Chickamauga.

инжанивнитивнитивний д

By Captain F. A. MITCHEL.

[Copywright, 1894, by American Press Association.]

CONTINUED FROM LAST WEEK. CHAPTER XV.

જાલમામના લાગામાં મોટેટ

TRIED. When Corporal Ratigan left Miss Bagge with the general, to whom he had unwillingly conducted her, he was in such a condition of mind that he forgot all about his horse and started to walk toward his camp. When a cavalryman shows such evidence of absence of mind, it is a sure sign that he is in a condition bordering on insanity. Ratigan walked some distance before it occurred to him that he was pursuing an unusual means of locomotion; then he turned back to get his horse. When he arrived at the place from which he had departed, Miss Baggs had gone. Mounting, he rode to his own camp, and upon reaching there he first went directly to his tent; then, shunning his comrades, stole away to a wood and threw himself on his face in the shade of a large tree and gave himself up to grief.

"O Lord, O Lord," he moaned, "if they'd organized corps of lovely women to be attached to each division of the army and the enemy, there'd be no more fightin for either cause. Each would fight the other about the women and the cause would hev to take care of itself." "Corporal Ratigan!"

The corporal put his hands to his ears and groaned.

"Corporal Ratigan, I say." Still the corporal would not hear. He knew that some one was approaching, for whether he would or not he could not help hearing his name called, each time more distinctly. Presently a soldier stood looking down at him.

"Corporal Ratigan," he said, "yer wanted at the headquarters of Colonel Maynard, commanding the -th bri-

"What's that for?" asked the corporal without changing his position. 'Witness for court martial.'

Why will people ask questions ex-planatory of disagreeable events or wis-fortunes, the answers to which they know we'll enough already? And why, when the information comes, will they "If ye say that again, Conover, Oi'll break every bone in yer body." "What's the mather wid ye, cor-

Ratigan by this time had got up from the ground, where he was lying, and spproached his tormentor.

"Don't ask me, Conover, me boy." "Why, Rats, yer lookin as if ye were goin to be tried yerself."

"Tried? Oi'm to suffer on the rack as one of me ancesters did once in the old Tower in Lunnon."

Ol'll doi. "

"Come, brace yerself, me boy. Yer in no condition to be goin before a court. What is it all anyway?"

"What is it all? A woman to be tried for her life. And I caught her. Oi'm to bear witness against her. O God, if they'd let me off by tyin me up by the thumbs, buckin and gaggin, carryin a log on me shoulders, drummed out of camp with shaved head and feathers behind me ears. O Lord, O Lord, Oi'll doi, Oi'll doi!"

The corporal mounted his horse and was soon jogging along at a snail's pace toward Colonel Maynard's headquarters. There he was directed to where the court was sitting.

"Corporal Ratigan, you're late," said the president sternly. The corporal saluted, but said nothing. He was directed to wait till some preliminaries had been disposed of, and he took position in a corner. It needed all the strength of which he was possessed to maintain himself on his legs, and he tried to keep his eyes from looking about the courtroom. He feared that if they rested on the prisoner, even for a moment, he would sink down on the floor, a heap of blue uniform and boots. Nevertheless the eyes will not always be controlled. Despite his efforts, Ratigan's gave involuntary glances here and there until suddenly they rested on the object they were expected to avoid, sitting opposite, surrounded by guards, pale, but self possessed, and a pair of glorious eyes looking at him with such sympathy and encouragement that the poor man felt as if the windows of heaven had been opened and an angel was looking out to give him strength. Once his eyes were riveted on hers there was no getting them away until he was suddenly aroused by a "Corporal Ratigan!" Mechanically he staggered to a place designated as a witness stand, and holding on to the back of a chair steadied himself to give his testimony.

"State how you first saw the prisoner tampering with the telegraph line on yesterday morning, Sept. -," said the judge advocate, an officer very tall, very slender and very serious looking.

"Oi didn't see her at all." "What?"

"It was too dark to see anything." "Well, state what you did see."

"I only thought I saw something." "Come, come," said the president sternly, "we have no time to waste. Tell the story of the capture." Thus commanded, the corporal braced himself to give the desired account. "Oi was ridin to camp-after hav-in posted the relief, and comin along the road-it was the road Oi was comin along. Oi-Oi-colonel, it was so dark none of ye could have seen yer hand before yer face." The corporal stopped and gave evidence of sinking

"Well, go on."

