The morning of September 4th was one of those gloriously bright and pleaslove of country. Old Sol was certainly gence on mother earth. At an early violate. hour Laurel was alive, the national colors flying from nearly every house in town. Wagon-loads of people came rolling into town, all attired in their best Sunday clothes. Soon the little town wore a genuine holiday appearance and the few who came without the intention of participating found that it was no place for them, and consequently kept quiet.

According to program, the crowds assembled in the Bowery, a building erected for the purpose, and there found that the ladies of Laurel had been doing their share toward making the affair a success. The platform was beautifully decorated by these patriotic women. The national colors were everywhere to be seen, entwined and festooned 'midst plants and cut-flowers, while the national floral emblem, goldenrod, lent its orange hue to the scene. Pictures of Washington, Lincoln and Grant were framed in flowers.

At 10:30 o'clock in the forenoon D. D. Barr, M. D., president of Laurel Council, No. 128, called the assemblage to order, and the exercises of the day were opened with prayer by Rev. J. B. Jones, the state secretary of the American Protective Association, was then introduced as the speaker of the morning. The subject of his lecture was "The Necessity For and Objects of the American Protective Association." This discourse occupied one hour and a quarter in its delivery, and consisted of an arraignment of the Roman hierarchy, based on facts that have occurred in this country, in open violation of the Constitution of the United States. During the interval between the speeches the people set about preparing the noonday meal, and in a few minutes the tickets from Council Bluffs and Omaha "Bowery" presented a lively and festive scene, long tables being spread for the convenience of the out-of-town guests.

After an hour spent in refreshing the inner man, the time was passed in social intercourse until the exercises of the afternoon were commenced with music by the band. The quartet rendered in a most appreciable manner a song entitled "The A. P. A. Goes On, which was warmly applauded by the audience. Rev. Luther P.
