Buy a Smooth White Skin For Your Face!

It probably needs renewing, for it is rough, red, freckled, blotched or pimply, until it has become repulsive instead of attractive. Healthy skin is always beautiful. Fine sun and wind, impure soaps and cosmetics injure the skin.

Viola Cream

cleanses, nourishes and restores the skin, making it soft, white and beautiful. It is not a cosmetic—does not cover up, but removes blemishes. It is harmless and always does just what we claim for it.

HEART DISEASE. SOME FACTS REGARDING THE RAPID INCREASE OF HEART TROUBLES.

Do not be Alarmed but Look for the Cause.

Heart troubles, at least among Americans, are certainly increasing and while this may be largely due to worry and excitement of American business life, it is more often the result of weak stomachs, and poor digestion.

Real organic heart disease is incurable, but not one case in a hundred of heart trouble, is organic.

The close relation between heart trouble and poor digestion is because both organs are controlled by branches of the same great nerves, the Sympathetic and Pneumogastic.

In another way also, the heart is affected by that form of poor digestion, which causes gas and fermentation from half digested food: there is a feeling of oppression and heaviness in the chest, caused by pressure of the distended stomach on the heart and lungs, interfering with their action; hence arises palpitation and short breath.

Poor digestion also poisons the blood, makes it thin and watery, which irritates and weakens the heart.

The most sensible treatment for heart troubles is to improve the digestion and to insure the prompt assimilation of food.

This can best be done by the regular use, after meals, of some safe, pleasant and effective digestive preparation, like Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, which may be found at most drug stores and which contain valuable, harmless digestive elements, in a pleasant, convenient form.

It is safe to say that the regular, persistent use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at meal time, will cure any form of stomach trouble except cancer of the stomach.

Full size packages of the Tablets sold by most druggists at 50 cents or by mail from Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich.

LITTLE DIFFERENCE.

Not a Madame Tussaud but a Tussaud Just the Same. An amusing anecdote of the dock strike has been related by Mr. John Burns to a London correspondent, and it is repeated in the Argonaut.

It is a story of two suits of clothes. One day the newness of Mr. Burns's attire aroused the suspicions of a political adversary, who accused him on the strength of this evidence of "making a fine thing out of the poor dockers."

Hereupon Mr. Burns insisted on relating the history of his new suit. It was very simple. Mme. Tussaud being desirous of adding a wax model of Mr. Burns to her collection, she expressed a wish to present him faithfully "in his habit as he lived."

"Very well," said Mr. Burns; "but if you want to take my clothes, it is only fair to give me another rig-out." So she did, and hence the gloss of novelty. The explanation was accepted, but sometime afterward Mr. Burns once more appeared in a new suit, which was so evidently not the same suit that his old antagonist sarcastically shouted: "You didn't get them at Mme. Tussaud's." It appeared that Mr. Louis Tussaud had also set up a model of Mr. Burns in his rival establishment, in Regent street, and he, too, desired to strip the dockers' champion of his garments.

In common fairness, the latter was bound to stipulate for the same terms. Thus once more, the explanation was simple. The suspicious suit was not Mme. Tussaud's but it was a Tussaud suit for that.

The Hunter's Story.

(From the Post, Houston, Texas.) One day last autumn a reporter of this paper and a popular drummer started from Orange, Texas, for a drive across country; the reporter on business for his paper and the drummer to sell goods.

On the return trip they heard the report of a shot gun, and soon Ezra Peet emerged from the wood with his dogs. The drummer knew him. "You are looking wonderfully spry," said the drummer, "how came the change?"

"That's all right and I am right glad to tell you and that newspaper friend of yours what wrought all this change in me," said Mr. Peet as he took a seat on a fallen log alongside our buggy.

"Sixty-two years ago I came to Texas, seven of which I have spent on yonder farm. One day while sitting in my chair I grew dizzy, fell backward out of it, partly lost my power of speech for a time and, to be brief, I was taken with a stroke of paralysis. For months and years my wife purchased medicines of all kinds for me, I took them regularly but to no avail and I had given up all hope of ever being relieved of my suffering when I was requested to use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. When I sent for them I was suffering intense pains in my left side, feeling absolutely worthless physically and suffering a loss in my weight of about twenty pounds. To tell you the truth I had no faith in them when they did arrive for had I not spent money after money without receiving a particle of benefit. But I changed my mind and I had taken the contents of the first box for I felt a decided and constant improvement all around and every member of my family noticed it also. I kept on improving every day, by and by I could walk as well as ever, just as you see me here, and all this was accomplished by taking the contents of about half a dozen boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills according to directions. Now I keep them in our medicine chest all the time and would not be without them under any circumstances. My wife has been taking the pills lately owing to the weak condition of her system and she, too, claims that they are benefiting her right along. Yes, sir, to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I certainly attribute the change for the better you see in me today and I am ready to commend them as a great remedy in cases for which they are intended. Yes, sir, for the benefit of the sick I cannot help but say something on every occasion about these wonderful pills and I do so gladly, too."

