REV. J. A. DEARBORN.

REV. J. A. DEARBORN, State President of the American Protective Association of Missouri.

The subject of the above likeness, J. A. Dearborn, state president of the American Protective Association of Missouri, and resident of Kansas City, Mo., is of English blood, New Englandized first and then southernized. His greatest grandfather on this continent was named Godfrey Dearborn, who emigrated from England and settled at Hampton, New Hampshire, in 1633, and was the paterfamilias of all the numerous families of Dearborns that are to be found, especially in the New England states. His father, Jonathan Dearborn, emigrated from Hampton and settled in Cynthiana, county seat of Harrison county, Kentucky, in 1816, when the country was a wilderness, and where the subject of this sketch was born and christened John Quincy Adams Dearborn. He says "that although he does not remember the facts of the case, he was present on the occasion." Six months after his entrance upon the stage of human life, his father removed to Paris, Bourbon county, the country of good whisky, fast horses, brave men and beautiful women, and there the family remained until death and removal carried all of them away. Very early in life he felt oppressed by the weight of name that his father had placed upon his infant shoulders, and hence he dropped out the Quincy, cut off the "dams" from Adams, and always, except when required to do otherwise, writes his name simply J. A. Dearborn.

The person bearing that much mutilated name was graduated from Bethany college, located in that part of the mutilated state of old Virginia now styled West Virginia—so mutilated by having that section of her territory chopped off by the republican congressional legislative axe, and in the particularly patriotic policy and vain hope of perpetuating, indefinitely, republican rule in this country.

Mr. Dearborn chose as his calling in life the ministry of the gospel, and for forty years past he has been recognized as an able and reputable preacher of that body of religious people known as "Disciples" or "Christians." Long years ago he took note of the nature, aims and growth of Romanism in our country, and publicly and privately often uttered the voice of warning in the dull ears of his countrymen. In his early manhood he became identified with that spasm of patriotism called know-nothingism—a sentiment rather than policy. When the claims of the American Protective Association were presented to him in its early days in Kansas City, he saw its merit, and at once espoused it with ardor. How earnestly and persistently and well he advocated the cause is known only to its friends in this city. He was the unanimous choice of the councils of Kansas City for the state presidency of the organization, and at the state convention held in St. Louis in January last, he was unanimously chosen to that high and responsible position. As a public speaker and advocate of Americanism he stands among the first. Notwithstanding his advanced years he is an energetic, constant and enthusiastic worker, and is highly esteemed by all who know him.

In conclusion of this brief and imperfect sketch, after expressing our sincere wish for a long continuance of his life of usefulness and honor, we present to our readers the following letters; first, President Cleveland's letter to the present pope of Rome, Leo XIII., and Mr. Dearborn's letter to Mr. Cleveland, inquiring about the genuineness of his purported letter to the Roman pontiff.

In this connection we may state that Mr. Dearborn has been a life-long democrat; that he voted for Mr. Cleveland "first, middle and last" for the presidency of the United States; that he received no answer to his letter, and concluding from Mr. Cleveland's silence that his letter to the pope is genuine, he concludes that the present chief magistrate of the United States, in writing that truckling, sycophantic letter, has degraded himself as an American citizen, has degraded his high position, has degraded our nation, and for which act there is no justification and no semblance of excuse, except empty official courtesy, self-imposed, and party policy to win Roman Catholic votes.

CLEVELAND TO THE POPE.

ROME, August 12.—The pope has received the following letter from Cardinal Gibbons:

"EXECUTIVE MANSION, WASHINGTON June 9, 1893.—To his Eminence, Cardinal Gibbons, Your Eminence: Please permit me to transmit through you to his holiness, Leo XIII., my sincere congratulations on the golden jubilee of his episcopate. The pleasure attending this expression of my felicitations is much enhanced by the remembrance that his holiness has always manifested a lively interest in the prosperity of the United States and great admiration of our political institutions. I am glad to believe that these sentiments are the natural outgrowth of the holy father's solicitude for the welfare and happiness of the masses of humanity, and his special sympathy for every effort made to dignify simple manhood and to promote the moral and social elevation of those who toil. The kindness with which his holiness lately accepted a copy of the constitution of the United States leads me to suggest that if it does not seem presumptuous, it would please me exceedingly to place in his hands a book containing the official papers and documents written by me during my previous term of office. Yours very sincerely, GROVER CLEVELAND."

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 6, 1893.—Your Excellency, Grover Cleveland: I see in the public prints a letter purporting to have been written by you, under date June 9, 1893, and addressed to the present Roman pontiff, Leo XIII., I would respectfully inquire whether that letter is an authentic document. There is, as you know, so much fraud and imposition in this age that one cannot feel fully satisfied of the genuineness of any writing by its simple publication in a newspaper. I am a democrat, voted for you, first, middle and last, for the presidency of the United States, am in the line of descent with General Dearborn, of revolutionary memory and fame; and am a minister of the gospel of forty years' standing.

