NATIONALS CAME NEAR POSSESSING WOOD

Walter Johnson, the "Terrible Swede."

Where would the Washington team be today with Walter Johnson and Joe Wood, the two greatest pitchers in the game, both working on Griffith's pitching staff?

It was fate, or rather fate in the disguise of poor business ability, that prevented these two twirling stars from being team-mates on the Washington club.

In the spring of 1908, the Nationals played an exhibition game in Kansas City and Joe Cantillon watched a young pitcher strike out seven of the nine batsmen that faced him in the last three innings. The name of this young player was Joe Wood. Cantillon made arrangements to secure Wood right then and there. The Washington manager was given to understand that when the time came to dispose of Wood, the National club would be given first chance.

Cantillon allowed the prospective deal to go at that and during the summer Boston purchased Wood without Cantillon ever being consulted or given a chance to bid for Wood.

With Wood and Johnson on the pitching staff the Washington club, with its present field and batting strength, probably would have won the American League pennant.

And how sweet that world's series would have looked to Griffith with that dependable pair in harness.

NOTES of the DIAMOND

Welchance led the Southern league in batting this year with an average of .331.

Frank Chance talks right out from the shoulder when he has anything to say at all times.

One hundred and fifty-seven (one was) made in the New York State league during the last season.

The Athletics will take a Cuban trip this fall, leaving for Havana on October 25, to be gone about three weeks.

President McAleer of the Boston Red Sox was a member of the Cleveland team when it won the Temple cup series in 1895.

Horace Fogel is in favor of a contract to pay his young pitcher by piece work. Horace must think a ball team is just like a sweatshop.

It now develops that the Giants won the pennant because they won the most most games. They're making new discoveries every day.

Taylor, Indianapolis pitcher in the American association, had a lovely season. He worked in nine games and didn't get a hit or a win.

Although the fans like to encourage a youngster in learning they do not care much about having to sit through three or four hours of game to see him do it.

Tris Speaker, the all-round sensation of the year, unlike Cobb, does not play to the grandstand in going after the ball, but leaves out all the frills and fancy work.

Umpire Dineen states as his official opinion that the Highlanders will go some next year. He believes that the team as it stands today is not greatly inferior to the Red Sox.

Winning the National league pennant this year with the Giants, McGraw will equal the late Frank G. Seale's enviable record of managing five National league champions.

ST. PAUL WAS BASEBALL FAN

Players From Four Major League Teams Hear Divine Liken Game to Biblical Incidents.

The Rev. Dr. Christian F. Reisner, pastor of Grace Methodist church, said in a baseball sermon on "You're Out," the other Sunday evening in New York, that the "Bible is the book of rules for the game of life," and he was sure that St. Paul would have been a fan had the game been played in his day.

Dr. Reiser went among baseball men to get material for his discourse and talked with 40 players. He also found time to read Matty's famous "Pitching in a Pinch." It was estimated that more than 1,000 persons were in the church, including several Giants, Dodgers, Pirates and Cardinals. Dr. Reiser said:

"Every baseball player must be careful of his morals. No gritty player wants to be put out. That is why he wants to fight the umpire. Many get put out of the playing permanently when it might be avoided. That is equally true in life's game."

"St. Paul was interested in all athletic sports of his day, and used them as illustrations to carry his truth. He feared that after preaching to others he might be a castaway, that is an 'out' in the end. He played to win. That is what we must do."

"Being put out," the clergyman said, "is due to overanxiety."

Cleveland Gets Liebold.

The Cleveland club announces that the national commission has awarded it Outfielder Liebold of the Milwaukee American association team. Prior to the annual drawing Cleveland put in drafts for Liebold and Chappelle of Milwaukee. The Chicago Nationals drew Shortstop Russell Blackburne of Milwaukee in the draft. They canceled the draft and he was awarded to the Chicago Americans, who also canceled. Cleveland, next in line, took Liebold.

Collins Makes Record.

Eddie Collins established a new record for the American league, pilfering six bases in one day. This was off Catcher Koehler of Detroit.

In his campaign speeches Aldrich endeavors to leave the impression that his opponent, Senator Morehead, opposed the reform measures enacted by the legislature of 1907. He even goes to the length of trying to make voters believe that Morehead voted against them. When fronted by the fact that Morehead was not a member of the 1907 legislature, nor of any other save that of 1911, Aldrich hedges and says: "I meant that if he had been in the legislature then he would have opposed those measures." All of which is one more sample of the Aldrich methods of campaigning.

Object Lessons in Thrift

AMERICAN SAVINGS BANK

Lincoln, Nebr.

No one ever grew rich by hoarding money. There is a difference between "hoarding money" and "saving money." The miser hoards money. The wise man or woman saves money and puts it to work earning more money. The wise use of money means future prosperity. The worker can not hope to acquire a competency merely by "hoarding." He must make his savings work for him. We furnish employment for your savings. Deposit with us, and under our successful system we put your money to work for you—make it earn more money. A deposit with us means that your dollars work for you day and night. Twelve years of success is a guarantee of our system. Come in and let us explain it to you.