BEAR AS A LUNATIC.

BRUIN HAD TO BE PUT IN A STRAITJACKET.

A Very Remarkable Case—The Interesting Query Arises as to Whether Animals May Not Be Mentally Unbalanced.

HE imprisonment of a black bear in a private Western asylum to be treated for temporary insanity must have appeared to many to be an incredible news item when it was published. But there appears to be no doubt of the main facts. The bear was of the order ursus vulgus known as black.

He had some special talents; whether laid on by a persevering showman or innate in his bear cerebrum we do not know. But he was valuable as a performer, and any vagaries of his bear reason was a loss to his owner. When, therefore, either under stress of exhibitory work or irregularity of diet, he began to exhibit signs of shall we say mental or instinctive disturbance, such as sucking his paws out of season and eating the beer bottles after drinking the lager, his master consulted a local alienist, and under advice his bearship was transferred to a respectable asylum to be treated according to the most advanced practice in melancholia and frenzy, says the New York World.

This was in exact accord with the tendency of both modern mercy and modern science, neither of which believes in sacrificing the dumbest beast so long as he can furnish any information to man.

Well, the bear having been taken in charge by an enthusiastic savant, was carefully watched and tended, and as he gave himself for the first three days up to an almost uninterrupted siesta, it was hoped that he would sleep off his mental or nervous trouble. But on the fourth day he woke up ready for business, and exhibited such well defined symptoms of advanced hysteria that it was thought best to get him into a padded cell, where his complaint could be the more conveniently diagnosed through the bars. It was while in this cell that a hasty sketch was made of him by an artist.

The whole procedure appears to have occasioned an acrimonious division of opinion in the neighboring country. The more ignorant agricultural population resented the attempt of science to associate animals with human beings even in alleviation, and it is certain that the patients in the asylums protested vigorously, if not always contentedly, for the dementia of the bear made itself manifest in his incarceration by the most hideous roarings, growlings, gnawing of his bars and squealings indescribable, and the two occupants of the adjoining cells must have had vocal proof enough of their most dreadful insane imaginings.

All attempts to reduce him to subjection by morphine and other anaesthetics having failed, the ingenuity of the keepers was called into play by an endeavor to put an extemporized straight-jacket on him in the shape of a leather harness; but this proved abortive, and it was ultimately found that the only approximate way of treating him at all was through his food.

It does not appear that any definite conclusions have been arrived at with respect to the susceptibility of bears to mental disturbance or the efficacy of subjecting them to human treatment. What were regarded as the maniacal paroxysms came on at regular intervals and subsided only with exhaustion. But they were characterized rather by the symptoms of rabies than of insanity and were accompanied by frothings and epileptic disturbance of the voluntary muscular system.

The performances of an irresponsible animal whose strength when fully exerted threatened to destroy the inclosure in which he was confined appears to have had enough interest to draw a great number of visitors to the place, but anything like a determinate prognosis of the animal's disease has not been forthcoming.

It is worth stating here that a curious and inexplicable superstition or notion appears to have come down to us that animals do become insane.

Youat and several other dog experts lean to the opinion that rabies induces a species of insanity in animals. Most of the herders in the West attribute a stampede of cattle to a maniacal impulse, and it is a prevalent belief in the Orient that a donkey can see spirits and is often driven to desperation by them. Some of the early Saramaic writers prescribed for insane criminals and as late as the fifteenth century amulets were sold to drive evil spirits out of white horses. There is no doubt that our modern association of the white horse to the red-headed girl comes to us from Morocco, where the Gauls were the first veterinarians, and made a specialty of treating white horses.

With regard to the bear, we have only to look at Goldsmith's "Animated Nature" to find it seriously laid down that the bear goes to sleep in the winter when he is fattest, and lives by sucking his paws in a somnambulistic way.

From a scientific point of view it is just possible that the admission of the bear to the list of public performers has superinduced a tendency to paresis, so well marked in other performers; but that is a matter which can be left to a larger induction than the Western asylum has yet furnished.

Blue eyes are said to be the weakest.

Important to Sufferers.

HOW YOU MAY OBTAIN A LASTING CURE FROM PILES.

