MEIKLEJOHN'S LYING INTERVIEW IN THE BEE.

The Real Facts of the Case From the Assistant Sergeant-at-Arms of the House.

Ex-Lieutenant Governor Melklejohn on being interviewed by the Bee correspondent said:

"It is the closest piece I ever got into in my life, and the experience was anything but agreeable. I was certain I was right and was determined to stand my ground, but any mistake would have been fatal.

"I guess I have a warrant for your arrest."

"Hold on," said I, "where is your authority? I have your warrant, and let me see you get it without the warrant you have no authority, so touch me if you dare."

He thought a moment, and seemed to take the same view of the case and we had a pleasant time after that.

"I had the warrant in the house and was disposing of what few men I had, and gave the order to keep everybody out and admit no one without calling me.

"I then crowded through his 'trusty' mob (who were armed to the teeth) and told my men to stand firm, which they did.

"I then served the warrant by copy on Melklejohn, and then awaited orders from my superior to eject him, and made the return on the writ according to the facts.

"About the time I served Melklejohn with the warrant he was saying to his 'trusty' followers that he would have them sworn in as soon as the supreme order came down.
