GREAT BARGAIN HOUSE.

A SERIES OF LIES.

How the Poor Old Journal Misrepresents.

Ever since the attempt was first made, over three months ago, by certain republican officials and machine politicians to steal the balance of the $100,000 penitentiary appropriation left by Dorgan, the machine organ, the morning smut mill, has been telling lies about the penitentiary and its management. It states that Leidigh has beat the state out of $1,000 to $1,800 a month by the prisoners lying idle when they might be at work. This is a lie of the whole cloth. Ever since the pen was placed in Leidigh's hands, after Dorgan stepped out, the prisoners have been kept busy repairing the boilers and machinery and steam plant, to get it in proper working order, and never, until within the past ten days has the plant been in proper shape to furnish the necessary steam to run the machinery. If all the prisoners had been contracted out they could not have been put at work until the plant was repaired so as to furnish the necessary steam. The Journal simply lies when it states anything to the contrary. It lies at so much per lie, too, as it always did. The Journal, like the balance of the gang, is evidently very anxious to get its fingers on the balance of that $100,000 appropriation, hence its lies. As soon as the plant was in shape to work Mr. Leidigh notified the board of lands and building that the prison was ready to furnish labor to contractors whenever they were ready to close contracts.

The last legislature passed a law annulling the contract system in order that the state should run its own prison, and thus save any immense profits to a contractor. However $100,000 was appropriated to maintain the prison until Dorgan could be removed, and until the prisoners could be contracted out and make a revenue to the state. This appropriation was made on the basis of 40 cents per day for each prisoner. Warden Leidigh has proven that 20 cents a day will do this, and is endeavoring to make this saving to the state.

A gang of republican office holders are determined that this money shall not be saved, and are endeavoring to force another contractor on the people who will get 40 cents per day for each prisoner, thus robbing the people of 20 cents per day, and is to draw a $3,000 salary besides.

The Journal has been lying about and misrepresenting the governor and warden in this controversy ever since it began. No doubt they are to get their pay out of the stealings for their lies and misrepresentations.

The populist governor and warden are standing guard over that appropriation, and are fighting to save the people $75,000 in the next eighteen months. The matter is now in the supreme court for adjustment. Will the court do as well by the people as the populist officials?

MORE OR LESS HUMOROUS.

It is hard to believe that a man is telling the truth when you know you would lie were you in his place.—Boston Transcript.

"Mamma, where do eggs come from?" "Chickens, my dear." "Well, that's funny. Papa says that chickens come from eggs."—Harper's Round Table.

Patient—What? Three dollars for pulling a tooth? Well, you do earn money quickly! Dentist—Oh, if you prefer I can do it very slowly.—Roxbury Gazette.

Doctor—Countess, I should be glad if you would let me hear you cough. Countess—I don't feel disposed to do so just now. (To her maid Eliza, please cough as I did this morning.—Motto per Riders.

Hungry Higgins—Don't you believe that every bloke that kills himself is insane? Weary Watkins—Oh, I dunno. But I did know a feller once that shot himself because he couldn't git no work.—Indianapolis Journal.

"Now, Mex, what did you learn in school to-day?" "I—I—I forgot, papa." "You forget. Why, look at Charley Hopkins. He remembers everything he learns at school." "Oh, well, he ain't got so far to go to get home."—Elizabette Blatter.

"Well," said the Kentucky campaigner, "I have left absolutely nothing undone to win friends for our cause. I have considered no personal sacrifice too great. I have treated everybody in the country. I even drank water with the prohibitionist party and he's going to be right with us."—Washington Star.

The populists will be in the next campaign as the second party, at least. Democracy will not recover its latest defeat.

ORIGIN OF SONGS.

"Cheer, Boys, Cheer" was the work of Charles Mackay, the music being by Henry Russell. It was the outcome of an evening of conviviality in 1843.

"What Are the Wild Waves Saying?" a duet that was once immensely popular, was suggested to Dr. Joseph Edwards Carpenter by the conversation in "Dombey and Son."

"Rule, Britannia" is usually credited to James Thompson. It first appeared in a play entitled "Alfred," by Thompson and Mallet in 1740. The air was by Dr. Thomas Arne.

"The Wearing of the Green" exists in several forms and versions. The best known one was written by Dion Boucicault, the dramatist. It is sung by Shaun the Post in "Arrah-na-Pogue."

"A Life on the Ocean Wave" was the work of Epes Sargent, an American poet, the idea being suggested to him during a walk on the battery in New York one day when a high wind was blowing in from the sea. It was set to music by Henry Russell.

"The Blue Bells of Scotland" was the work of Annie McVicar, afterward Mrs. Grant, the daughter of a Scottish officer in the British army. The melody was long believed to be Scottish, but is now known to be of English origin, being an old English folk-song.

"The Last Rose of Summer," one of Patti's favorite songs, was the work of Thomas Moore. The melody is a very ancient Irish tune, formerly known as "The Groves of Blarney." This tune has been found in collections of Irish music at least two hundred years old.

BREEZY BITS.

Jack—Yes, poor John may have had his faults, but his heart was on the right side.

Wagge—Is it possible? No wonder he died!—Tid-Bits.

"So," said Pat, "they've been printin' the funeral notice as a man that wasn't dead yit. It's a foine fix he'd be in if he'd been wan of these people that believe everything in the newspapers!"—Tid-Bits.

Mrs. Billie—Don't you believe it's true, John, that a person partakes to a considerable extent of the nature of the creature he eats?

Mr. Billie—No, I've been eating fish all my life, and I can't swim a stroke.—Chicago Tribune.

Professor (visiting a student in his chambers)—How cold it is here! Do you never have a fire? How can you work in this temperature?

Student—Ah! professor, when I begin to feel cold, I just think of my exam, and then I perspire all over.—Leakings.

Last Christmas eve Mr. J. went upstairs to see if the children had hung up their stockings for Santa Claus, and found that little Fred had pinned his up in a prominent place with a slip of paper attached, containing this suggestive sentence: "The Lord loveth a cheerful giver."—Ex.
