Sam Stribling Acquitted.

The somewhat celebrated State vs. Stribling case, which has attracted considerable attention during the past few months, has finally been settled.

Stribling and a man named Julius Range were charged with burglary, the offense being alleged to have been committed last July, when the two men made a raid on John Harrington's chicken coop. No chickens were taken and it was proven that the men had been led into the trap by one Joe McCulley, a tool of the officers.

Stribling and Range were each bound over to the district court for trial upon the charge of burglary. Attorney Matthew Gering of this city, assisted by County Attorney Nichols of Dallas county, Iowa, appeared for Stribling and made a very strong argument in favor of their client. The case was given to the jury Friday night and in about twenty minutes a verdict of "not guilty" was returned, the verdict being unanimous on the first ballot, and the prisoner was accordingly acquitted.

Public sentiment has been in Mr. Stribling's favor ever since his arrest, as he has "turned over a new leaf" and is evidently trying to live an honest life. Up to about two years ago he was known as a hard-working and industrious man, but since that time he has been out of work most of the time. Evil companions have been the cause of his trouble, and this lesson will undoubtedly prove a valuable one to him.
