One wrote his name with careless hand Upon the yellow shining sand, Then onward passed, with confidence, Saying "'Twill last till ages hence.'

All day the passers stopped and read .

"Behold, the man is great," they said, Nor wist his glory would not last Till four-and-twenty hours had past. The billows rolled upon the beach,

Each white-capped breaker followed each, And, lo! the writer's name was not; No line was left to mark the spot!

Above the sands, upon a stone, Another labored, long, alone. He cut his name with greatest care Upon the tablet cold and bare.

Not to engage the passer's eye. He labored there, 'twixt earth and sky, But for the love of work well done He toiled till setting of the sun.

Not many raised their eyes to him; Some smiled derisive at his whim And said "The rock is like to fall, Then will his recompense be small." His dust is scattered long ago,

But on the rock the letters glow; The waves that break upon the beach To that high place can never reach.

THE ENORMOUS COST OF WAR An Array of Figures That is Simply As-tonishing.

It appears, according to the estimates of French and German statisticians. there have perished in the wars of the last thirty years 2,500,000 men, while there has been expended to carry them on no less than the inconceivable sum of $13,000,000,000. Of this amount France has paid nearly $3,500,000,000 as the cost of the war with Prussia, while her loss in men is placed at 155,000. Of these 80,000 were killed on the field of battle, 86,000 died of sickness, accidents, or suicide, and 20,000 in German prisons, while there died from other causes enough to bring the number up to the given aggregate. The sick and wounded amounted to 477,421, the lives of many thousands of whom were doubtless shortened by their illness or injuries. According to Dr. Roth, a German authority, the Germans lost during the war 60,000 men killed or rendered invalid and $600,000,000 in money, this being the excess of expenditure or of material losses over the $1,250,000,000 paid by France by way of indemnity. Dr. Engel, another German statistician, gives the following as the approximate cost of the principal wars of the last thirty years: Crimean war, $2,000,000,000 Italian war of 1859, $300,000,000; Prusso-Danish war of 1864, $35,000,000; War of the Rebellion-North $5,100,000,000, South $2,300,000,000; Prusso-Austrian war of 1866, $330,000,000; Russo-Turkish war, $125,000,000; South African wars, $8,770,000; African war, $12,350,000; Servo-Bulgarian, $176,000,000. All these wars were murderous in the extreme. The Crimean war, in which few battles were fought, cost 750,000 lives, only 50,000 less than were killed or died of their wounds, north and south, during the War of the Rebellion. The figures, it must be remembered, are German, and might not agree precisely with the American estimates. The Mexican and Chinese expeditions cost $200,000,000 and 65,000 lives. There were 250,000 killed and mortally wounded during the Russia-Turkey war, and 45,000 each in the Itadan war of 1859 and the war between Prussia and Austria. In the other wars the loss of life was relative ly less, which did not make either the men or money easier to part with in the more limited areas where they occurred And this is but a part of the accounting since it does not include the millions expended during the last twenty year in maintaining the vast armaments on the European powers, the losses enused by stoppage of commerce and manufac-tures, and the continual derangement of industries by the abstraction from useful employment of so many militons of persons held for a period of military service extending from three to five

EARLY CHICAGO. A Record of a Battle Fought There Two Centuries Ago. In the year 1685, Tonty says in his Memoir, "I arrived at the Fort of Chicagou where M. De la Durantaye commanded." Tonty also marched from the Illinois with sixteen Frenchmen and two hundred Indians to take part in this campaign, and according to one account he came by the way of Chicago and mustered some recruits here, perhaps from the garrison of the fort. He led his party across the country to Detroit, where he mes Durantaye and two other famous pioneers, La Foret and Daniel Greysolog Du Lhut, from whom the present city of Duluth takes its name.
