MORPHINE HABIT CURED.

A YOUNG MAN'S BATTLE WITH DISEASE LED TO THE USE OF THIS DRUG.

He Fought Heroically and Finally Found a Cure for Both the Disease and the Habit. What He Has to Say About it.

From the Register, Iola, Kansas.

Two years ago last May, Eugene Ibrig, a young farmer living near Iola, Kansas, suffered a severe attack of sciatica, resulting from a sprain followed by exposure in wet weather.

After lying thus for two weeks he was induced by a friend to begin taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. He had no faith in them, but everything else had failed and so in desperation he tried these.

He began taking Pink Pills his system had become so permeated with the poison that he could take half a tablet painfully at a single dose. His last doctor had told him that he could never be cured of sciatica so long as he continued to take the morphine, and he tried heroically to break the habit, but without avail.

I, Eugene Ibrig, being of lawful age, do solemnly swear that I have read the foregoing article and that all the statements therein made regarding my illness and its cure are true. I feel sure that I owe my present health and strength, if not my life to Pink Pills.

[Signed.] EUGENE IBRIG, Sworn and subscribed to before me, a notary public, in and for the County of Allen, state of Kansas, this 11th day of January, 1896. J. H. VAN DYKE, Notary Public.

I hereby certify that I have personal knowledge of the case above cited and that the statements made in the foregoing article are true.

[Signed.] W. J. EVANS, Druggist.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are not a patent medicine in the sense that name implies. They were first compounded as a prescription and used as such in general practice by an eminent physician.

How Long, Oh! Lord, How Long? How much longer will the moneyed interests through the professors they employ in the Universities, their daily press, and other "tools," keep the people in ignorance of the plain facts of history and of their sophisms.

A Dangerous Man.

The erstwhile railroad attorney, Thomas B. Reed, in his contemptible treatment of the members of the people's party in congress representing over one million and a quarter voters or 6,000,000 people, proves beyond peradventure, the small nature of the man, his total lack of broad statesmanlike qualities, and his total lack of any conception of the ideals of republican government.

The State Sugar Beet Bulletin.

The experiment station of the University of Nebraska has just issued bulletin No 44 containing a description of the experiments in the culture of the sugar beet in Nebraska during the years 1894 and 1895. The bulletin explains at length and by means of carefully prepared data the cause of the failure of beets to lay by a large amount of sugar during the season of '95.

IS IT A TRIFLE?

THAT COMMON TROUBLE, ACID DYSPEPSIA OR SOUR STOMACH.

Now Recognized as a Cause of Serious Disease.

Acid dyspepsia, commonly called heartburn or sour stomach, is a form of indigestion resulting from fermentation of the food. The stomach being too weak to promptly digest it, the food remains until fermentation begins, filling the stomach with gas, and a bitter, sour, burning taste in the mouth is often present.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have been placed before the public and are sold by druggists every where at 50 cents per package. It is prepared by the Stuart Chemical Co., Marshall, Mich., and while it promptly and effectually restores a vigorous digestion, at the same time it is perfectly harmless and will not injure the most delicate stomach, improves the appetite and makes life worth living.

ARMAGEDDON.

The new industrial and political song book. It contains 150 pages 7x9 inches size. Splendid new words and new music. Pronounced by all incomparably superior to any book that has yet appeared.

It is the best song book yet published. It is the best into every household in the land. Our local campaign speakers and committees ought to see that it has the widest circulation.

Barford City Arena: "A fine job supplied with it will command the crowds."

Rocky Mountain News: "Best of anything in the line that we have seen."

Missouri World: "It fills a long felt want."

Gen. Van Dervoort: "I congratulate you on your great work. The whole country will sing this music."

New York Voice: "A collection of songs for the times, with bright, catchy words and good stirring music."

The Sledge Hammer: "Every one [of the songs] a gem. No chaff in the whole book."

Marshalltown (Iowa) Populist: "Should be in the hands of every one who wishes to make a hit during the campaign."

