A Change in Programme.

WASHINGTON, D. C. August 9, 1896. The national convention of the bolting democrats, held at Indianapolis this week, has excited less interest and comment among the political managers than was expected. It seems to be settled by common understanding that the purpose of the gold democratic convention was to help the election of McKinley. They even admit that they will go so far as to vote for McKinley rather than for the man that they will nominate at Indianapolis, if thereby they can better insure McKinley's election. This was so well understood and not even denied by any, that there was very little to surmise as to whether the Indianapolis convention would put up a ticket or would not, it being understood that they would do whatever in their judgment would best advance the cause of McKinley and the gold standard. It must be remembered, that many of the leading spirits in that convention have been in the past a part of the dominant influence in the councils of the democratic party.

A CHANGE IN THEIR PROGRAMME.

It is evident to the careful observer of political "straws" that the goldbugs have decided that they are already whipped on the financial question, unless something can be done to switch the issue to the tariff, or unless the friends of silver can be divided.

Therefore, McKinley is making desperate efforts to revive the tariff corpse, not because he is not a goldbug, but because he thinks protection more popular with the people than gold. But while McKinley is attempting to talk tariff, the fact is that not one request in a thousand at the various political headquarters asks for tariff literature. Everybody wants literature on the financial question, and nothing else.

THE WAGE EARNER AGAINST THE FARMER.

The republicans are also making desperate efforts to divide the silver forces by attempting to array the wage earners against the farmer. Their gold democratic allies are making frantic efforts to assist Hanna and McKinley on this line. This is the last hope of the gold men in this fight, and the outlook is that it is a hopeless hope. The burden of Bourke Cochran's speech in New York was trying to array the wage earner against the farmer. Up to now the gold men have denied that free silver would help the farmer, but they are driven to such desperate straits that they now admit that free silver will help the farmer, and tell the wage earner that it will bleed him for the farmer's benefit.

RAILROADS SUPPORTING THE GOLD STANDARD.

The railroad corporations seem determined to force every friend of silver to favor and fight for the government ownership of railroads, no matter what his opinion on the question may have been in the past. These corporations are putting into the hands of every one of their employes a small circular containing the same fallacious arguments as were put forward in Bourke Cochran's speech. They tell their employes who work for wages and salaries that if they vote for free silver that it will mean a reduction in their wages; that free silver will help the farmer, but that it will hurt them. If fact, the railroad corporations are today the most powerful agents of the gold trust. If the wage earner and farmer can be divided in this fight the gold men, if they stand together, free silver and Americanism win.

A REPLY TO THE RAILROAD GOLD CIRCULAR.

At peoples party headquarters here, a small folder entitled: "Why Railroad Employees and Other Wage Earners Want Free Coinage of Silver," is being printed in large quantities for distribution. It is understood that this circular takes up, and replies specifically to the statements made in the railroad gold circular which the companies are distributing to their employees.

At peoples headquarters they are very much pleased with the political outlook. They say that populist sentimen continues to crystalize in favor of their ticket of Bryan and Watson, and that every silver man who, like Bryan, is ready to put silver above party takes the position that Bryan and Watson is the best silver ticket in the field, and is the co-operative ticket upon which the frends of silver in all parties should unite.

It is understood that a list of literature is being printed at the people's party headquarters, which will be sent out and published in the reform press this week.

The following description and reference to the people's party headquarters appeared in the Washington Star of last Saturday: "Senator Butler, chairman of the populist committee, has a suite of five rooms on the first floor, by the H street entrance of the building. In these quarters the work of the populist committee is done. Senator Buttler occupies the corner room, that used to be a reception room when Wormley's was a hotel. Here, with his private secretary, and Mr. J. M. Devine, he handles everything pertaining to the management of his end of the campaign.

"The room across the hall is occupied by the secretary of the committee, Mr. Edgerton and Mr. Pirtle. The large dining room on the first floor, where many great banquets have been held, is shared between the populists and the silver party as a folding room for documents.

"Senator Butler has excited the admiration of the wise and the shrewd men in politices. He is regarded as one of the keenest political managers who has appeared in the field of politics in recent years. He is indescribably watchful, and his energy is tireless. He thinks and acts at the same time, and does not neglect the smallest detail. It is difficult to tell on what lines he is moving when he does not want to disclose his plans, but he is not idle for a minute, and apparently is never in doubt."

