"INSIDE BALL" PUZZLE

Explanation of Term That Both ers Many Enthusiasts.

In the Long Run Team Which Plays
Game as It Should From Start of Season to End Will Finish
Better Than Its Rival.

"Inside ball" is a term which puzzles many enthusiasts. The expression immediately brings to mind secret manipulations on the diamond and is generally passed up as being too deep. In reality inside ball is nothing more or less than playing the game. There is no mystery about it. Of course, every major league and minor league squad has its "signals," or signs, as they are called by the fans writes Malcolm McLean in the Chicago Evening Post. But so have football teams and basketball squads.

Take the average ball game. The home team is at bat, nobody is down and there's a runner on first. The batter tries to lay down a sacrifice bunt, and misses the ball. "Aw, hit 'er out," yells a bleacherite in disgust. Then he turns to his neighbor and growls. "Gee, I can't stand for that kind of a game. What's that guy trying to do? Why don't he hit 'em to the fence?"

This instance is one of the many "mysteries" of inside ball. It's playing the game to sacrifice that man around to second, from which point he can easily score on a single. If the batter tries to hit safely right from the jump there's the immediate danger of a double play, and two men out.

Take another case. There's a man on first and a left-hander at bat. Such a hitter generally slaps one to right field or between first and second. So, naturally, as soon as the ball is hit the shortstop runs to cover second in the hopes of negotiating a double play. If the batter hits right-handed the second baseman usually covers second. Yet this is the so-called inside ball which has so many fans wondering what it all about.

The Cubs in the past were called masters of inside ball. The reason was they had played together so long that every man knew the instant the ball was hit just what to do under the circumstances. In other words, it was second sense or "inside ball" if you prefer.

Yet this style of play doesn't always win—far to the contrary. Frequently the Boston Red Sox have thrown inside ball to the winds and played the hit-and-run game instead of sacrificing. They broke up the defense of the rival teams by pulling stuff when not expected. It's far more spectacular if they get away with it. For instance, with first and second occupied and none out, to have the batter knock the ball over the fence at the first pitch warms the cockles of the heart more than a dinky little bunt and an out at first.

But you'll find that in the long run the team which plays the game as it should from the start of the season to the end will finish better than its rival, if both squads are about equal in strength. Cap Anson says the old Chicago Colts used as much inside ball as the great teams of today, and proves his point. So if it wasn't mysterious thirty years ago it shouldn't be so today.

LEE TANNEHILL'S HARD LUCK

Arm Is Splintered Ten Minutes After
First Opportunity to Break Into Game This Season.

It's pretty tough to be put out with a broken wrist before you have been ten minutes in the game, but that is what happened to Lee Tannehill of the Chicago White Sox on May 8. He had taken Weaver's place in the game with Washington and was at bat when one of Walter Johnson's shoots caught him on the arm. He did not know the arm was broken until he went into the field after the side was retired and attempted to throw.

The Cincinnati Reds have shown a big improvement in base running and this is in a great measure responsible for their sensational work. They have much natural speed and Manager Hank O'Day is making the most of this.

WHY YOU ARE NERVOUS

NEARLY EVERY AILMENT HAS
THIS BAD EFFECT.

One Great Cause Is Eye-Strain From Which City People Suffer Especially Because Their Vision Is Restricted.

Almost every little or great ailment throughout your system affects your nerves. Your eyes and liver and lungs and stomach and heart and many other things throughout your system all "take it out" on the poor nerves if they happen to be a bit out of order themselves.

Recent discoveries show that ninety per cent of nervous troubles are due to other disorders. Eye-strain is one cause. Not only those who have to use their eyes constantly, like students and lapidaries and miniature artists and engravers, but city folks who live and work where their vision is restricted, are all sufferers from nervous troubles, more or less.

The eye wants to get exercise as well as the muscles. Living in narrow streets and gazing out across little alleys against brick walls, rushing into narrow cars and hurrying into small rooms, all keep the vision down to narrow limits and pretty soon eye-strain sets in and this brings on nervous trouble.

And one of the peculiarities of this is that many people will not notice that they have eye-strain because the nervous disorder that results will be so much worse than the cause. Eye-strain is much less common in the country.

Working in a stooped position, curving the spine, brings pressure on the tiny blood vessels and this in turn acts on the nerves. "I get so nervous sitting still," one will say. As a matter of fact the continual pressure on the spine reacts on the nerves. As sedentary occupations are more common in the cities there is more nervousness from this cause in cities.

Liver troubles bring on quick nervous disorders; city noises in time effect the ears and the nerves are again in for a siege of trouble. Not even at night or during sleep is there complete quiet in the city. Women become irritable because of excessive blood pressure, and again it is their nerves that suffer—also every one else about them is apt to suffer.

In the Wrong Way.

Two men who had not been in the wilds of Mississippi long enough to know the dangerous places in the swamps started out one warm day in early spring with minds—and bait—to catch some fish. They had not gone far when one of them came upon what he thought to be an unusually high spot of terra firma, overgrown with water grass.

He planted his feet firmly upon this spot only to be precipitated headlong into a sink hole, the like of which exists not out of Mississippi.

His friend ran to a nearby farmhouse and asked excitedly for a spade, with which to dig his friend out of the mud. The old farmer looked at him in astonishment and asked:

"How deep is he in?"

"He's up to his ankles," he shouted excitedly.

"Oh, well, then, why don't you lead him out?"

"Faith, an' I can't—he's in wrong end up."—Mack's National Monthly.

Talk English in Frankfurt.

"Frankfurt has a large English speaking population," says a letter from that city to the New York Tribune. "and there are not many business establishments where one cannot find a person who is responsible for the sign 'English Spoken Here.' As to the quality of the shop English, it is usually below that of the waiter English, but it is good enough. But we had further proof of the American influence while on a motor trip to Nauen a few days ago. On a field still bumpy with frost we saw a lot of boys playing baseball. The game would have been condemned as 'bum' by the youngsters of our 'fans,' but we watched it with interest and enjoyed it, although one of our party said that it seemed to him like a Mark Twain story told in Plattdeutsch.

As to Lil.

Nan—Lil Garlinghorn must be nearly 40 now. Splendid girl, too. I wonder why she never married.

Fan—It's curious about Lil. She's been the second choice of more eligible young men than any girl I ever knew.