No Surgical Operation, No Pain, Trifling Expense—A Simple, Harmless Remedy but it Does the Work.

There are some people who have piles as frequently and regularly as other people have colds.

Any little bowel trouble will bring them on, any extra exertion, as in lifting will produce them, and in fact will appear without any provocation. Piles, however, are much more serious than a cold, as the tendency is always to grow worse until the trouble becomes deep seated and chronic, or develops into some fatal rectal disease.

While there are many pile remedies which give relief, yet there is but one which not only gives instant relief but at the same time makes a permanent cure, and that is the well known Pyramid Pile Cure.

This remedy is composed of simple harmless, vegetable ingredients, but combine so effectively and act so promptly and thoroughly that it cures every form of piles whether itching, blind, bleeding or protruding.

In long standing cases the Pyramid Pile Cure has proven to be the only certain cure except a surgical operation, and its advantages over an operation are many, as it is painless, causes no delay or interference with daily occupation and, last but not least, is cheaper than any surgical operation could possibly be, costing but a dollar a package at any drug store.

The cases that the Pyramid Pile Cure will not reach are so few that physicians are doing away with operations for piles and depending on this cheap but effective remedy to accomplish a complete cure, and it never disappoints except in cases beyond the reach of medical skill.

The Pyramid Pile Cure is prepared by the Pyramid Drug Co. of Albion, Mich., and for sale by druggists everywhere at 50 cents per package. Each package contains a treatise on cause and cure of piles, together with testimonials from every section of this country.

HE COULD NOT LIE.

He Was Mixed Up About the Location of the Indian Ocean.

There was an old man with a wooden leg seated on a pile of chain cable before a marine store in South street, relates a writer in the New York World, and as I took a seat beside him I said:

"There is probably a good story connected with the loss of that leg. I take it that you are an old sailor."

"Yes, sir," he answered. "I used to be a deep-water sailor, but since the loss of that leg I have had to remain ashore and act as ship-keeper."

"But about the leg. How did you lose it?"

"Do you want a truthful story, sir, or one of those fancy yarns they put in the papers?"

"Just as you like."

"Well, I couldn't tell you a lie. I may have been a hard man in my day, but lying was not one of my sins. It must be the solemn truth or nothing."

"Drive ahead."

"Well, sir, I lost that leg in the Indian ocean by a shark. The ship I was in was becalmed, and I crawled out on the bowsprit to catch a curious bird which had settled down and gone to sleep. I was nearly up to it when I feel a sudden numbness in that leg. I thought it might be rheumatics, but just then the second mate sings out: 'Lay in, Tom, before he comes after your other one! We want no man aboard this ship without at least one leg!'

"What's the bloomin' row, Mr. Martin? Tasks of him as I looks back."

ARMAGEDDON.

The new industrial and political song book.

It contains 150 pages 7x9 inches size. Splendid new words and new music. Pronounced by all incomparably superior to any book that has yet appeared.

H. E. Tansworth says of it: "It is the best song book yet published. A A A introduces it into every household in the land. Our local campaign speakers and committees ought to see that it has the widest circulation."

Hartford City Arena: "Any give club supplied with it will command the crowd."

Rocky Mountain News: "Best of anything in the line that we have seen."

Missouri World: "It fills a long felt want."

Gen. Van Dervoort: "I congratulate you on your great work. The whole country will sing this music."

New York Voice: "A collection of songs for the times, with bright, catchy words and good stirring music."

The Sledge Hammer: "Every one [of the songs] is a gem. No chaff in the whole book."

Marshalltown (Iowa) Populist: "Should be in the hands of everyone who wishes to make a hit during the campaign."

Prof. George D. Herron: "I believe your book of songs will be of immeasurable and divine service in quickening and pervading the great movement for the social change which is manifesting itself everywhere among the common people. It will inspire the people with courage and cheer and fellowship in the great struggle that is before them."

Prof. W. M. Ross of Indiana, the great solo singer of "The Van Buren National Team," says: "These songs have a real merit from a literary point of view, while at the same time they are not at all lacking in the musical quality which must necessarily be present before any song touches the chord of popularity. They are remarkable for their fervid patriotism and broad humanity. In fact, if the People's party rises to the patriotic level of these songs, we have little doubt of its ultimate success as a party. The songs strike the whole octave of human sympathy. Sparkling humor, keen wit and biting sarcasm, as well as the loftier patriotic themes, are touched in turn by the talented author."

Copies of Armageddon for sale at this office, will be mailed to any address at 30 cents each, or $3.00 per dozen.
