MR. GREUNTHNER SHOULD COME ACROSS!

Mr. Chris Gruenther, than whom no man stands higher in democratic councils, and who is the peer of any man in Nebraska in point of character and ability, is radically opposed to the 5 per cent referendum provision of the Hatfield initiative and referendum bill. Mr. Gruenther says:

"I have absolute proof that the railroads and other special interests were instrumental in having the 5 per cent provision in other states, just as they succeeded in providing for this criminal joker in the direct legislation measures now pending pending in our legislature.

Mark the language: "Just as they (the railroads and other special interests) succeeded in providing for this criminal joker in the direct legislation measures now pending in our legislature."

That is a direct charge that the men who were active in drawing the direct legislation bill presented simultaneously in house and senate were the tools of the railroads and other special interests; that they wickedly and knowingly consented to a scheme to betray the people into the hands of the railroads and special interests, and that they were guilty of seeking to deceive the friends of direct legislation and give them a law that would work them injury.

Mr. Gruenther may believe what he says, and we believe he believes it. But we know better, for we happen to know the men who drew that bill. Does Mr. Gruenther mean to tell us that men like Professor George Hoard, John M. Stewart, Judge Cornish, A. L. Weatherly and their like could be influenced by any special interest?

It is not a question whether the 5 per cent is good or bad; the question is, has Mr. Gruenther the proof that such men as we have named basely deceived the friends of direct legislation? That is the charge, made in plain language, and Mr. Gruenther owes it to himself, to his reputation and to the people of Nebraska to make good on his charge or offer his humble apologies.

The editor of Will Maupin's Weekly happens to know something about the framing of that initiative and referendum bill, and he knows that any charge to the effect that its framers were subject to the influence of railroads or any other special interests, is utterly false and without foundation.

Come across with the proof, Mr. Gruenther! You say you have it absolute.
