A SEA ADVENTURE.

CAPTAIN JACK'S EVENTFUL VOY-AGE IN THE CHINA SEA.

Witnessing a Submarine Earthquake That Made an Island and Resurrected a Vessel, and Attacked by Bloodthirsty Malays-How They Met Their Fate.

[Copyright, 1892, by Charles B. Lewis.] Among the rolics I have gathered to her during the last quarter of a century is the log of the brig Hopewell while mak-ing a voyage in the China sea. She was owned and commanded by my grandfather, who was familiarly known as Captain Jack, and the log in which the daily events of the voyage were written out in his cramped and old fashioned chirography was left behind him as an heicloom. The two particular adventures I am to give you are pretty fully recorded, but so far as I know have never been published. . I shall take the liberty of changing the language here and there, for Captain Jack was no scholar, but shall stick to the facts as he rote them down in ink which has scarce ly yet begun to fade.

The Hopewell was an English brig. which had been chartered on this occasion for a voyage up the Gulf of Siam with two bjects in view. One was to secure the cargo of a vessel partly destroyed by fire at Bangkok, at the head of the gulf, and at Bangkok, as the head of the guil, and the other was to try to learn the fate of the ship Viking, which belonged to a trad-ing company at Singapore and had been mysteriously missing for many months. English men-of-war had cleaned out many piratical haunts along the Malay coast, and so many piratical crafts had been de-terored that membrant vasals no longer stroyed that merchant vessels no longer had any fear of being overhauled. The under arms all night and was prepared to give them a hot reception. The night Hopewell carried a crew of ten men, all of m were provided with small arms, but he had no cannon.

The log says that she had a fair run up the east coast for five days, thought the winds were light, but on the sixth day, being then about six miles off the island ngo, as it was then called on the charts, it fell a dead calm. This was early in the morning. Before noon there was cause for everybody aboard to feel alarmed. The atmosphere was close and stiffing, the sky had a brassy look, and fish were continually leaping out of water around the brig as if terribly frightened. The water was full of bubbles and many degrees warmer than usual, and some of the men declared they could detect the odor of sulphur as they sniffed the air. Captain Jack was satisfied that the state of affairs would lead up to a calamity, but was per fectly helpless in the case. Some of the men were for taking the yawl and making for the island in sight, but this the captain would not listen to, though he wished imself anywhere else than where he was.

At about 5 o'clock in the afternoon, just after what looked like a cloud of dust had darkened the sky, a great sheet of fiame suddenly leaped out of the sea two miles to the west of the island. The fiame was followed by a report which was heard for forty miles around, and then came such a boiling and upheaving of the sea that the brig was tossed about like a chip and was given up for lost. She continued to be pitched and banged about in a terrible way for half an hour, and the sea did not grow quiet for more than two hours. All grow quiet for more than two hours. All knew what had happened. A submarine earthquake had taken place and a new island had been created. Four great waves followed each other down the gulf clear to Singapore, while the Natuna islands, off the west coast of Borneo, were almost swept clear of inhabitants. No breeze fol-lowed the earthquake, but the night con-tinued calm and the crew of the brig were almost choked with the fumes of sulphur.

When moreing came Captain Jack looked for the island of Alango in vain. It had sunk out of sight with all its thou-way when a mysterious thing happened. No one aboard the brig had an eye upon her just then, as they were making their final preparations, and so what actually Her Way. occurred was never known. What Cap-tain Jack saw as he looked up was the prahu sinking below the surface, which afternoon, and had scarcely got sented when I noticed a little woman on the last was very much agitated. She went down very slowly, and seemed to fall apart as she went, for the surface was soon covered seat of the right hand side. I could not see her face on account of the heavy vell she wore, and she leaned over against the window so heavily that I thought her with wreckage.