"There was somethin black in the road or by the side of it. Oi stopped to listen. Then Oi thought some one might be tamperin with the linemind ye, Oi only thought it—and Oi called on whoiver it was to surrender. Then Oi heard a 'get up,' and whativer it was dashed off. Oi followed it as fast as iver Oi could, callin on 'em to stop and firin me Colt. Divil a bit did

The corporal paused again. It looked as if he were not going to get any fur-

'Go on, my man." "Well, then we came to the camp of General -- 's division, and I was halted by the guards, while what Oi had seen got ahead. So Oi lost sight of it "Proceed." "Well, wasn't it the fault of the guards stoppin me and lettin the other go on, and no fault of mine?" 'Go on." "What's the use of goin on? Oi lost sight of what was tamperin with the

"But you overtook it."

"How can Oi swear it was the same?" There was a smile on the faces of those present. The questioner seemed puzzled at the corporal's device to avoid testifying against the prisoner.

"Did you not ride on and overtake what you had seen?"

"Divil a bit."

"I know better. You went on and found something in the road. What did

"Oi didn't find what Oi'd seen." "What had you seen?"

"Didn't Oi tell ye it was so dark that Oi couldn't see anything?"

"That won't do, corporal. You certainly followed something. Now, on coming up with it, what did you find it

"It wasn't what Oi followed. That, whativer it was, had gone out with the mornin light. Oi reckon it was some-thing ghostly." "Nonsense. Did you not find the prisoner lying in the grass?" "Oi did," replied the witness, as if his heart would break, and he again showed signs of collapse. "And you had reason to believe it was the person driving the buggy you "Oi didn't see any buggy. It was so dark"—impatiently—"the person driving whatever it was you saw.

"How could Oi know that?" "It was natural to infer that, there being a horse and buggy near, the pris-oner had been driving it."

"There was no buggy." "Well, the pieces."

"Now Oi would ask the court," said Ratigan, steadying himself to impress the members with the probability of his position, "if the person or whativer it was Oi saw tamperin with the wire moightent have turned off on another road and Oi suddenly lighted on this

"That'll do, corporal. You may step out and give the next witness your

"Oh, don't ask me, don't ask me. Oi niver endure this trial. Oi'll doi, the camp to which the first been taken after her capture. He testified that upon a proposition to search her she had voluntarily produced the dispatches, which were shown to him in court, and he identified them as the same as those she had given up.

A reading of these dispatches was called for, and they were read. In addition to those Miss Baggs deciphered when at the Fain plantation were two others, which were as follows: CRAWFISH SPRINGS, Ga., Sept. 14, 1863.

Mobile Burton you when on has from other oob from re-enforced Quadroon count us that to wet applause will can your undoubtedly cen-tury points orange Benjamin and been coming we join telegraph:

Pinned to this telegram was a paper bearing an attempt at explanation in the prisoner's handwriting:

To Burton (probably Burnside)

can we count

when can we count on your coming? Applause (some person, probably the signer) been re-enforced from some one telegraphs that Quadroon (probably Bragg) has been re-enforced from other

Washington, Sept. —, 1863.

Potts ready we result condition us if separated goes Jack all badly rapidly attack scattered the twentieth and doodle D shall but I in the but well plaster Arabia are up should present dread the concentrated jet be by should our enemy closing we to.

There was no attempted explanation with this telegram. Either the prisoner had made no headway with it, or she had not sufficient time, probably both, though it was more difficult to decipher than any of the others.

These telegrams had been sent to general headquarters and an interpretation of them furnished, which was read to the court:

CRAWFISH SPRINGS, Ga., Sept. 14, 1863. To Burnside: Halleck telegraphs that you will join us. When can we count on your coming? Bragg has undoubtedly been re-enforced from Virginia and other points.

CRAWFISH SPRINGS, Ga., Sept. 16, 1868. To the Secretary of War: All goes well. We are badly separated, but closing up rapidly. If the enemy should attack us in our present scattered condition, I should dread the result. But by the present 20th we shall be concentrated and ready.

