

EDITORIAL OPINION.

The Boston Daily Journal, having the largest Republican circulation in New England, in reviewing the East Boston riot, gives vent to these editorial opinions in its issue of July 5th and 6th:

"That startling riot in East Boston yesterday afternoon, in which a man lost his life and several other men were seriously wounded, never should have happened on any day of the year, and least of all on the anniversary of the birth of the American Republic. An extraordinary affair of this kind demands plain speaking. Every thoughtful American citizen may well ask himself this question, Whither are we drifting—when a brutal mob can violently assault in the streets of an American city a patriotic procession displaying no emblems more offensive than an American school-house and marching under the American flag?

Something is radically wrong with the social and political conditions of this country when such an astounding thing is possible. This whole episode is a scandalous affront to the patient and tolerant spirit of the American nation. It is a startling demonstration that among the people from foreign lands who have accepted our freely offered hospitality there are many who have assumed the form without the substance of American citizenship. They demand and enjoy its privileges, but refuse to perform its duties or fulfill its obligations. The vicious mob which hissed the American school-house and the American flag had very little more real comprehension of true Americanism than the [Chicago] Hay-market anarchists, or little more knowledge of what is actually meant by our national principles of civil and religious freedom.

The affair has been a bad one from the beginning. The refusal of the committee of the East Boston Carnival Association, which had received $800 of the city's money, to admit a representation of a typical American country school-house in its parade, was a gross blunder if not an act of downright impudence. It was followed up by an acrimonious tirade by a couple of Democratic aldermen, which, though not, in all probability, intended to produce just that result, inevitably served to inflame still further the race and religious rancor of the least intelligent of their sympathizers. The police precautions to prevent a conflict, which were apparently ample, finally proved to be inadequate, and the outcome was the most serious riot which has occurred in Boston for a generation.

It is true that many of the participants in the procession seem to have been armed; but, really, is there much to be wondered at in that, considering the threats which had been made, and recent incidents in Concord? Candid observers testify that the men in the ranks were quiet and intelligent citizens, who nowhere appear to have taken the aggressive. They fought and fought vigorously, but it is insisted that that was only when long-continued insults had developed into actual attacks. There is no divided evidence as to the extent and persistence of the hostile demonstrations.

If an American school-house and the Stars and Stripes cannot be carried peaceably by any body of law-abiding men, whatever their race or their creed, along the public highways of an American city, the American people will demand the reason why."

"Murder seems to be an extreme accusation to bring against the two men who are charged with shooting John Willis during the riot on Border street, East Boston, Thursday afternoon, particularly as the police are said to have positive testimony that Willis was one of their most desperate assailants. According to the best authenticated descriptions of the struggle, Brown and Ross, hopelessly outnumbered by the savage mob, with their lives in imminent peril, were simply acting in natural and justifiable self-defense. But the real facts in the case can safely be left to the courts to determine. The accused are assured of justice in this commonwealth.

Public amazement and indignation at this brutal outburst of defiant alienism strengthen rather than abate its real significance is considered. There has been in some quarters an attempt to represent the affair as a sudden flaring up of the old feud between the Catholics and Orangemen of Ireland. Intimations to this end appear in some of the dispatches which were sent out from Boston to the press of the other cities of the country. They are altogether erroneous, and are due either to insincerity or ignorance. It is the concurrent evidence of competent observers that the great bulk of the procession which was so savagely attacked by the thugs and hoodlums was made up of men of native birth, who know little and care less about Old World animosities. It is an undeniable fact that the most conspicuous organizations in the parade were lodges of old and honored orders which stand for an intense Americanism and are supposed to confine their membership exclusively to native-born American citizens. And the little red school-house, at which the lawless rabble hissed and howled as it went along amid the solid ranks of its blue-coated protectors, is not a foreign emblem or a relic of ancient quarrels beyond the seas. It is distinctively an American institution.

That conflict in the streets of East Boston was essentially a conflict between American and foreign ideas of education, fair play and freedom. We have welcomed these aliens to our shores, and have generously bestowed upon them all the privileges which were won by the toils and the sacrifices of our ancestors, including the rights of free speech and free assemblage. I a body of these aliens, clothed in the regalia and bearing the emblems of their religious or racial societies, had marched through the streets of East Boston that afternoon, does any intelligent man believe that they would have been molested? The lawful rights and privileges which the American people in good faith extend to others they are determined to be able to exercise themselves. It will fare ill with those who would resist them.

If there are any persons in this country, whether born here or born elsewhere, who cannot endure the sight of an American school-house, with the Stars and Stripes above it, they had better go, and go at once. For them, as for the anarchists, America has no place in her wide borders.

Howard's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhea Remedy. NEW ORLEANS, June 15, 1894.—For fifteen years I have suffered with a dreadful disease—Chronic Diarrhoea. I tried a great many remedies, but found no relief. Howard's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhea Remedy was recommended to me by a traveling man, and to my great satisfaction it cured me, and I am never without it in my house. Free Speech Prohibited. COLUMBIA, S. C., June 26.—Colonel John J. Dargan, of Sumpter, editor of the Freeman, was driven out of Edgefield today by a mob of white men. He had an appointment at Edgefield to speak on universal suffrage, or a fair treatment of the negro in the election of delegates to the constitutional convention. He had delivered his speech in several towns in the state. Notwithstanding he had been warned that if he persisted in agitating the subject further he would be killed, he has not flinched, and this morning went to make his address at the county seat of the active county of Senator Tillman, whom he has denounced severely for threats to suppress the black voters. Upon his arrival he was waited upon by a committee of countrymen, who had entered the town in large numbers, and warned that he must not attempt to speak. He consented not to speak, but did not leave town until it was seen that his presence would bring on a riot. He was supported by a number of the citizens, who were roundly cursed by the mob as negro-lovers.

Priests Pacify Drunken Papists. JEFFERSONVILLE, Ind., July 4.—The failure of the contractors of the Chicago, Indianapolis & Rockport to pay the 150 Italian laborers the money due them, according to promise, has caused them to become violent again, and the town is practically in their hands. They are crazed with liquor, and have placed combustibles on the bridge leading to the town and in several public places, and threaten to burn the place. The women and children are terror-stricken. All the business houses and public places are closed, and the men and boys have all been sworn in as deputy sheriffs. Under the sheriff and the marshal, they are guarding the bridge and other places threatened with destruction. A bloody battle is imminent, and is only kept back by the pleadings of two Roman Catholic priests.

Americans—Anti-Romanists—Free and Independent Voters.

Are you ready to act? Then do so at once. What do you think of the idea of calling a convention not later than November, 1895, and then put an anti-Roman ticket in the field? If your candidates for president and vice president of the United States will not stand a year's investigation, then they are not fit to hold the office. What think you of the idea? Speak up and do not wait for the old fossils to call you out. Bring on the fight and force the Roman tools out of their holes.

Father O'Grady Said to Be Shaming. CINCINNATI, July 17.—A few weeks ago Father Dominick O'Grady, the priest who murdered Mary Gilmartin, his sweetheart, was transferred from the jail to the hospital.
