

THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK

The First National Bank of Lincoln, which for over forty years has been the leading financial institution of the Capital City, recently moved into its new eight-story building on the corner of Tenth and O streets. The entire first floor is occupied by the banking room, which is handsomely finished throughout in marble and mahogany. Many compliments have been heard on the beautiful design and finish of this banking room, and by excellent judges it is said to be one of the finest and most effective in the country. The vaults are located in the basement where safety deposit boxes of the latest design are provided for customers. The upper stories are arranged for offices and thanks to the central location, modern construction and scientific provisions for light, heat, ventilation and cleanliness, are considered among the most desirable rooms for office purposes in the city.

The First Trust & Savings Bank is located with the First National Bank on the first floor. The steady growth in popularity and financial strength of this thrift promoting enterprise speaks volumes for the sound basis on which the financial prosperity of Lincoln is founded. Over half a million in deposits with more than twenty-five hundred customers' names, indicates the confidence in which this institution is held by the public as well as the economical condition and productive capacity of Lincoln's citizenship.

The First National Bank has always been counted among the public-spirited institutions of Lincoln and numbers its friends by the thousands. It also has a large and satisfactory list of banks and bankers throughout the state who make it their chief depository. With a capital and surplus of $750,000.00 and deposits of four millions, and a management identified with the interests of the city and state and solicitous for the welfare and prosperity of the community, the growth of the institution in size and in the estimation of its patrons is not hard to understand.

Some Other Big Things We Boast About

We rather guess Nebraska produces more in the line of men than mere orators and statesmen and politicians. Quite a lot more. There's Grover Cleveland Alexander, for instance. And "Wahoo Sam" Crawford. And George Stone. And Leslie Nunamaker. To admit not knowing these eminent Americans is to argue one's self unknown. Is not Grover Cleveland Alexander the pitching sensation of the baseball year? And do not Crawford and Stone make big dents in history every day with their war clubs? And isn't Leslie Nunamaker making Aurora, Nebr., as famous as Emerson and his bunch made Brook Farm? We opine yes, and yes again. Orators, steers, baseball players, oats, politicians, corn, statesmen, wheat, sweet singers, hogs—when the nation wants the best in these lines it simply has to turn to Nebraska to satisfy its desires.

There are but six states that produce more farm and live stock products than they consume, and Nebraska is one of the six. These six states produce a surplus that nations depend upon for their food supplies.

The biggest steer ever reared was reared in Nebraska. "Nebraska Queen" tipped the beam at 3,054 pounds when in her prime.