Prof. George D. Herron: "I believe your book of songs will be of immeasurable and divine service in quickening and pervading the great movement for the social changes which is manifesting itself everywhere among the common people. It will inspire the people with courage and cheer and fellowship in the great struggle that is before them."

Prof. W. M. Ross of Indiana, the great solo singer of "The Van Bennett National Team," says: "Have taken pains to run through the work and pronounce it a grand collection of words and a high order of music."

The Farm Field and Fireside says: "It has been left to Mr. George Howard Gibson to introduce a new tone into the songs of the party, and to write a series of patriotic songs which are happily expressed by any in our literature for loftiness of motive and real merit from a literary point of view, while at the same time they are not lacking in the musical quality which is most necessary to be present before any song touches the chord of popularity. They are remarkable for their fervid patriotism and broad humanity. In fact, if the people's party rises to the patriotic level of these songs, we have little doubt of its ultimate success as a party. The songs strike the whole octave of human sympathy. Sparkling humor, keen wit and biting sarcasm, as well as the fiercest patriotic themes, are touched in turn by the talented author."

AN OLD NEBRASKA SETTLER.

He Has Kept Tab on Republican Thieves for Twenty-five Years.

The first thing politically that attracted my attention after landing in Lincoln was the impeachment of Governor Butler. The charges against him were that he had loaned public money to himself and that he had loaned to others on second mortgage. For several years it was counted that the state had lost several thousand dollars but finally the advance in price of property brought back all the money with interest, that governor Butler loaned and his impeachment was expunged from the records.

Lieutenant Governor James was made governor to fill the vacancy made by the impeachment of Governor Butler. His most noted act of statesmanship was the squandering of thirteen thousand dollars of school money which had to be replaced by the legislature from the general fund. Nothing was done about punishing the criminal.

The next act of brilliant statesmanship was one authorizing the courts to give judgment against the state. Under this law Stout obtained a judgment of forty or fifty thousand. The attorney-general allowed the matter to go upon the record in such a shape that it was difficult to open the case before the supreme court, but Marquette did it at the request of the governor. In addition to his regular salary for serving the state, the attorney general received from some one a span of horses, harness and new wagon. But the law and judgment was set aside by the supreme court.

The next legislature passed a bill to pay the same man seven thousand dollars for the stone chips left on the penitentiary grounds. It was understood that this was a compromise to mollify the decision of the supreme court in the other case.

The next was the paying of a bill brought by the Journal company. A contract was made in writing to do a certain amount of printing for a certain sum. The work was done and the auditor paid as the contract read. But the company wanted about seven thousand dollars more. The auditor would not pay it. An appeal was made to the supreme court for a mandamus order compelling the auditor to pay, but the court decided the bill had been paid in full. The next legislature yielded and the bill was paid the second time.

Away back, before the war, Major Pearman was scared out of a year's growth by some Indians out on the Platte. The bill to pay him four thousand dollars was up in every legislature, but as long as anyone was present who knew of the matter it failed to pass. Finally in 1889 it went through and the money was paid.

Next came the Kendall school land steal. Three or four wealthy men pretended to buy or lease all the desirable school land in the state. Then when a genuine purchaser or leaser came, the land which he wanted was taken but for a hundred or two dollars it could be gotten. So every actual settler was bled and thousands of acres left not either sold or rented. It is so today, hundreds of thousands of our school fund are laying idle so far as yielding a revenue for our schools, but some one gets the interest on that money.

The testimony given in the trial of the state officers three years ago is fresh in the minds of the people. Not less than one hundred thousand dollars was stolen from the state treasury under guise of bills for the penitentiary and the several insane asylums. The court decided that state officers could not be punished when they stole by proxy.

The crowning glory of republican statesmanship was attained under Governor Crouse. Making two bankers the custodian of public funds without bondsmen. The loss to the state of $236,000.00 was the fruit of such foolishness. Then his bull-headedness in keeping Hill-ton, oil inspector, in office, saddling a loss upon the state of not less than six thousand dollars was equally commendable. We will say nothing about the centennial Fair commissioner and other appointees of this noble governor.