The Review of Reviews, one of the brightest and stongest magazines published in this or any other country, has this to say, in a carefully prepared article, with reference to the vice-presidential matter: "The vice-president should so far as possible represent the same views and principles which have secured the nomination of the president, and he should be able in the event of any accident to his chief to take up the work of the latter just where it was left, Mr. Sewall would make a colorless vice-president, and were he at any time to succeed Mr. Bryan in the White House would travel Mr. Bryan's path only with extreme reluctance and duress.

JONATHAN JONES.

Have Resorted to Forgery.

From Springfield, Ohio: Moores Hua may, an influential Mexican, connected with one of the largest commercial houses in Mexico, was in the city the other day, and while here showed a prominent manufacturer a letter received by him from the director of mints of the republic of Mexico. The letter is translated by Mr. Huamay, and was to the following effect:

"I thank you for the two specimens of so-called Mexican silver dollars which you state are being put in general circulaton in the United States. You are right in believing that the dies for the coins have been recently changed, if the specimens you send are genuine. Without hesitation I pronounce them counterfeits and differing from the silver dollars coined by the Mexican government in many particulars. The genuine coin has 160 mill marks upon the edge, while the specimens you submit have but 150. That may appear a tedious way of detecting the spurious from the genuine dollar, but it is unfailing. The execution and position of the eagle upon the face of the spurious also differ from the genuine. Our government is now engaged in determining where and by whom these counterfeits were issued."

Mr. Huamany states that the machinery for the production of these spurious Mexican dollars was procured in England and that the counterfeits reached America by vessel and were landed in Florida. They were then purchased by the political managers who are using them for campaign purposes. He states that Mexico needs all the genuine silver dollars she has for home circulation, and that the people of that country and satisfied, and would not change their coinage to suit England or any other nation. The counterfeiting of the Mexican silver dollar is now the subject of international inquiry Mr. Huamay says.

MAKES ANOTHER BLUFF.

Mark Hanna Declares That All Skilled Labor is Pledged to McKinley.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 12.—Mr. Hanna said today he had received several representatives of the labor unions, who had said he was right in his assertion that organized labor of the higher class, outside of agitators, curbstone orators and those who lived off the people were for McKinley. Mr. Hanna declared his belief that Mr. Bryan was going back to New York to stir up the passions of the most dangerous class of men. Mr. Hanna said his hopes of success had been greatly strengthened since Mr. Bryan's new policy had been outlined in his letter of acceptance.

Perry Heath said that after October 1 nineteen out of every twenty speakers sent out by the national committee would talk protection and tariff. He declared the county chairmen of the party reported the Bryan speakers were preaching revolution, bald headed, and nothing else.

BRYAN IS SAFE.

He Has No Fears But That Nebraska Will Be Found in the Right Column.

In Mr. Bryan's speech at the Missouri Pacific train last evening he declared that he did not believe there was a county in the state of Nebraska which was certain to go republican. Mr. Bryan based this statement on the highly encouraging reports that are coming into this city from all over the state telling o the marked deflection from the ranks of the republican party in favor of free silver.

The publication in this paper a few days ago of the facts concerning this great landslide has caused a great many of our gold bug friends to open their eyes and wonder whether or not it is so. To all such as are skeptical we would urge that they pay a visit to the state headquarters o the democratic, populist and free silver parties and learn the truth. Again if Chairman Post of the republican state central committee would not attempt to cover up facts one could learn all about the Bryan wave from him. But it is only the ones "on the inside" who are permitted to know the contents of the reports which are daily being sent in.

MONEY TALKS!

—New York News.

Broady's Big Boom.

TALMAGE, Neb., Sept. 12.—Judge Broady and Hon. Frank Ransom addressed a large and enthusiastic political assemblage here last night. Judge Broady made a lucid and clear statement of the issues and followed the same up with strong arguments for the double standard independent of other nations. Hon. Frank Ransom showed that true republicans should vote for Bryan, Broady and better times. Many votes were made for free coinage.

Cleveland's Views Unknown.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 12.—Senator Caffrey, before leaving this morning for Louisville, was asked whether he had received any word from President Cleveland as to his relations toward the third ticket. Senator Caffrey replied in the negative, and added that he knew nothing except what he had seen in the papers, and it was his opinion that if a letter was written it would be addressed to Chairman Bynum.

That Free Excursion.

The gold standard advocates have shown more desperation in their street corner discussions today than any day since the campaign began. They realize that the free silver "craze" is spreading with alarming rapidity and they were almost frantic today in their effort to stem the tide. John P. Maule was busy all day trying to explain the unjust discrimination of the railroads in favor of republican rallies. They realize that the free excursion to Beatrice last evening is losing them votes.

