WHAT THEY THINK OF IT.

Press Comments on Cleveland's Gold-Bug Message.

Cleveland ignores the platform upon which he was elected. His message proves him to be what everybody knew he was before the election: the subservient tool of the money power of New York and London.—Sutton Register.

A single gold standard for this country is what the president wants and the plainest reason given is because England has it. Our congress will have something to say however, before the single gold standard is adopted.—Leigh World-News.

I consider that the message places the president in the ranks of the single gold standard men. I think the message indicates that Cleveland will grant no quarter to the silver men and the latter should ask none, but should enter the fight with the determination to never give up until the battle so strongly begun is won and few coinage is achieved.—Tom Patterson.

The president did not back down. His message was what was outlined weeks ago, and in line with his call for the extraordinary session. He charges all the ills of the nation to the law authorizing the purchase of silver, and demands its prompt repeal. This puts the democrats to the test. There are many honest men who have believed that Cleveland would see what the masses see, and listen to the warnings of a rising storm. But he does not. The die is cast. Every democrat must now take ground. Every Cleveland man is a gold-bug, and today every gold-bug is standing by Cleveland, in his effort to destroy this nation by making it a province of Great Britain. Show your hand gentlemen.—Coming Crisis.

Grover Cleveland, the "stuffed prophet," has delivered his message to congress. As we expected, the president, true to the money power whose servant he is, declares that silver purchases by the government must be stopped at once, and that we must adopt the British gold standard in this country. Mr. Cleveland appears to recognize his pet tariff hobby as a question of minor importance, and concludes his message in these words: "I earnestly recommend the prompt repeal of the provisions of the act passed July 1890, authorizing the purchase of silver bullion."

The present administration is dominated by the money kings of both the republican and democratic parties, who have boldly and defiantly adopted the rule of ruin policy. The only way to checkmate these men whose mighty efforts are to prostrate the splendid old-time principles of the republican and democratic parties is for men to refuse to longer sustain these traitors in power. Renounce this class of men and their methods, and then the day is at hand when we as individuals will be happy and contented, business will flourish and hard times will exist only as a matter of history. Mr. Cleveland's message is a brazen attempt to play into the hands of the gold speculators, regardless of the interests of every other class of citizens. Nothing more, nothing less.—Platte county Argus.

The doctors gave him little encouragement.

The body of Henry Anderson, who met his death by being buried alive in a well at the depth of over 100 feet on the Ramsbottom place south of Harrisburg, was finally recovered after having been in the ground nearly three weeks. The remains were in a very badly decomposed condition, but were encoased at once in a metallic coffin and sent to Illinois for interment.

The Utica Sun observes that Gib Patterson, living south of town, has been drawing $3 per month from Uncle Sam for service rendered from 1861 to 1865, in the way of making a public target of his carcass but was recently informed that his $3 would not be forthcoming in the future as Hoke Smith is endeavoring to reduce the public debt by cutting down the pension roll.

Another pest, said to be the "army worm," has struck this valley and is doing much damage to the wheat, oats and other crops, says the Bayard Transcript. There are millions of them, and the ground is literally covered with them. They strip the leaves from the wheat stalk without apparent injury to the head, but they strip the oats entire of leaves and head, and in places have attacked the corn. The Sidney divide is said to swarm with them, while wagons passing along the road crush them by the thousands.

STORM IN NEBRASKA.

A Woman Fatally Injured and Thirteen Horses Killed or Maimed.

HUMBOLDT, Neb., Aug. 17.—A tornado swept through this vicinity last evening. Mrs. Schultz was fatally and her 12-year-old son seriously injured. A mile east the farm house of Joe Holechek was taken from its foundation and all outbuildings and grain destroyed. At the Patterson farm similar devastation was done, thirteen head of horses being killed or maimed.