Hope that you recognize my right, as an American citizen, to make this inquiry of you, and also your duty to answer it, and with high esteem, I am, in the interest and glory of our common country, its republican government and its free institutions, yours truly, J. A. DEARBORN, 1107 Michigan Ave.

Assaulted by Romans.

On Saturday evening, March 17th, at about half past eight o'clock, Mr. Thomas Campbell, the former secretary of Cardinal Manning's "League of the Cross," whose conversion to Protestantism has greatly angered the Romanists, was walking along Nine Elms-lane, London, England, when he was suddenly attacked by three Irishmen and two Irishwomen, of the rougher class of society, who savagely kicked him on the spine, bit one of his fingers severely, and generally ill-treated him, until the blood streamed down his face and hands. After this cowardly assault they ran away, and, as they were personally unknown to Mr. Campbell there is no prospect of securing their arrest. That his conversion to Protestantism was the cause of the assault there can be no doubt, from the words they used: "This is the man who is a renegade. He sold his religion for soup. He ought to be killed," etc., etc. Such are the tender mercies of Rome toward converts to Protestantism! Truly poor Campbell has suffered severely for his conversion.

Will Publish A. P. A. Members.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., April 29.—It has always been well known that the A. P. A. had a strong foothold in Chattanooga, and people have said that if the names of its members here were published it would cause a sensation. Now it will be seen whether such a publication of names will be sensational or not, for in today's issue of Facts, the Catholic organ of this section, appears the following leading editorial: "We are in possession of a long list of alleged A. P. A. members in and about Chattanooga and other points where Facts circulates. We would not believe that all the names given are those of men who have taken the oath; in fact, we cannot believe that any reputable citizen could take or countenance any one who would take the oath. Yet as the names given are whispered abroad, and secretly engendering animosities that should not exist, we are going to publish these names, so that any that may be secretly wronged can vindicate themselves, and those who cannot do so will receive a free advertisement of their nefarious plotting and treason."

HORRIBLE CHARACTER OF POPERY

It Permits a Man to Marry His Own Sister on Payment of Money.

A correspondent of the Boston Citizen writing from Tusculum, Tenn., says: From a letter over date of 23d ult., in the Baptist Standard, Waco, Texas, written by the Rev. W. D. Powell, a missionary of the Baptist church, I take the following suggestive items for the special declaration of all the lovers and admirers of his "greediness" the pope of Rome, who claims to be the only vicar and vice-gerent of the pure and holy Saviour:

"While traveling through the state of Mexico, I passed some of the finest farms in Mexico. They are devoted to the cultivation of sugar-cane, which is manufactured into an intoxicating drink called 'Aguardiente'—fire water. Drunkenness and debauchery abound. There are some believers here, but the owner positively refuses to tolerate evangelical services on the premises. The proprietor is Mr. Escandón, who married his own sister. He paid the pope at Rome $30,000, and was led to believe his crime was purged. How can virtue exist where Rome predominates?"

"A few moments ago, passing along a street, I saw some well worn and dirty priestly robes offered for sale. A young man was closing a bargain for one at twelve dollars. When asked what he would do with it, he replied: 'It is for my father, who has just died. We will bury him in it, and the holy mother church insures us his spirit will not be required to pass through purgatory.'"

"In thinking of this $30,000 speculation of the cunning old pope, the inquiry naturally arises, which of the two is the greater brute, the monster who married his own sister, or the villain in the papal robes who authorized and sanctioned the incest? Perhaps Satelli, or some other learned dago, might enlighten the public on this branch of Roman Catholic beastliness. By all means let us hear from Satelli."

"Does the so-called 'holy father' speak and act ex-cathedra when committing such outrages upon the laws of nature and common decency, to say nothing of the sanctions of religion? Or would this be the ex-officio act of a civil magistrate? In either case it does look as if such revolting and disgusting practices should be punished by imprisonment at hard labor for a long term of years, and banishment from the presence of self-respecting and virtuous people. 'Holiness,' indeed! It is enough to drive the pure and modest portion of his followers out of the fold, or to demand, at least, a gentleman to lead the Romish flock."

The missionary, Mr. Powell, is known here in east Tennessee, and all through the southern Baptist church, and to say that this story is not true, is simply to say nothing to the point. The proof of its truth is the character, above suspicion, of Mr. Powell himself.—Northwestern American.

Arming the Jesuits.