Broady's Table Rock Speech.

"One of the best speaches thus far made in Nebraska was delivered by Hon. J. H. Broady at Table Rock last Saturday. It was logical and argumentative and cannot be answered by his opponnents. Mr. Broady is the silver candidate for congress in the first district of Nebraska, Mr. Bryan's old district, which was gerrimandered in the hope of defeating Bryan, and is looked upon by republicans as their stronghold in the state. The great uprising of the people in this campaign, however, leads to the hope that Mr. Broady will be elected by an ample majority."—Rocky Mountain News, Sept. 10.

Powers at Pender.

PENDER, Neb., Sept. 12.—Weiser's opera house was crowded last night to hear a joint debate on the silver question between John H. Powers of Lincoln and Harry Brome of Omaha. The disputants were cheered at every point and the friends of free silver are jubilent over the work of the champion of that cause.

Bob Graham at Inland.

INLAND, Neb., Sept. 12.—Free silverites were out last night to hear Hon. Robert Graham of Lincoln expound the doctrines of bimetallism. Mr. Graham gave a succient history of the United States coinage laws since 1792, and arraigned in denuciatory terms the gold standard party for their attempt to enslave farmers and laborers of this country. At the conclusion of the speech Mr. Townsend, a former republican, addressed the meeting in a few well chosen remarks in favor of Bryan and free silver.

Mr. Bryan Leaves.

Fully 2,500 people assembled at the Missouri Pacific depot last evening to witness W. J. Bryan's departure and cheer him on his way. Long before his arrival at the train the crowd jostled and pushed one another about in an attempt to get the best position for seeing and hearing Mr. Bryan when he arrived.

The free silver glee club of the university entertained the crowd with good campaign songs. Some members of the club were out of tune but every song was heartily encored. It was 9:16 when the Bryan home guards turned the corner of Tenth and S streets headed by the Nebraska state band. They made an imposing appearance as they marched toward the depot, and round after round of cheers greeted them. Mr. Bryan, Messrs. Jones, Pace and Norris Humphrey rode in a carriage between the long lines of torches. When the carriage stopped and the free silver champion of the American people alighted the cheers and enthusiasm again broke forth. A space from the carriage to the car was with some difficulty opened up and Mr. Bryan took his place on the platform of the rear coach. "Speech, speech," was yelled and echoed on every hand

"We are going to have something better than a speech," replied the candidate, "we're going to have a song."

After the song by the glee club Mr. Bryan spoke as follows:

"I don't know whether I shall return to Nebraska again until just before the election or not, but I go away from Nebraska feeling that it is not necessary for me to stay here. (Cheers). I want to say to you, my friends, that from the reports which I have been receiving I don't believe there is a single county in the state that the republicans are sure of carrying this fall. (Great cheering.) And more than that, every day finds our cause stronger throughout the union than it was the day before. (Cheers; voice: 'Hurrah for tomorrow;' great cheering and laughter). Every day finds persons who are declaring for free coinage and I think I am safe in saying that you will not find among all your acquaintances a man who one month ago was in favor of free coinage at 16 to 1, and able to give a reason for it, who has changed his mind. (Cheers). And you cannot find any man who was for free coinage who is thinking himself into the gold standard idea. (Loud cheering). The reason for that is this, that the people are studying the money question as they never studied it before, and study of the money question leads to an understanding of it, and when men understand it there are just a few people who will be for the gold standard. (Loud cheers). And they will be the ones who will be pecuniarily interested in having dollars get bigger all the time while the masses of the people will be determined that no power on earth shall fasten the gold standard upon the American people. (Great cheering.) A little over a month ago I went into what I then called 'the enemy's country,' but I found down there just as much enthusiasm as there is in Nebraska. (Great cheering). Today some parts of the country are more friendly than others, but there is no enemy's country." (Loud cheering.)

Mr. Bryan's first stop after leaving Lincoln, was at Eagle, where a crowd of people, a drum corps and a bonfire made a rousing reception. Elmwood, another small place, turned out with torches, and Wabash, home of Tom Allen, added red-fire to smoky flambeaus.

The train arrived in Kansas City at 6:30 this morning. He will take the Wabash train out of Kansas City for St. Louis, where he expects to make four addresses tonight. He will speak at Moberly and other points on his way to St. Louis.