Hopewell says that the firing continued until the last pirate had been picked off, water half a mile from the beach. With his glass the captain could now make out five or six small huts and a large storehouse on shore, and only a single native appeared in sight. He made signals with a flag, but as night was coming on further investigation was postponed till the mor-row. Not knowing but that another force of pirates would come out under cover of darkness, Captain Jack kept the crew ed quietly however, and next morni

the lone man renewed his signals so vigor ously that a boat was sent off to investi gate. She had no sooner come within hailing distance than the man cried out in good English that he was a captive and the only living man on the island. The been captured three years before on a small

had been spared for some reason unknown, and had been on the island ever since. He was treated like a slave, and on one occasion, when he had planned to escape, they had sliced off one of his ears as a caution piratical gang had embarked to attack the rig, and Tripp was overjoyed at their

It would have been a feather in Captain

Jack's cap had nothing further been ac-complished, but the best of all was yet to come. That storehouse was full of plun-der, and they worked the brig into a cove, where she was fairly safe, and set about discharging her ballast and loading her with a cargo. During Tripp's stay with the pirates they had captured two trading schooners and a German ship. Most ef their cargoes were in the storehouse along with a miscellaneous assortment of stuff picked up at other times. There was flour, ugar, coffee. tea, clothing hardware, dry goods, shoes, cutlery, wines and almost everything else ever carried in a cargo.

Some of the stuff was badly damaged by rot and mildew, but they had plenty to pick from, and in a couple of weeks had loaded the Hopewell with the richest cargo she ever carried. It seemed odd enough to find in that out of the way place two grand pianos, which had not been unboxed, several camera, gold frame mirrors six feet long, grindstones from the United States grindstones from the United States and, most queerly of all, a box holding fifty trading schooner. While the rest of the asleep. There were only a few passengers You will perhaps not agree with me when I say that Captain Jack now did a good thing for mankind. All the pirates of us in the car, and everybody seems shrink into hinself as if weary and diswere afloat, supporting themselves on the wreckage, and they were making ready to gusted 'Who's the woman back there?" I asked swim for the brig and attack her, when of the conductor as he sat down beside me the crew were ordered to open fire. If the Malay of today is an object of suspicion for a few minutes. "Don't know; going to St. Louis," he reand detestation to every European sailor, the bloodthirsty pirates of those days could expect no mercy. The log of the "Sick ?"

"Maybe, and maybe it's something on her mind. I've got an idea that she's watching for somebody." It was a winter day, and raining at that.

I boarded the train at 4 o'clock in the

and that sharks gathered in such numbers as to fill everybody with astonishment. It was dusk, but the lamps had not been There was much speculation as to what caused the loss of the prahu. As the sea lighted, when six or eight people got on at a station. Among them was a couple whom I believed to be newly wedded, although they were middle aged. The man was fine was clear of rocks and reefs it was the opinion of Captain Jack that some great looking and the woman really handsome, and they took a seat about the middle of fish, perhaps a whale, struck the craft as she was breaching. Nothing else could the car, with their backs to the veiled have wrecked her so quickly or shattered woman. When I happened to look back I found her sitting bolt upright and acting as if very much excited. Fifteen minutes her so completely. The brig continued to drift in toward the island with the current, and at length the anchor was let go in five fathoms of train had pulled out of the station the little woman passed me as she wont down the aisle. The lamps were alight now, and I saw a pistol clutched in her right hand. The couple referred to were acting very lovingly toward each other, but I had not connected the little woman with them at all. She passed them by two or three feet and then wheeled, raised her yeil, and stood with the pistol pointed full in the man's face.

No one can be prepared for action unde such circumstances. Every one in the car was looking at the woman, and everybody realized that a tragedy was at hand, but nobody moved. For fully thirty second the woman stood like a statue, the pistol within two feet of the man's face. Those in front of him said that he flushed up at first sight of her, and then grew pale as boat then landed, and he proved to be one death. He tried to speak, but his lips William Tripp, an English sailor, who had uttered no sound. The woman beside him looked, raised her hands and sank back in a dead faint. "George, I have come to say goodby!

crew had been murdered after capture, he said the little woman at last, and her words were followed by the dull click of the hammer falling on a cartridge. There was no explosion. Her arm slowly fell until it rested beside her, and with a sobnot to attempt it again. Every man of the bing wail she sank down in the aisle and was helpless. All of us moved at once. She was lifted to a seat and a woman took charge of her. We turned to the man for explanations, but he had fallen back and his eyes were closed. Two minutes later we knew that he was dead-as surely dead as if a bullet had pierced his brain. A doctor who came in from the car ahead said it was a case o heart failure. He was the husband of the little woman who had been riding so long on the back seat. They had quarreled, and he had become infatuated with the woman beside him. The wife had planned to encounter them and kill him. He had looked into the face of death for thirty stopped the flow of life as suddenly as if be had been struck by a thunderbolt. This

A corpse-an adventuress-a widow! It through the darkness each one of us seemed to hear a voice saying:

"As ye sow, so shall ye reap! The deeds of the wicked shall recoil upon their own heads!" M. QUAD. telegraph instruments, a photographer's writer gained what knowledge he posses ses of pearl diving as it is followed today. Formerly it was carried on in two ways, by native divers and by dress divers. A few years ago the aborigines were easily induced to sign a contract binding them to their employer for the diving season, and in remuneration for their labor received the usual pay-food, tobacco, clothing from the neck to the knees and a blanket. They lived aboard a schooner on the fishing grounds during the five summer months, diving from small boats without

Diving for Pearls.

