Auditor Moore has decided to pay district judges up to and including January 8. According to the constitutien their terms of office expire January 9, but the statute fixes the date at January 1. Now that all are to receive pay up to the 8th it is expected that they will be willing to perform any work that may come up before their pay stops. The employes of the B. & M. boiler shops at Havelock are now working nine hours per day, an increase of one hour from the old schedule. While it is understood that the change is but temporary, being due to the sudden rush of work in that department, it is generally thought probable that the next month will witness a restoration by the company of the old schedule of ten hours per day. Shop employes will gladly welcome such a change .-Lincoln Journal.
