Judge Burke's Decision Will Affect the Home of the Good Shepherd.

The recent decision of Judge Burke against the Washingtonian Home is likely to have far reaching and important effects. If it should be affirmed by the Appellate Court and the Superior Court, not only would the Erring Woman's Refuge and the House of the Good Shepherd be offected, but the large revenues derived from the same source by the police pension fund and the firemen's pension fund would be cut off. Indeed, it is a question in the minds of some lawyers whether a suit might not then lie against the three first named institutions, which possess valuable real estate, for the recovery of all the money hitherto received by them from the city, the repayment of which would mean their almost utter ruin.

Assistant Corporation Council Zeis ler, said in open court he would immedintely notify the controller to stop the payment of similar stipends to the Erring Woman's Refuge and the House of the Good Shepherd. Several years ago the legislature enacted a law giving to these institutions in equal shares all the money derived from fines imposed in connection with disorderly houses in in this city. Accordingly each has received from this source the sum of $2. 500, more or less, every year since the law was enacted. The loss of this annual payment, even without being forced to return all previous payments, would be a blow to these institutions.

The original act by which the legislature of 1867 attempted to make the city contribute to the support of these concerns which were not obligated to do anything in return, and which have done very little to compensate the city for the money it has lost, was a bad act and never ought to have been passed. The city authorities ought never to have made payments to these institutions. In that case thousands and thousands of dollars could have been saved and expended for useful public purposes. These institutions, are in no sense municipal ones, they are officered and administered by their own board of managers, and the city had no right to visit and inspect them, much less control their affairs. The arrangement whereby these institutions have received aid from the city has always excited more or less public dissatisfaction, and suits even have resulted. But all efforts to stop the payment of the money, until the suit be fore Judge Burke was begun, proved in vain because of the other charities which would be involved, but particularly on account of the police pension fund, which is partly replenished in the same general way. At last, however, in 1893, the city refused to pay the $20,000 any longer and the Wash-Ingtonion Home began a mandamus suit to compel it to do so. As it was red, and the suit was decided in favor of the city when Judge Burke overruled the demurrer.

A Remarkable Vision of Joseph Hoag in 1803.

NO. 47 NEW BROAD STREET, LON-DON, E. C., Aug. 2 .- To the Editor: shall be obliged by the insertion, if convenient, of the inclosed, which will probably interest your readers.

W. EVANS DARBY, Secretary of the Peace Society.

An American journal, the Christian Arbitrator, in referring to the recent and long-continuing disorders in the United States, the lynchings, murders, political corruption, strikes, mob vioience, trade-union despotism, and general lawlessness which have become such wide-spread and alarming features of the great republic, reproduces the narrative of a "vision" seen nearly a century ago by a Quaker minister of Vermont named Joseph Hoag.

The vision has for several general its promulgation long before the great civil war of 1861-65, which it predicted.

The Christian Arbitrator appears ap prehensive that the recent and present circumstances of the United States render it probable that there will also, and perhaps at no very remote period; strong monarchy, and also of an estabfrom other religious denominations. There is too much reason to infer that, if such be the case, the dominant power ence all over the American union.

Relatives of the Late Father J. M. Ryan Bring the Case Into Court.

Eleven relatives have filed objections to probating the will, of the late Father

James M. Ryan who died last winter, in Omaha, setting out at length eight grounds of objection, the principal eing that the form of the will is not in accordance with law; that Father Ryan. on account of age, was not competent and could not even write his name.

A small portion of his property is left to a sister, Mary Lamb, after which the residue goes to Bishop Scannell for the use and advantage of the Roman Catholic church.

Mrs. Thomas S. Coffee, wife of a nephew of Father Ryan, testified to several tions been familiarly known to many of conversations which she and her the Friends, and there is no doubt as to husband had with Father Ryan subsequent to the making of the will. April 2, 1892, they called at the hospital. Father Ryan expressed himself as dissatisfied and wanted to go to his old home with Mrs. Lamb, the sister to whom was left an $8,000 bequest. He spoke of the will, and said the reason be brought to pass the state of things why he made it was because the bishop further brought before the Quaker asked him to do so, but he did not know seer, namely, the establishment of a any more what he was doing than they did. Mrs. Coffee was asked if Father lished church, with arbitrary exactions Ryan said anything about being compelled to sign the will. Objection was made to this by Mr. C. J. Smyth.

Judge Baldwin said: "We intend to in question will be the Roman Catholic show from 1891 he was powerless to church, which is rapidly acquiring change the will, because from that time governmental and municipal pre-emin- on there hung over him the fear of eternal damnation."