The reading of these dispatches produced an impression on the court very unfavorable to the prisoner. She had held the very life of the army in her hands. Had she got through the lines with these two ciphers and their interpretations she would have supplied the enemy with such information as would put an end to all uncertainty and insure an attack on the Army of the Cumberland before it could be concentrated or supported by other troops. This would have resulted in its annihilation. There was really no defense to make. and the defending counsel simply placed his client on the mercy of the court, hoping that, being a woman, death might not be the penalty. The room was cleared and the verdict considered. The court were not long in convicting the accused of being a spy and amenable to the treatment of spies, but as to the punishment there was a great di- in great danger of capture. The women versity of opinion. Some thought that imprisonment in a northern penitentiary would be a sufficient atonement. There were those who argued that this would not have any effect to deter others from similar acts at a time when the army was in so critical a situation. Then the importance of the dispatches Miss Baggs was attempting to deliver to the enemy, the fact that their deliv-

Ratigan addresses the court.

would have given any general prompt to take advantage of an army's weakness an opportunity to destroy the Army of the Cumberland, acted seriously upon those who were disposed toward clemency. Some members of the court argued that the prisoner had acted as a man and must take the consequences, the same as if she were a man. There was none but knew that in this view of the case she would be immediately hanged. The disputants soon ranged themselves on opposite sides, the one in favor of an extreme course, the other of a life imprisonment. But the critical position of the army and the enormity of the offense finally won over the latter, and the case was compromised by the convicted woman being sentenced to be shot at sunrise the next morning. The verdict and sentence were approved within two hours of the finding, and Colonel Mark Maynard was ordered to see that the sentence was duly carried

CHAPTER XVI.

"YOU SHALL NOT DIE." Scarcely had the court martial brought in a verdict when an order came to Colonel Maynard to move his brigade across the Chickamauga creek by way of Dyers' bridge, to be ready early the it were necessary to take upon himself it did not become him to pry into. following day to make a reconnoissance beyond the Pigeon mountains. He or- which she was sentenced. There was sidered an ambulance for his prisoner to lence between them, during which Miss ride in, since he had no option but to Fitz Hugh stood looking at him in adtake her with him. The distance to be miration, mingled with inquiry. She traversed was but a few miles, and al- knew that some secret charm was at though it was nearly sunset before the work within, but she did not know what command broke camp it was barely dark it was. when the tents were pitched in the new situation. Luckily a house was found for the reception of the prisoner, and I will take you to your lines myself this the headquarters of the colonel com- pight." manding were established near it. As soon as Maynard's tent was pitched he went inside and shut himself up repulsion at carrying out a sentence upon a woman which had once been well nigh distracted. One thing was certain-he could not save Miss Baggs without sacrificing himself. He was ready to sacrifice himself if he could do so honorably. He might even consider the matter of doing that which he had no right to do, but since the davil may care days of his scouting a new world had opened to him, which made the time for another. struggle more complicated than it would he loved devotedly, and any obloquy he might take upon himself must be shared by her and his son. He knew that if he at the prisoner's escape, he would have a fair chance of success. He was charggive him power over her person. On the other hand, such a violation of trust was too horrible even for consideration, and if he did not so regard it the penalty he must suffer-disgrace, if not at the price of wrong. death-would well nigh kill his wife. For a long while he revolved these conto a decision. He would suffer the torture of carrying out the sentence. He would do his duty to his country, his wife and his son. He had scarcely arrived at this decision when a message came from the do?"

prisoner asking to see him. The racking of his whole nature, which had been partially allayed by his decision, came back to him with the summons. He dreaded an interview. He felt that the resolution he had formed was of too little inherent strength to warrant placing himself under so great a temptation. But his memory took him back to the jail in which he had been confined on the eve of his own intended execution at Chattanooga, and he thought how he would have regarded any one who would refuse him such a request at such a time. He got up and walked over to the house where the prisoner was confined.

He paused a few moments before entering, in order to collect himself, then walked slowly up the steps. The guard stood at attention and brought his piece to a "present," but Maynard did not see him, did not return his salute. He opened the door, entered the house and in a few minutes was in a room in which the prisoner was confined. She was standing by a window. As he entered she turned and stood with her hands hanging clasped before her, her sorrowful eyes fixed steadily upon him.

"Colonel Maynard," she said, "I have sent for you to ask you to deliver my last messages. I once met you in the house of one who is dear to you. There I received shelter from the storm which raged without, but which was nothing to me beside another evil that threatened me. I was sore pressed and in that house—an elderly lady, a young girl who visited there and your wife-took me in at a great risk to themselves. Your wife certainly had much at stake, for your honor might be involved. I have sent for you now to ask you to say to them that I have treasured their remembrance and their kindness

She waited a moment for him to accept the trust. She might have waited till the crack of doom without a reply. He had no power to utter a word. He simply bowed.

"I desire also to intrust this keepsake to you, to be sent to my brother.'

She took a locket from about her neck and held it up before him. On it was painted a miniature of a young man in the uniform of a Confederate officer. Maynard looked at it and started back, with a cry, as if pierced with a redhot

"He-he is"-

"My brother."

