THE PROGRAM FOR LABOR'S BIG DAY

The program for Lincoln's celebration of Labor Day is now complete, save for a few minor details. There will be no parade this year, but the workers will have a picnic at Capital Beach in the afternoon and evening, and the big basket dinner at o'clock is looked forward to as one of the big features of the day. One-half of the gate receipts at the Beach are to be given to the Labor Day committee, and after the incidental expenses of the occasion are paid the balance is to be given to the McNamara defense fund.

At 4 p. m., after the sporting events are pulled off, there will be a mass meeting in the Casino, at which time Bishop Tihen will be the principal speaker. Before Bishop Tihen arrived in Lincoln the workers here had received a "wireless" from Wichita. "The bishop is one of our kind," said the wireless. "We owe him a lot more than we can tell for what he has accomplished in our behalf, and he'll do as much for you. Get next to him without delay." And it wasn't long after Bishop Tihen landed in Lincoln until the word went around: "The dope from Wichita was all to the good." The bishop will have a few words to say about some of the social problems that confront us, with a few other words calculated to help us along. Just before Bishop Tihen is introduced Will M. Maupin, president of the Nebraska State Federation of Labor will speak briefly—very, very briefly.

At 7:30 p. m., Governor Aldrich will deliver an address from the bandstand in the Japanese tea garden. Following the governor will be Clyde J. Wright, who will give in detail the history of the famous McNamara case. Governor Aldrich has given evidence of his friendship for organized labor, and his address will doubtless be listened to by a large and appreciative audience.

All sporting events will be held in front of the grandstand in the Beach ball park. Following is the program of events, together with the prizes offered by enterprising and liberal merchants of the city:
