POPULIST LEGISLATORS.

Large Increase of Populists Foth House and Senate

The populists of both branches of congress held a meeting Saturday night in the committee room of Senator Allen. Senator Stewart presided. There was a large attendance of senate and house members of the party. The meeting was for the purpose of getting the members acquainted with each other, and not for the purpose of formulating any particular policy, as it is not thought necessary for the party to outline a plan as to leg-islation at present. Chairman Butler of the populist national committee, de-tailed the operations of the last cam-paign and urged the gentlemen present to make particular effoets toward keeping up the interest in the populist party through populist papers.

The following is a complete list of populists in both branches of the Fifty fifth Congress:

A GOOD PRACTICE.

If You Want a Good Appetite and Perfect Digestion.

After each meal dissolve one or two of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets in the mouth and, mingling with the food, they constitute a perfect digestive, absolutely safe for the most sensitive stomach.

They digest the food before it has time to ferment, thus preventing the formation of gas and keeping the blood pure and free from the poisonous products of fermented, half-digested food. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the only remedy disgned especially for the cure of stomach troubles and nothing else. One disease, one remedy, the successful physician of today is the specialist, the successful medicine is the medicine prepared especially for one disease.

A whole package taken at one time would not hurt you, but would certainly be a waste of good material. Over six thousand men and women in the state of Michigan alone have been cured of indigestion and dyspepsia by the use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. Sold by all druggists at 50 cents per

A Review of State Laws,

Increasing attention is being given to the problems of local and municipal government. The student fluds in his way an almost insurmountable obstacle in the vast amount of state legislation. The New York state library has done a useful work in publishing its annual index of state legislation. One of its staff, Mr. E. D. Durand, has gone further and furnished us not only a list but a summary of state laws, so far as they relate to political and municipal affairs. His pamphlet, "Political and Municipal Leg-islation in 1896," (publications of the American academy of political and so-cial science, No. 196. Philadelphia, 15 cents,) will be a useful guide through the formidable session laws of our states for those who take an interest in these matters. He tells of the constitutional amendments proposed and adopted, and of laws passed as they effect such significant aspects of political life as the suf-frage, elections and corrupt practices, state officers and legislatures, local gov-ernment, municipal legislation, and kindred topics. A similar paper by Mr. Durand was published by the Academy a year ago, and thus we have the beginnings of a record of great usefulness.

ARBOR DAY PROCLAMATION.

Governor Holcomb Calls Upon the Citizens of Nebraska to Observe the Day.

On last Monday the governor gave out the annual arbor day proclamation. It was as follows:

"Conforming to a wise custom, having its inception in Nebraska and now grown national in its character, and to the end that the attention of the people of our beautiful state may be called to the advantages to be gained by a proper observance of the day, I hereby proclaim and designate Thursday, April 22, 1897, as Arbor day. I carnestly request all our citizens to fully comply with the spirit of the law in making this a public holiday, and especially do I commend to the public schools the propriety of an observance of the day by suitable exercises and practical lessons in tree planting, in order that there may be inculeated into the minds of the children of the state a high appreciation of the pleasures, enjoyment and utility, to the present and the future generations of ree planting and timber preservation. On this day let us not forget that

Who sows a field or trains a flower, Or plants a tree is more than all, For he who blesses most is blest; And God and man shall own his worth, Who took to leave as his bequest An added beauty to the earth." In testimony whereof, I have beceunto subscribed my name and caused to be affixed the great seal of the state of Nebraska.

American Industry From a Foreign Standpoint.

The late General Walker said that invention was a natural aptitude of the American people, and a gift to which our economic conditions had given the highest development. As a result the United States is pre-eminently the land of machinery. Mechanical processes dominate our productive enterprises as no where else. This is likewise the testimony of an eminent foreign observer, Professor E. Levasseur, of Paris, who has depicted these conditions and the consequences that flow from them in an interesting study of the "Concentration of Industry and Machinery in the United States," (Publication of the American Academy of Political and Social Science, No. 193, Philadelphia, 25 cents).

The learned author pays a well de-served tribute to the inventive genius of our people as attested by the patent office returns, and records his own observations of the remarkable fashion in which mechanical processes have perme-ated into the every day life of our people. Such a large use of machinery involves an intensity of labor unknown on the European continent, as his evidence amply demonstrates. It brings with it a concentration of industry peculiar to the United States. While it brings attendant evils, the wheels of progress do not move backward, and the advantages outweigh in large part the inconveniences. It is the conclusion of the author that industry in the United States is better equipped than anywhere else. The essay is one which will bear a careful reading by all who are interested in our industrial conditions.

His Conscience Troubled Him.

A resident of Holt county who had cut timber from state lands several years ago has evidently been worrying over the act since. He finally decided to relieve his conscience and addressed the following to Governor Holcomb: "Enclosed please find draft for $40 which I wish to have placed to the credit of the state school fund. It is to pay for timber which I cut on school land several years ago. Please excuse me for troubling you, but I wish to be sure that the money goes where it belongs. May God bless your efforts to keep your record clear before Him and the people."

The governor at once turned the $40 over to Treasurer Meserve, and it was placed to the credit of the school fund. There are many others who might follow this example greatly to the benefit of the state.

WILL PROBABLY FIGHT.

Fi'zsimmons and Corbett May Get Together in the Ring Once More.

The first meeting of Fitzsimmons and Corbett since their fight took place in Carson at the Baldwin hotel. It was a friendly meeting and the two pugilists shook hands and drank together. While standing in the bar room the conversation turned to the late unpleasantness and Corbet tremarked, "Fitz I must have another go at you. Our fight did not satisfy me for I can do better and you know it. I want you to give me first chance?" Fitzsimmons replied that he did not intend to fight any more but "if I ever do enter the ring again I promise to give you the first fight with me." that a go" asked Corbett anxiously?"
"Yes," replied Fitzsimmons "if I fight again you shall have the first chance. That goes."

In all probability this is the forerunner of another fight between the two men, as very few believe that Fitzsimmons expects to retire. Nearly all pugilists claim each fight to be their last, especially if victorious.