RISING GENERATION.

A Surprise in the Garden -- What all Boys Should Know -- How to Get the Most Good Out of Books.

A Surprise in the Garden. One day last spring little boy Donald came over to "the grandpa house" from his home across the street. Thus being his daily custom, it was strange that a surprise of several days' preparing should have escaped his bright eyes until the right time came.

A packet of peppergrass seed, the warm sunshine, soft spring rains, and auntie were all in the secret, but never a word said they until this day I am telling about, when Donald came over just as auntie was showering the seedlings in her garden. Donald likes this work very much, and running for his own little watering-pot, was soon ready to help. "Shower that corner well, please, Donald." said-auntie, and the earth soon darkened as it drank in the water, making a background which showed plainly the tender green of young plants lined upon it.

Suddenly Donald paused in his work; then bent closely over the corner of the border; and a laugh of de light rang out as he spelled the capital letters DONAL D-real live letters growing in auntie's garden.

As wonderful as fairies all dressed in living green seemed those tiny plants to Donald, who liked to pretend that some little magicians under the ground had planned this great surprise.

All the friends were brought to see this "other Donald," and the little watering-pot did daily work to keep him fresh and green.

As the days went on, however, the garden Donald began to grow in a truggling way which blurred the outlines of the letters. But out of this state of things there grew another pleasure. One morning early the fresh young leaves were carefully picked, heaped in a pretty basket, and carried home to mamma for breakfast.

Mamma had a funny idea about eating Donald, but she tried it, and exclaimed, in mock-surprise, then Why, I had supposed my Donald was sweet and mild, but he tastes peppery and tries to bite my tongue!" Nobody enjoyed the peppergrass more than did Donald himself, as he sat up in his high chair at table eating it with his bread and butter, and shakseconds, and the strain on his nerves hall ing with laughter at mamma's little

This year he may have the pleasure of getting up a surprise in the garden ended there for us, but not for them. Was it any wonder that as the train rushed on auntie will tell him how to do

"Dig up your bit of earth and make it smooth and even. Trace with your finger the letters of the name in the fresh earth, and drop the peppergrass seed carefully along the tracing. kitchen clocks, every one of which began striking as they moved the box. As they tore out one side of the storehouse the bet these coasts, which are still unexplored purpose, but if it is not to be had, book treated in this way does not and inhabited only by natives, that the year hand will do quite well. Unless your hand will do quite wel teach you anything or does not in you can tell by the clouds that rain is coming soon, it would be wise to help the seeds begin their work by giving them a shower from the watering-pot and at no time let a serious drought come to your garden, for all the little seeds need moisture to work out the wonder of their growing." Those among the older "young people" who are so fortunate as to possess a dear little sister or brother, and a garden, will find it worth while working out this surprise.-Harper's Young People. Some Curious Things.

ABOUT THE YOUNG FOLKS. of timber suspended between trees over the elephant path, and across which they place a lightrope attached to a trigger, so that the moment the rope is touched by an elephant, down comes the spear on his back. This is certainly an ingenious method of hunting the elephant, quite worthy of an ingenious Yankee in fact, but Americans have cause to rejoice that it is too barbaric for this country. Walking and hunting in the woods here would lose half their charms if poisoned arrows were suspended over our heads, put there for the purpose of killing deer or other game.

What All Boys Should Know. Don't be satisfied with your boy's education, says the "School Supplement," or allow him to handle a Latin or Greek book until you are sure that he can:

Write a good legible hand. Spell all the words he knowshow to Speak and write good English. Write a good social letter. Write a good business letter. Add a column of figures rapidly. Make out an ordinary account. Deduct 16% percent from the face of Receipt it when paid. Write an ordinary receipt. Write an advertisement for the local paper.

Write a notice or report of a public meeting.

Write an ordinary promissory note. Reckon the interest or discount on it for days, months or years.

Draw an ordinary bank cheque. Take it to the proper place in a bank to get the cash.