To gather up the thefts and defalcation of counties and cities will require another chapter. It is clear to be seen that republican rogues are in the hands of republican courts. Public officers are more and more free with public money and the end is not yet.

From a Bed of Lavender.

She who owns a bed of lavender may make it a very pretty and poetical source of pocket money, as well as an artistic delight. From its fragrant blue depths she can gather many a silver dollar in the course of a summer, as its treasures find a ready sale among women who love dainty things. In Southern California good-sized lavender beds keep many women supplied with spending money, for the long, slender stems in blossom sell readily for a cent apiece, and those whose purse of plenty and hours of leisure admit of luxurious bits of fancy work, see a poetical fitness in working up the lovely old-fashioned flower into choice and dainty articles. For birthday and holiday gifts, and for church fairs and bazaars nothing could be sweeter than pretty things that can be made from lavender stalks.

A beauty-loving little woman has recently fashioned some exquisite articles of fancy work, which are useful, too, in a very dainty way, using her material long, smooth lavender stalks in bloom and many yards of lavender-colored baby-ribbon. With taste and skill her deft fingers wove in and out, between the slender stalks, shining rows of ribbon, until at last there lay a shimmering lavender-tinted and lavender-scented fan—large and substantial enough for actual use, but so fairy-like and delicate that one would be content to admire its beauty as a fan which might be used, but should not.

The fragrant blue blossoms were first folded down upon their stems, and baby-ribbon woven very closely and firmly in between the stems which covered them, the blossoms being in the center. This makes a firm, smooth handle, which tapers toward the fan part. This is broad and flat like the old-time palm-leaf fans that went with our grandmothers to meeting. The stems are then expanded and trimmed with scissors into proper shape to make a rounding edge. This flat surface, from about two inches above the handle, is closely woven with the baby-ribbon, and a full cluster is fastened at the top, as is also a rosette of loops at the smallest part of the handle.

Another very popular way of using lavender is the making of "lavender sticks." These are similar to the handle of the fan described, and three or four are joined together in a cluster, by large, full bows of baby-ribbon of any delicate color. They are hung against lace curtains or over chair-backs, and the pungent, spicy odor from the hidden blossoms fills the room.

As a gift for some dear old lady, whose earliest years are somehow associated with the sweet, old-fashioned lavender, nothing can be more dainty and appropriate than a lavender fan. Gently swaying the lightness, airy thing, tender thoughts of long-past girlhood will come to her as the familiar fragrance floats out upon the air. Memories of that sweet pleasure of "going to meeting," with a sprig of lavender laid primly upon the snowy folded handkerchief, or pressed between the leaves of the bible, will come to her with tenderest meaning, and visions of mother's lavender bed will be with her all day long.

Many a dainty woman loves the scent of lavender in her bedroom and upon her clothing and household belongings, and bunches of this fragrant herb, inclosed in some very fine fabric, tied with lavender ribbons, given to a fastidious friend to lay away in her bureau or wardrobe, would be a useful gift. Love of delicate odors is an evidence of refinement, and the very act of scenting a garment presupposes its immaculate cleanliness. Then how pretty and dainty it is to scatter blossoms from the lavender bed throughout one's possessions and to let the good, old-fashioned perfume become a part of one's daily life.—Ladies' Home Journal.

A Privileged Visitor.

Mrs. Keedick—Did I understand you to say that you saw Queen Victoria when you were in England, Mrs. Trotter?

Mrs. Trotter—Yes; I saw the queen and the heir-consumptive.—Judge.

The Tree-Killer.