"Oh, God!" He staggered to the wall and leaned against it, shivering. "You know him, colonel. There is no necessity for deceit now. I have long known the singular circumstances that surround you and him-that you both loved the same woman; that you won." "And that twice-twice he gave me my life?" "That he never told me."

"Ah, he never told you that?" replied Maynard, a kind of wonder in his tones. When at Mrs. Fain's plantation, I discovered under whose roof I was sheltered. Your wife had never seen me, and I determined that it would be best for all that I should not make myself

Maynard stood in amazement at these developments, in horror at the situation as he now knew it to be.

"And you are the sister of Cameron Fitz Hugh?"

"I am. I am Caroline Fitz Hugh." "You shall not die." When Colonel Maynard spoke these vords, there was a grandeur in his tone, his figure, the lines of his countenance. the light in his eye, strangely inconsistent with a resolution he had made the moment before they were uttered. He had on the instant reversed his decision made not ten minutes before to do his duty, in the ordinary acceptance of what that duty was. He had determined be so trusted, but her eyes were lowerto save the woman before him, even if far greater ignominy than the death to

"How can my death be prevented?" "I am charged with your execution.

What was that subtle influence, far stronger than battalions of infantry or batteries of artillery, which gave it to from every one. The matter of the life one not present, unconscious of his powin his keeping, his desire to save his er, to hold Mark Maynard over a preciprisoner, the impossibility of his doing pice and to cast him into a black gulf so except by betraying his trust and con- below? Was it circumstances that had niving at her escape, were weighing terribly upon him. A desperate struggle the very part Maynard was now called ing to the house. "Oi'll never draw aber again." between his duty as an officer and his upon to play? Was it love that had given Maynard the bride Fitz Hugh was to have possessed? Was it some invisipassed upon himself was driving him | ble fiend that had made Maynard a robber of that bride from the man to whom he twice owed his life and was now bringing on his punishment? These were indirect causes, but they cannot explain that inexpressible, intangible sense of honor which will lead a man, to speak paradoxically, to commit a crime and sacrifice himself at the same

The expression on Miss Fitz Hugh's then have been. He had a wife whom face as she heard Maynard speak words which would save her from death and give her liberty underwent a change. For a moment after they were spoken could conceive it to be his duty, or if there was a delighted look, but as she he could make up his mind without the realized what they mean to the man approval of his conscience to connive, who would save her it was transformed into an expression which can only be described as bordering on the confines ed with the execution, and this would of angel land. There was a holy look in her eyes, a radiance of purity from the soul expressed in every feature. There was the superhuman attribute of choosing death before life and liberty

"No, colonel, we Fitz Hughs cannot accept sacrifice, and especially wrong, siderations in his mind and at last came from others. We give; we are not accustomed to receive.

Maynard stood gazing at her with a look as if in refusing the sacrifice she had stabbed him. "What then," he said at last, "can I

"Send the news of my condition, of my expected"-she shuddered at prononncing the word-"execution to our lines. Knowing that I am condemned, they can bring what influence they may be able to save me."

"It will avail nothing." "Try it. Fate, luck, Providence works strangely at times. Let us push on and leave the rest to a higher power." The colonel looked at his wate "It is now half past 9. We are but a few miles from the Confederate lines. Your brother is"-"In -- 's cavalry division and on the Confederate right. I heard from him only a few days ago. He was then at Ringold."

"That is not far from here." "There may be time," she said hope-

"Some one must steal through the lines. If not shot, he may accomplish something. In half an hour I shall be"-"You?" "Yes, I! I will not trust this only thread on which your life hangs to any one else, though I confess," he added gloomily, "I have no confidence in it." "No. colonel, I cannot accept this from you. You are the commander here and are all that stands between me and death. You must remain here and send a messenger." "Who would I dare intrust with such "Send for the man who captured me, TAKE NOTICE!

Book and Job Printing

County Printing and Supplies

Lithographing . . . Book Binding

From the simplest style to the most elaborate.

Engraving Of all kinds.

Blank Books

Legal Blanks

The Red Line Series, the handsomest Blank in the country, printed on Bond Paper at less expense than other houses furnish them on ordinary flat paper.

Stereotyping

From superior hard metal.

Printers' Rollers Made by an expert from the best and most durable material.

Country Printers

Having county or other work, which they cannot themselves handle, would make money by writing

WEALTH MAKERS PUB. CO. Lincoln, Neb.