Make neat and correct entries in day-book and ledger.

Tell the number of yards of carpet required for your parlor.

Measure the pile of lumber in your shed. Tell the number of bushels of wheat in your largest bin, and the value at current rates.

Tell something about the great au-thors and statesmen of the present Tell what railways he would take in making a trip from Boston to Sar Francisco.

If he can do all this and more, it is likely he has sufficient education to enable him to make his own way in the world. If you have more time and money to spend on him, all well and good-give him higher English, give him literature, give him mathematics, give him science, and if he is very, very anxious about it, give him Latin or Greek, or whatever the course he intends pursuing in life demands.

How to Get the Most Good Out of Books.

You should treat a book as you would a person with whom you are talking for information; that is, question it, read it over and turn back and try to get at the meaning; if the book itself does not answer the questions you raise, go to some other book, ask a dictionary or encyclopedia for an explanation. And if the

D. M. FALEVILER, Manager. < DOES Illinois State Business Agent, A General Merchandise Business with Farmers. Furnishes all Lines of Goods. Binder Twine A Specialty. We Deal in all Grades. Our SATIN Brand of Superior Quality.

Write for information and prices. Receives consignments of Grain, Hay. Wool, Etc. Money advanced on shipments when desired. Direct shipments saves middlemen's profits.

OUR BOOK LIST

Our list of choice literature is made up of the best and most reliable reform books, by the most noted writers. If you want to keep posted on the great questions before the American people you should consult the authorities. We name below a number of the best books published.

PAPER. CLOTH. The Railway Problem, by Stickney. The greatest sensation of the year is this great book on the railway problem by a railway Jason Edwards, by Hamlin Garland, a new book that should be read by every Alliance member in Nebrassa. Dedicated to the Farmers' Alliance it gives a graphic description of life in a pioneer settlement, and the glimpses of city life are not in the 1 25 1 25 Whither are We Drifting, Willey..... 1 25 The Farmers' Side. Senator Peffer of Kansas has in a very careful and plain manner stated the injustice of the present methods in this new book, and outlined plans for relief..... 1 00 1 00 Emmet Bonlore, Reed. A new book of engrossing interest by a 1 25 Driven from Sea to Sea, Post. A book that should be read by all ... .50 1 00 An Indiana Man, Armstrong. A well told story of a young man who 1 00 A Kentucky Colonel, Reed. The deepest thinker and the most progressive of all the writers of humor in this country is Opie P. The Coming Climax in the Destinies of America, by Lester C. Hubbard. 480 pages of new facts and generalizations in American politics. Radical yet constructive. An abundant supply of new 1 00 1 00 1 00

Ten men of Money Island, Norton. Col. Norton has told his story in a way that cannot fail to interest you, send for a copy...... Geld, Shilling. This book should be in the hands of every German Smith's Diagram and Parliamentary Rules..... 50 Roberts' Rules of Order..... 75 Labor and Alliance Songster, words only 10c each. Per dozen.... 1.10 11 11 16 " Music ed. 20c " " by ex 2.00 " " " board 25c " " " 2.50 Songs of Industry, Howe. In this book the author has given us a numker of entirely new songs, words and music complete, and surface of the sea. The island of Alango was seven miles long by four wide, and was supposed to have about 500 inhab-itants. It had disappeared, and not even a dead body was found floating, though some of the forest trees were carried 300 miles down the could But this rest of the close down the gulf. But this was not the only down the guil. But this was not the only strange sight which greeted the eyes of the crew when daylight came. On an even keel in the middle of the newly created reef was a ship with all her masts standing, and when the brig had been worked in on a light breeze and a boat lowered it was discovered that she was the missing Vik-

Farmers Supply & Grain Co. 155 LAKE STREET, CHICAGO, ILL.

1892.

