all my parties in short order except two men. In Deadwood I learned that the men had departed for a place several miles up to the big hills, their object being to prospect, so I secured a saddle horse at a livery stable and left to hunt them up. After proceeding for a few miles I met a party of almost a dozen men coming down one of the gulches on horseback, and at once inquired if they had seen anything of the pair whom I was searching. Yes, they had just left them," was the reply. "You'll find them just up the gulch." I thanked the party for the information and proceeded up the gulch as directed. I travelled for a few hundred yards and after making a sharp turn in the road, met a sight which almost knocked me from the saddle. There were my two men—both were hanging from a tree with ropes around their necks and both were too dead to skin. It never before had been my lot to serve papers on a dead man, but I turned the trick to the best of my ability and rode back to Deadwood. The news of the hanging had preceded me and there I learned that the luckless pair had been too much inclined to borrow horses belonging to other people without going through the formality of returning the animals and as a consequence a vigilance committee had waited on the two men and waited them into the great beyond. I was back to Yankton in about two weeks and my duties never again called me to Deadwood, but information afterwards reached me that no prosecutions ever followed, people out there looking on the affair as a matter of justice. For all I know the leader of the vigilance committee might afterwards have been elevated to the Deadwood mayoralty."

A Matter of Tracks.

The Union Pacific receivers have asked the court to relieve them from joint track contracts with the Burlington. One of these is that to allow the Burlington to run through South Omaha on Union Pacific tracks for the short cut from La Platte to the stock yards. The Union Pacific has refused at any time to permit the Burlington to do this and the short cut tracks are consequently idle. The other contract is that for the Union Pacific to use the Burlington tracks between David City and Columbus. The case comes up November 10. Mr. Marquette, counsel for the B. & M., is in Omaha looking over the ground.—Omaha World-Herald.

DEMOCRATS, ATTENTION!

Democrats in general and democratic precinct committeemen especially are urged to see that all democrats and others who favor the election of W. J. Bryan for U. S. senator should vote for George W. Leidigh for float representative, for the reason that he was nominated as a free coinage democrat by the independent float convention and was endorsed by the Cass county democratic central committee—no legal democratic nomination having been made. The name of John Sinclair, it is true, will appear on the ticket as the democratic nominee, but no democrat who favors Mr. Bryan for U. S. senator should be deceived into voting for him, because there is no chance of his election, and he is not in favor of Mr. Bryan. A vote for Geo. W. Leidigh will be in direct line with democratic principles, in harmony democratic purposes and for Wm. J. Bryan for United States senator.

M. ARCHER,

Chairman Democratic Central Committee for Cass County.

The Calamity Howl a Humbug.

EDITOR JOURNAL:—I notice your comment in yesterday's JOURNAL relative to a letter from a Life Insurance Co. of Montpelier, Vt., published in Polk's News, in which it is inferred that they will loan no more money in this state if a populist governor is elected. Now, so far as I know, and I think I am in a position to know, this company has never loaned a dollar in this county. In my estimation this cry about not being able to borrow money or renew loans should a populist governor be elected, is all political rot and those engaged in circulating such reports ought to be in better business. There is nothing in such reports except to scare borrowers into voting for the Tattooed Repudiator, and not in the interest of honest government. I am a republican and believe in the republican principles of government and am in the loan business, having loaned in this county this year so far, in the neighborhood of $30,000, on farms and city property, and wish to say to farmers of this county that if Mr. Holcomb is elected I shall be pleased to accommodate them with loans the same as heretofore, providing security is satisfactory, of course. I do not loan on wind and political buncombe, but on farms, and occasionally on choice city property.

Yours Truly,

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J.
