NOW DID YOU EVER

sit down calmly and think out, or figure out, the real problem of life—the provision for age and dependents? Did you ever, with your wife, or some one else for whom provision must be made, take a pencil and set down the figures that represent your earning capacity now and opposite that the necessary cost of your living? And if you did were you not absorbed in the problem of your responsibility to make provision for sickness, for age and dependents out of the difference? Is there anything more interesting and absorbing to normal men and women than making provision; that is, taking from earnings some definite part and then pruning, watering, cultivating with the love of normal manhood and womanhood and watch that provision grow? You are losing much in your own development in postponing the time of beginning this provision. Take some part of every week or month's earnings and deposit it in some strong bank, like

Spoke From Experience.

Farmer B—was sitting in the country church. He had been working hard in the harvest fields hands were scarce, and Farmer B—was doing. The loud tones of the minister failed to arouse the farmer, until at length, the time wanting, the good man closed the lids of the Bible and concluded as follows: "Indeed, my hearers, the harvest is plentiful, but the laborers are few." "Yes," exclaimed Farmer B—, "I've offered two dollars a day for cradlers and can't get 'em at that."

His Day of Fate.

An odd story of a dream of ill-omen comes from Sunderland, Durham, England. A young shipyard laborer dreamed that he would be killed, and therefore he did not go to work in the morning. In the afternoon he went to bathe in the River Wear, and getting into deep water was drowned before help could reach him. The efforts of his companions to save him were unavailing, through the swiftness of the current.

Prevented Sale of Wife.

John Tower endeavored to sell his wife, Elizabeth, at auction in London in June, 1817, but the authorities prevented the sale.

Rich Woods Put to Base Use.

Rosewood and mahogany are so plentiful in Mexico that some of the copper mines there are timbered with rosewood, while mahogany is used as fuel for the engines.

The Conscience of Clara.

One day when Mrs. Bell was making a neighborly call on Mrs. Ellis the latter, in the presence of her caller, discharged her colored maid, whose obstreperousness could be borne with no longer.

A few weeks later Mrs. Bell again called on Mrs. Ellis, and to her surprise her hostess informed her that Clara was back.

The services of the maid were required by her mistress, who pressed the button in the drawing room. There was, however, no response. Finally Mrs. Ellis went out and waited on herself. While she was gone Clara, who was acquainted with Mrs. Bell, having served in her family also, put her head in at the door and explained:

"Mis' Bell, I heard Mis' Ellis all the time, but do you recollect the las' time you was here she discharged me an' said she'd never have me again? I said I'd never come back too. But here I am, so we bofe lied. That's why I's ashamed to come in. I was ashamed for bofe of us."—New York Times.

Chili Con Carne.

From remotest Mexico comes this recipe for chili con carne, which is capable of warming whatever cockles the heart may have and of diffusing calories to one's works at large: First comes a fire of logs in the open. Second comes an olla of generous proportions. Into the olla put a gallon of water and plenty of the hot chills, and in that region of Mexico they ripen so hot that not even the rattlesnake will dare take refuge in their shade. Upon this beginning lay as much of a side of beef in one piece as may be squeezed into the pot. Set the cover on this olla and lute it down with clay. Then put the pot into the fire and heap the glowing coals all over it, with particular attention to the lid, so that the luting may bake into brick. Keep the fire burning slowly all day long. When night has come scatter the embers, break the brick seal of the olla, fork out and throw away whatever of the meat remains solid. The remainder is the chili con carne. No sauce is needed.

The Love Affairs of Handel.

Women greatly admired Handel, who was very handsome, but the serenity of the composer seems only to have been ruffled twice by love on his part. His first attachment was to a London girl, a member of the aristocracy. Her parents believed him beneath her in social position, but were good enough to say that if he abstained from writing any more music the question of marriage might be entertained. It was easier to abstain from their daughter than from his art, and he did so. Years after almost the same thing occurred. Handel and another beautiful pupil of his fell in love with each other, and proud parents gave him the choice between giving up his profession or their daughter. Music, "heavenly maid," was chosen.—"The Love Affairs of Some Famous Men."

Hitting the Doctor.

As today, in the days gone by the doctors were made the target of the jester's fling.

Pausanias, the Spartan general, when asked by a physician how it was that he was never ill, exultingly answered, "Because I never consult you."

At another time Pausanias said that the best physician was the one who dispatched his patients with the least possible suffering.

Pausanias, strongly disapproving of a certain physician and his methods and berating him in no mild terms, was asked by a friend how, as he had never consulted that particular doctor, he could be so sure of his statements. Pausanias answered, "Well, had I consulted him would I be living today?"

A Summer Without Nights.

To the summer visitor in Sweden there is nothing more striking than the almost total absence of night. At Stockholm, the Swedish capital, the sun goes down a few minutes before 10 o'clock and rises again four hours later during a greater part of the month of June. But the four hours the sun lies hidden in the frozen north are not hours of darkness. The refraction of his rays as he passes around the north pole makes midnight as light as a cloudy midday and enables one to read the finest print without artificial light at any time during the "night."

Put on His Guard.

Little Brother (who has just been given some candy)—If I were you I shouldn't take sister yachting this afternoon. Ardent Sutor—Why do you say that? Little Brother—Well, I heard her tell mother this morning that she feared she'd have to throw you over.—Exchange.

The Dearest Spot.

Poetical Lady—Is there anything on earth that you long for at times with a great yearning?

Mere Man—Yes, there is. When I draw two cards to three aces there is one spot that I yearn for with all my—
But the lady had left him.—Toledo Blade.

Transformation.

An English farmer had a number of guests to dinner and was about to help them to some rabbit when he discovered that the dish was cold. Calling the servant, he exclaimed, "Here, Mary, take this rabbit out and 'eat it and bring it back a little 'otter!'"

Different.

Willie—Did the doctor make you take nasty medicine when you were sick?
Freddie—No; it was father who made me take it.—Exchange.