Captain Jack boarded her, and brought off many things to exhibit as proofs of his report. She had been captured in those waters, and by pirates from the island They had taken out her cargo, stripped her of sails and running rigging and then scuttled her. She had gone down in water perhaps half a mile deep, and her deeks s and masts were incrusted with shells and fungus. She lay about half a mile from the water's edge, and of course there was no hope of floating her. Captain Jack left her resting in her rocky cradle, and during the next two years she was often sighted by European ships. For reason she was set on fire, presumably by natives, and thus ended her strange

It was on this same voyage, and four days later, when the brig had worked up against head winds to the group of islands called the Sang-Wan group, that the second strange adventure occurred. One afternoon as the brig was steering to the east of the islands, with the nearest one about three miles away, the wind fell and she was left rolling on a glassy sea. There was no fear of an carthquake on this occasion, but Captain Jack was worried about something else. These islands had been a piratical stronghold, and he did not feel sure that all the rascals had been driven out. He went aloft himself to in-spect the island with his glass and he presently discovered something to bring him down in a hurry. He reported that he could make out several huts on the shore and that a native craft was evidently making ready to pull out and pay the brig a visit. He must have had a chicken hearted crew with him, for the log reports that he had to threaten some of them with shooting to prevent them from taking the yawl and leaving the vessel to her fate. The arms were brought up and distributed, each man served with a dram to raise his spirits, and when the prahu was finally en coming out it was agreed to defend the brig to the last.

The sun was still two hours high when the native craft was within a quarter of a dent, for it fell upon ships at sea and raymile of the brig, which was being slowly set in shore by a current, but which was in too deep water to anchor. Captain Jack had made good use of his time. There be-ing only one prahu, and the brig being high out of water, the rascals would doubtiess seek to board at the bows. All the grease and slush which could be found aboard was used there to make the boarding more difficult, while the cock got hot water ready and trains of powder were laid on deck. It was meant to fire these in case the pirates got a foothold and drove the crew aft.

Just out of musket shot the pirate craft rested on her oars, and Captain Jack counted thirty of the rascals, each one well armed and ready for desperate work. He hailed them and asked what was wanted; but no reply was made. He then warmed them to keep off or take the con-sequences; but his loud talk did not bluff them. They were simply looking the brig over to note her strength and what prepa-rations she had made for resistance. After a delay of ten minutes the cam of the Just out of musket shot the pirate craft delay of ten minutes the oass of the rahu fell into the water, her entire crew ttered a cheer, and she had just got under rocky reaf or key, black and barren, about three miles long by a mile broad. At no point was it more than five feet above the thus wiped out.

thus wiped out. The brig then sailed for Singapore and The brig then sailed for Singapore and reached that port in safety. A claim was there set up by the German consul and others, but the courts decided against them. What the value of the Hopewell's cargo was the log does not state but it must have amounted to a large sum, for after receiving his share of the sale Captain Jack decided to give up the sea and its perils and become a ship chandler. When the particulars of his adventure with the pirates reached England some of the humane societies made a great add over his heartlessness in picking off the Malays as they floated about, but every sailor would have voted him a gold to bacco box for doing that very thing as thoroughly as he did.

Docking Horses.

"The arguments against the cruel prac tice of docking horses' tails," says a corre spondent, "might meet with more consid eration in this Christian land if the gentle dames who countenance the practice were instructed as to the origin of the custom During the time Warren Hastings was governor of India, over a century ago, the English were first shocked by encountering this cruel fashion, originated by the savage Tartars in the Thibetan mountains So repulsive did it seem to our good Anglo-Saxons that they not, only refused to horses thus deformed, but actually paid the mountaineers a bounty to induce them to forego the practice. "And now, O world of inconsistency, it is England which has persuaded the gentle American to take up, as the height of fashion, this rude and barbarous mode, long since discarded by those mountain savages Shall we be obliged to import a missionary from the savages to buy us off?"-New York Tribune.

The March of the Black Death.

The destructive march of the pestilence, the black death, cannot now be accurately traced, but it swept along from east to west, slowly enough, but with inexorable wing. Rumors of trouble and disaster heralded its approach. A thick, stinking mist was reported to herald or accompany the march of the fell destroyer. Nor were there wanting signs and wonders in the sky, and a grand conjunction of the three superior planets-Saturn, Jupiter and Mars-in the sign of Aquarius, 24th March. 1,345, might have been read by those acquainted with the secrets of the stars as portentous of unheard of disasters. That the infection was conveyed in the air and spread itself with the varied tides and currents of the aerial ocean seems evi aged ti most secluded places; but it was vely contagious, and followed trade routes and seized upon i, of traffic.-All the Year every Round

The First Man to Carry Umbrella. Jonas Hanway was said to be the first man who carried an umbrella in the streets of London. Umbrellas were long before that carried by women, but they were considered a feminine luxury, and a man would no more be seen with one than now adays be would walk the streets with a parasol in summer or carry a muff in win-

But Jonas Hanway, thinking, like a sen sible man, that all the good things should not be appropriated by women, boidly walked the streets one day with an um-brella (probably it belonged to his wife) over his head. He not only kept himself dry among his moist fellow creatures, but he rendered his name immortal and left a shining example to us who have not always the "courage of But it was long before convictions." whole country got used to umbrel. rper's Young the aid of sinker or other appendage, and in water from twenty to sixty feet deep. Each boat was in charge of a white man who sculled the boat along and kept his "boys" up to the mark. Excepting an hour for dinner, they remained away from the schooner from sunrise to sunset. A good native diver, if shells were moderately plentiful, would get from 60 to 100 pairs per day.-H. P. Whitmarsh in Century. Everything Was All Right.