In the city of St. Louis the huge Jesuit college, whose immense building overlooks the city of St. Louis, is placed on a war footing. Arms and ammunition are furnished for the Jesuits in St. Louis, which will doubtless form a menace to any who may dare to exercise freedom of speech in exposing the deeds of darkness of these Jesuits. The people of this state are not fully aroused to the fact that we are almost in the hands of the enemy, who are being armed to overthrow the liberty of speech and the press, and control the state government. This military captain, in this Jesuit college, is to be supported by the general government while he drills for war the most inveterate enemies the government has. The arms and ammunition are to be furnished at the expense of the government. The citizens of Missouri are to be taxed to put the Roman Catholic Jesuits on a war footing. We do not believe that the state of Missouri and the United States will remain asleep much longer.—Baptist Flag, St. Louis, Mo.

A. P. A. SUPREME COUNCIL.

Delegates From All Parts of the World Assembling at Des Moines.

Des Moines, Iowa, April 30.—The supreme council of the American Protective Association will meet here in Cycle hall Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock. Men of every state and territory who stand high in the American Protective Association will be here for several days looking into everything which has any interest for the organization. Over 500 delegates are expected out of the 700 delegates which make up the supreme council. The body is international in character, for representatives of the Protestant Protective Association, in Canada, Scotland, Australia and other countries will be present. The central middle states will send the largest delegations, and Canada, which has 375 councils of the Protestant Protective Association, will have a strong representation.

A prominent member of the organization, who is here, is Leo Richardson, Illinois state organizer, of Chicago. The supreme executive committee is the condensed power of over 1,500,000 members of the A. P. A., for the report shows that the organization has that membership. According to the reports the roll is growing at the rate of 1,000 daily. The Protestant Protective Association has a membership of 150,000. This enormous growth is the result of a meeting of seven men in a Clinton, Iowa, lawyer's rear office six years ago, and the order, though the youngest of the seventy patriotic associations of America, is said to be the largest and most aggressive. The reports of the Illinois state council show that Illinois has 85,000 A. P. A.s, and Iowa claims 45,000.—News-Record.

The Supreme Council.

The supreme council of the A. P. A. is in session in Des Moines, Ia., this week, and bids fair to be the most notable gathering the order has ever participated in. There are representatives present from thirty-four states, who report a combined membership of 2,000,000. Canada sends representatives from 378 councils; London, England sends representatives from 15, and Paris, France, from 5. It is a gathering of representative men, being composed of ex-governors, lawyers, doctors, merchants, laboring men, capitalists and railroad men and officials.

Henry F. Bowers, the founder of the order is present, and is counseling the younger members, among whom none is taking a more active interest than Leo J. Richardson, the organizer of Cook County, Illinois. Our brainy friend Theo. Gastfeld of the same state is present accompanied by State President Johnson and State Secretary Newton of Illinois. Nebraska, Kansas and Missouri are ably represented, and this can be truthfully said also of Massachusetts, Michigan, California, Colorado, the Dakotas, Wyoming, Utah, Indiana, Minnesota, Iowa, New Jersey and Wisconsin.

It is understood that the election of officers will occur Saturday, May 5. As no states have been agreed upon, it is impossible to forecast the next list of officials.

This paper will contain a more complete report next week of the proceedings.

Not in Politics.

Some people say the Catholic church is not in politics, but we insist that it is. Read the following from Washington, D. C., under date of April 20, 1894, and we believe you will say that we are right:

Ex-Postmaster Edwards, accompanied by Rev. Father Brennan, of Webster City, Ia., arrived here this morning, and in company with Congressman Hayes they visited the postoffice department in the interests of Mr. Howard, who is a candidate for the postoffice. The term of Postmaster J. D. Hunter expires on the 1st of July. As Postmaster General Bissell had gone to Buffalo (they did not succeed in accomplishing anything definite, but they saw the acting first assistant and made a vigorous protest against the removal of the site of the postoffice from the location where it has existed to a place a block and a half west, as suggested by Col. Wilson, of Hamilton county).—N. W. American.

DON'T YOU HAVE TO

go 2,000 miles to reach the land of the prune. The irrigated lands of Idaho along the line of the Union Pacific System are capable of producing the class of fruit seen in the Idaho Exhibit at the World's Fair. Why! by stopping in Idaho you'll save enough on your fare and freight to make the first payment on your farm. Investigate. Advertising matter sent on application.

Satelli Orders the Use of English.

LA CHASSA, Wis., April 25.—The Rev. Dean William White of the Roman Catholic diocese says Mgr. Satelli has ordered that English be the language of the Roman Catholic churches here, and that St. Mary's church will be the cathedral church of La Chassa.

LOGAN, Ohio, April 2, 1894—Editor AMERICAN:—Dear sir: I am a subscriber to your valuable paper and write a few lines to let you know that everything in the East is A. P. A. I am proud of it, for I am a member of that order myself, and think that every loyal man should be. Receive your paper once a week, and only wish that it was published every day. We have a council in Logan. It is not of monstrous size, but large enough through the county to keep these Romans out of office. I will close by asking one question: What can you send copies to Logan for, once a week? I think that I have a boy who can introduce the paper in this town. J. W.