One of the curious forest growths of the Isthmus of Panama and Lower Central America in general is the vine which the Spaniards call matapalo, or "tree-killer." This vine first starts in life as a climber upon the trunks of the large trees, and, owing to its marvelously rapid growth, soon reaches the lower branches. At this point, it first begins to put out its "feelers"—tender, harmless looking root shoots, which soon reach the ground and become as firmly fixed as the parent stem. These hundreds of additional sap tubes give the whole vine a renewed lease of life, and it begins to send out its aerial tendrils in all directions. These entwine themselves lightly around every limb of the tree, even creeping to the very farthestmost tips and squeezing the life out of both bark and leaf. Things go at this rate but a short while before the forest giant is compelled to succumb to the gigantic parasite which is sapping its life's blood. Within a very few years the tree rots and falls away, leaving the matapalo standing erect and hollow, like a monster vegetable devil-fish lying upon its back with its horrid tentacles clasped together high in the air. Core-like arbors of matapalo are to be seen in all directions, each testifying to the lingering death of some sylvan giant that formerly supported it.—Informaton.

How She Lived a Hundred Years.

"I have taken pretty good care of my health and let others do the worrying," is the testimony of a hale old woman in Indiana, who celebrated her 100th birthday in September.

MAILED OBSCENE MATTER

Young Farmer Near Trumbull Runs Afoul of Uncle Sam. HASTINGS, Neb., May 6.—A farmer named T. J. Dudgeon, near Trumbull, was brought to Hastings by Deputy United States Marshal Frank White and given a preliminary examination yesterday morning before Judge Bailey on the charge of violating the laws by sending profane and obscene matter through the mails. He was placed under $300 bond to appear before the United States circuit court at Omaha May 15 for trial.

A Smooth Travelling Man.

LINCOLN, Neb., May 6.—Not long ago a smooth travelling man came to the city and hired a lot of boys. The object of this wholesale expenditure of money was simply a little scheme on his part to advertise. He sent the boys around to every store in the city to ask for a certain kind of gum. The merchants did not have it and could not sell the boys any other kind. The result was that each merchant swore he would slip up on his brother merchant and lay in a stock of that gum first. Before they had time to cool off and give the matter much thought, the travelling man dropped in and sold them a nice order of the gum. Now the city is well stocked and the merchants are wondering whether or not there is another such lot of easily worked men anywhere in the west.

Severely Injured.

TABLE ROCK, Neb., May 6.—T. G. McLaughlin and wife, an aged couple living four miles northeast of here, were seriously injured in a runaway accident yesterday. They had a young colt hitched up, which kicked over the tongue and started to run, when one of the lines broke and brought the wagon to a sharp turn causing it to upset, throwing the occupants out. It is feared the aged couple have sustained internal injuries.

Skipped Across the Muddy.

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., May 6.—Late Monday afternoon "Zip" Straw and Charles Turner had some trouble and in the fight that followed Straw bit off a good portion of Turner's nose. Officer Dixon went to arrest Straw, but the latter took to his heels and was too swift for the officer, and the last seen of him he was on the Iowa bottoms. The trouble grew out of a dispute over a difference of 45 cents.

Wants a Divorce.

FREMONT, Neb., May 6.—Mrs. Lena Haglund has commenced suit in the district court for a divorce from her husband, Charles Haglund. The petition sets forth that she was married to the defendant in 1891 and that in the following year she was deserted and since that time she has not been provided for. The petition further asks that an absolute divorce be granted and her maiden name, Miss Lena Brugh, be restored.

Articles of incorporation and constitution and bylaws have been adopted, which will be submitted to the banking board for approval. Seven hundred shares have been subscribed.

Death of a Weeping Water Lady.

WEeping WATER, Neb., May 6.—Mrs. C. H. King, one of the oldest residents of the county, died at her home in this city Sunday evening after a protracted illness. An autopsy was held Monday afternoon, which revealed extensive cancer of the stomach. Her daughter, Mrs. John P. Higgins of West Lincoln, was present, and also her son, Editor Greenfield of the Union Ledger.

Observed Floral Day.

ELMWOOD, Neb., May 6.—Excelsior lodge No. 144, A. O. U. W., observed floral day Sunday by meeting at its hall and marching in a body to the Christian church, where Elder Cyrus Alton delivered an appropriate sermon. This lodge at this place has not lost a member, although it has been organized about ten years.