The major had invited me to go out with him to his plantation, and we were skirting a field where a number of old stumps had been set on fire, when he suddenly stopped, sniffed the air and inquired: "Can't yo' smell something roasting around yere?"

"Yes, there is a queer smell." "Smells like a piece of old cowhide thrown into the fire?"

"Yes." "Smells like that old piece of cowhide had got all frizzled up?'

"Yes. Is anything wrong?" "Not just yet, but something will be sorter wrong if I don't find that enery nigger who's seeing after these fires.

"DEM AR FEET MUST A-GOT AFIAH AIRLY DIS MAWNIN.

We walked over to the place designated, and there on the ground, lying on the broad of his back, with his hands locked under his neck, was a negro fast asleep. Instead of boots he had rags on his feet and the rags on both feet were on fire and evidently had been for a long time.

"Boy! Boy! Oh, boy!" called the major as he touched him with his boot. "Wha-what's de rumpus, Mars Thompson?" stammered the negro as he sat up and looked around. "Yo'r feet are on fire!" "Shoo! Yo' doan tell me!"

"Come-stir around or yo'll be laid up." "Yes, sah-yes, sah-I'ze gwine ter ba movin right away, but deir's no cause fur o get excited, Mars Thompson. Dem ar eet must a-got afiah airly dis mawnin. out de fiah hain't dun worked down frew de first layer o' chilblains yit! Plenty o' time, Mars Thompson-plenty o' time if I doan do nuffin befo' evenin!"

ML QUAD. Exercise Galore.

"Does your wife take much exercise?"

An absent-minded Frenchman went to the police in Paris a few days ago. and told them that he had been missing from home for three days, and requested that in case they saw anything of him to let him know at once. Another absent-minded man went to his room to dress for a dinner party, but after removing his day clothes, will find it the most interesting .- St. Nicholas. instead of putting on his evening clothes he donned his night apparel, and getting into bed slept soundly until the next morning, when extreme hunger reminded him of the lost din-

Small boys who think ten cents a glass an enormous sum to pay for soda-water ought to be very glad that they have a taste for anything so cheap, and not for Ceylon tea, some of which was sold in London not long ago for £35-or $175-a pound. It was composed of what are called "golden tips," which are the extreme "golden tips," which are the extreme industry, aided him in his studies. ends of the shoots of the tea plant, When he was twenty-four years old and certainly the term golden, in view of the prices brought when the tips then it was said that young O'Conor's were put on sale, was most appropriate.

A writer who has observed the elen times of danger the parents of the baby elephant place the young ones together in the centre of the herd, and him.-Donahoe's Magazine. the mothers eather immediately about them so as to hide them entirely from view. Sometimes, the wrater adds, an old mother is seen hurrying along, her baby following with its little trunk twisted around the end of its mother's tail to enable it to keep up.

A scientist who agrees with those who say that man is only a monkey of larger growth went to a circus the other day with a friend, and claimed pounds, and two cross sticks 21 feet to be stronger than ever in his opinions as to man's ancestry, after seeing the intensely human way in which the monkeys reached out for, grabbed, and ate the peanuts offered them. He had very little to say, however, when few minutes later while standing before the elephants, one of the huge creatures put the end of his trunk in his pocket and stole a whole bagful of peanuts. Apropos of elephants, African travelers are frequently exposed to great danger, not so much because of their being likely to encounter these great beasts under adverse circumstances, but because of the traps laid by the natives for catching them. The ill-fated naturalist Jameson, in his story of the rear column, gives a vivid description of the trials and tribulations brought upon him in this manner. It is positively dangerous asked Fenderson of Fogg. "Exercise!" exclaimed Fogg. "I should forest, for the natives have had say so. She changes her dress six times poisoned spears tied to immense logs -Boston Post.

