The Pope is Not Coming.

We have heard a great deal of late about the Roman Catholics getting conthe day almost at hand when the pope | Speaking of his daughter, he says: shall tet up a throne on our shores. It is a needless fear. Romanism is not political force, According to Dr. Robbut 10.7 per cent, of the voters of the land are Roman Catholics. There were in 1890 some 16,940,311 men of voting age in the country. Of these 4,558,412 were communicants of Protestant churches, and 1,942,682 belonged to the Roman Catholic church. Doubtless a very large number of the Romanists themselves would resist any attempt to override the freedom in matters of religion guaranteed by the constitution, or any attempt of the church to control the state. These facts should be duly considered when it is asserted that we need Protestant organizations for the protection of American institutions. Brethren, the pope is not coming to
