Union Made

Suits and Overcoats

For Men and Young Men

We have made a strong endeavor to have a good line of Union Made Suits and Overcoats and have placed in stock a big assortment of "Miller-Made" Clothes, the highest grade line of Suits and Overcoats made in.

America bearing the Union Label.

These garments are guaranteed All Wool, and are made by the most skilled labor from the best fabrics to be had; are stylish looking, fit perfect and cost you no more than others that are often not so good.

We want you to see these Fine Clothes; they are just what you have been wanting and you can't help but like them.

Suits from Ten to Forty-five Dollars

Mayer Brothers

Lincoln, Nebraska

WOMAN'S ARTISTIC REBUKE

Makes Good on Declaration That France Could Create Beautiful Thing Out of Nothing.

Mme. Von Konig was a young woman of French origin who, ten years before the Franco-Prussian war, had married a German army officer. Her heart was torn during the struggle, and, though her aid went to her husband, her tears were shed for France. At a dinner party some one had the bad taste to speak of "conquered France."

"France may be conquered," said Mme. Von Konig, "but she still retains her ability to create a beautiful thing out of nothing."

The next day one of the gentlemen present sent her a single white hair, asking her what France could make out of that. She sent it to a great French jeweler, and told him of her challenge. Presently there came back to her a device in gold and enamel. On a bed of sabres stood the Prussian black eagle, holding in its mouth the single white hair. Attached to one end of the hair were the arms of Alsace, in delicate, tiny gold workmanship, at the other, the arms of Lorraine. Underneath was engrossed: "Alsace and Lorraine; you hold them by a hair."

Foolhardy Snake Keeper.

The only fatal case of snake bite on record in the London Zoological gardens was directly due to the foolishness of the victim. He was in charge of the snakes, and coming in one morning with some friends began to beast of his power over the creatures and the extent to which they would submit to be played with by one whom they knew. This led to practical experiments, the overconfident keeper taking an Indian cobra from ts comfortable sleeping place, and declaring he was a snake charmer proceeded to swing it about his head and play other tricks with it.

A native snake charmer would have known there was no more certain way to rouse the snake's temper than this, for the race abhors rough handling or sudden movement of any sort. The result of the exploit was that the keeper was bitten on the nose. He was hurried off to the hospital, but died in a few hours.

The Dak Bungalow.

The Dak bungalow of India is a blessed institution for the weary Dak, as the natives call the traveler. He finds these shelters dotted over many of the out-of-the-way parts of the country, generally not more than one long day's march apart. They mean warmth when one has been chilled to the bone by biting winds, or shelter from the driving rain and hall storms, the latter so common in northern India that planters insure their crops against them, and so violent that both men and cattle are often killed by them. The bungalows usually consist of two bedrooms and a dining room, with rough outside buildings providing a kitchen and sheds for horses and cool-After our life in the untrodden forests of South America it was camping de luxe.-Harper's Magazine.

Apt Description of Bigot.

The celebrated John Foster thus described a bigot: "He sees religion, not as sphere, but as a line, and it is a line in which he is moving. He is like an American buffalo—sees right forward, but nothing to the right or left. He would not perceive a legion of angels or devils at a distance of ten yards on the one side or the other."