spire you, it is of no more service to you than the conversation of a dull, ignorant person. I just used the word "inspire;" You do not read all books for facts or for information merely, but to be inspired, to have your thoughts lifted up to noble ideas. to have your sympathies touched, to haveyou ambition awakened to do some worthy or great thing, to become a man or a woman of character and consideration in the world. You read the story of a fine action or a heroic character-the death of Socrates, or the voyage of Columbus, or such a poem as "The Lady of the Lake" not for information only, but to create in you a higher ideal of life, and to give you sympathy with your fellows and with noble purposes. You cannot begin too young to have these ideals and these purposes, and therefore the best literature in all the world is the best for you to begin with. And you

What Industry Will do.

The life of Charles O'Conor, the eminent lawyer, shows what diligence and perseverance will accomplish. When about eight years old he was an office boy and a newspaper carrier. When seventeen years of age he entered a lawyer's office as an errand boy. He borrowed law books, took them home, and read them by the light of a tallow candle far into the night. Several lawyers, noticing the boy's he was admitted to the bar, and even legal opinion was worth more than that of many other lawyers. He worked hard at the smallest case, phant in its native clime; states that never slighting any trust, and in time secured the reputation of a man who would do his best for those employing

The Biggest Kite Ever Made.

The biggest kite in the world was made in Durham, Greene county, New York, about a year ago. It may be taken as the biggest kite ever made. The frame consisted of two main sticks 28 feet long, weighing each 100 long and weighing 75 pounds each; all of these sticks were 5x6 inches in di mensions.

Over this frame work was stretched a great sheet of white duck 25x28 feet, and weighing 55 pounds. The tail of the kite alone weighed 50 pounds and contained 55 yards of muslin. Twenty-five hundred feet of half-inch rope erved as "kite strings."

This plaything cost $75, and when t mounted into the air it exerted a lifting power of 50 pounds. Six men once permitted it to ascend 1,000 feet.

Wanted to Do Penance.

Sorrowful looking man-And it doesn't hurt at all to have your tooth pulled?

Dentist-Not a bit. Climb right into this chair.

"No; I guess I'll buy new pair of shoes. I played the races yesterday and feel that I ought to be punished. MUSICAL

Any book on the list sent post paid on receipt of price. Liberal discounts to Alliances wishing to purchase a library.

We are offering THE FARMERS' ALLIANCE one year, and any 50c book on the list for only $1.35. Address

Pure Hemp Binder Twine

FROM HOME GROWN FIBER.

We can offer to farmers a better article for less money than they have ever before known.

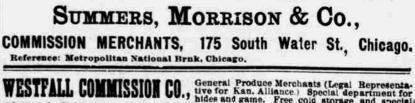

Will ship sample bag and take lodge note payable Oct. 1,'92.

Patronize Home Industry.

For further information address Nebraska Binder Twine Co., Fremont, Neb., or J. W. Hartley, Alliance Purchasing Agent, Lincoln, Neb.

The way to do this is to ship your Butter. Poultry, Eggs, Veal. Hay, Crain, Wool, Hides, Beans, Broom Corn, Creen and Dried Fruits, Vegetables, or anything you have to us. The fact that you may have been selling these articles at horae for years is no reason that you should continue to do so if you can find a better market. We make a specialty of receiving shipments direct from FARMERS AND PRODUCERS, and probably have the largest trade in this way of any house in this market. Whilst you are looking around for the cheapest market in which to buy your goods, and thus economizing in that way, it will certainly pay you to give some attention to the best and most profitable way of disposing of your produce. We invite correspor dence from INDIVIDUALS, ALLIANCES, CLUBS and all organizations who desire to ship their preduce direct to this market. If requested, we will send you free of charge our daily market report, shipping directions and such information as will be of service to you, if you contemplate shipping. When so requested proceeds for shipments will be deposited to the credit of the shipper with any wholesale house in Chicago. Let as hear from you.

WESTFALL COMMISSION CO., General Produce Merchants (Legal Representa-tive for Kan. Alliance.) Special department for hides and game. Free cold storage and special tatoes, apples, onions, hav all cabbage. Give us a share of your consignments. We get the highest market price and make prompt returns. Direct all communications and orders to 46tf WESTFALL COM. CO., 423 Wainut St., Kansas City, Mo.

MERCHANDISE. Our stock replete with everything in the musical line. Prices to uit the times. N. P. Custa, & Co.