Corporal Ratigan. Let him bear the GOLD

The colonel looked at her a moment, as if to question why this man should ed. He knew there was a secret which at once. If not, I will go myself. And if the mission fails"-The words were not finished, for he well knew how precious time was, and turning from the room and the house

"I will send him, if he can be found strode rapidly toward his tent. He had gone but a dozen paces before he heard some one call.

"Colonel!" He did not hear. The call was repeated. "Colonel!"

A man approached him, whom in the darkness he did not recognize. "Is there no hope, colonel?" the man asked in a choked voice.

"Who are you?" "The man who captured her," po it-

"Corporal Ratigan?"

"The same." "This is fortunate. Come with me." The two started together to a thicket wherein they would neither be observed nor heard.

"Oi'm hangin round, ye see, colonel. Oi'm away from camp without leave. Oi hope they'll shoot me for a deserter." Colonel Maynard did not speak till they reached the thicket. Then, turnnestly: "You would like to save her, would you not?"

"God knows I would."

ing and facing Ratigan, he said ear-

"Then go to the picket line and get through unobserved if possible. Go to Ringold and find a Confederate officer -Cameron Fitz Hugh, if he is there. Tell him that his sister is condemned to be shot at sunrise tomorrow morning. Say that Colonel Mark Maynard sends him this information, that he may use whatever influence he possesses-take any measures he may consider honorable-to save her. Tell him," the colonel lowered his voice, "that I offered to attempt to do so, taking ruin upon myself, but she would not accept the sacrifice. Go; there is no time to lose. When the sun rises, it will be too late."

"Oh, colonel," cried the man in agony, "there is so little time!" "Go! It is not yet 10 o'clock. We have six hours."

The corporal was moving away when the colonel stopped him.

"You will need the countersign." Ratigan returned, and the colonel whispered it in his ear, "Carnifax Ferry. "

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

Education... ... OF VOTERS ...

Should be the watchword of every Populist from now until after election 1896. The Farmers Tribune Published at Des Moines, Iowa, has made a special rate, giving that large eight-page paper for FIFTY CENTS per year. This rate is good only until May lst, so all should take advantage of the TRIBUNE is an educator The TRIBUNZ is an educator and stands squarely on the Omaha platform. It has a department of general news as well as Populist news. It has a large list of correspondents and its editorials are able and instructive. It is a vote-maker. While the price of this able paper is FIFTY CENTS all should become subscribers. Remember, this rate is for April only. Samples sent on application. Send in at once. Send a club if possible. Address

Farmers Tribune,

CROWNS

with Gold and Porcelain Crowns, the finest and most durable crowns ever made, and unexcelled

We are putting up the finest removable bridge work on gold and French Vulcanite ever made, superior to anything ever before offered to the public. Can be worn with the greatest comfort, and costs less than ordinary bridge work. Is easy to repair, but seidom We also breaks or needs repairing. put up artificial teeth with gold palate the finest artificial teeth ever made. All work warranted first class or no sale. This style of work is supreme perfection for public speakers. Alumin can be used instead of gold. if desired. The back under molars can be restored with the greatest perfection which are so useful, and prevent he cheeks from sinking in.

Dr. A. P. Burrus, ROOMS 9 AND 10, 1208 O STREET, Lincoln, Neb. For one month only we will make tra low rates for spot cash. Best $ only $5 and the best $5 at only $2.50 Perfect fit warranted or no sale.

Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer has restored gray hair to its original color and prevented baldness in thou ands of cases. It will do so to you.

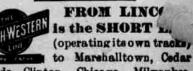

BUY "DIRECT FROM PACTORY BEST MIXED

At WHOLESALE PRIOFS, Delivered Free For Houses, Barns, Roofs, all colors, and SAVE Middlemen's profits. In use 51 years. Endorse by Grange and Farmers' Alliance. Low prices will surprise you. Write for samples. O. W. INGERSOLL, 253 Plymouth St., Brooklyn, N. Y. Hot Springs Special This is the title of the new train to Hot Springs, Arkansas, inaugurated by the Missouri Pacific from St. Louis and which affords passengers perfect service from Lincoln. These Hot Springs are not situaned in the polar regions but passes a climate in January as mild as South Dakota climate in June. Illustrated and descriptive books furnished free on application.

City ticket office 1201 O St. F. D. CORNELD, C. P. & T. A.

Rapids, Clinton, Chicago, Milwaukes, Madison, Oshkosh, Fon du Lac, Stoux City, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth In Chicago connections are made with 22 diverging lines. In St. Paul, Union depot—with 10 lines—unsurpassed time made to eastern and northeastern cities. For tickets, etc., call at city office 117

So. 10th St., or depot corner S and St