A HOT CIRCULATION WAR.

register of the land office. Well, they changed registers on me when things were going along smoothly, and a lit-Us, narrow-chested down-Easterner got the job. One of the first things he did as to switch the printing around. There were two other papers which used to divide the business of our section with me, but when this little pinknosed reformer got into the office he gave the whole thing to one paper. It was not long till the Noose began to feel the effect of this despoliation. Well, the Noose and our esteemed contemporary who was also left out in the cold, trained editorial broadsides on that register till I almost lost confidence in the power of the press. Finally he gave evidence he was hit by printing a reply in the contemporary which was getting all the patronage, Before doing it, he hired a couple of sneaks to go and work on the Noose, and the other lonesome contemporary, It was a political trick he had brought out from the East. He said in his reply the reason why he did not give any advertising to the Noose and our other contemporary was because the circulation of these two would not justify him in doing it. Then followed affidavits from these two sneaks. The wall-eyed sneak who had worked for me, setting type and running the press for three weeks, made an affidavit that Imaginative Animals.

The other week I spoke of the power imagination. A friend tells me that dogs are as much under its influence men, and he has, in consequence, discovered a method by which a tenderhearted man can bring up his pup in the way it should go without unnecessary suffering to either party. My friend's method is to keep in his yard a big butter-tub and a thick stick. When his dog has misbehaved he chains it up close to the tub, gives it a couple of cuts with the stick, scolds it energetically, and then sets to work to tarrup the barrel. With every blow that falls upon the tub the dog howls and struggles. By the time my friend has worn himself out upon the barrel the dog has received all the moral good that could have been afforded him by a thunder'ng good whipping, and is epentant and conscience-stricken for the next three days. In fact, the imaginative animal fancies that he really has had a beating, and is as sorry for himself as if he had been half-killed. My friend's motto is, "Spare the tub and spoil the dog." Being a kind man, he Cheated Out of His Revenge.

"Running a newspaper out in Oklashoma ain't the wild and wooly sort of a thing people here in Chicago might think it is." he said to a Chicago Tribune reporter as he pulled up another chair to rest his feet on.

"Twe been running the Weekly Noose gince the day after the strip was opened," he continued. "Living off public printing, done nicely, and running a real estate and insurance business on the side.

"But speaking of circulation," he went on, "reminds me of an epoch in the history of the Noose. As I have intimated, the public printing is the thing, I might say it is the life of journalism in many Oklahoma communities. The public printing consists chiefly of the notices of publication of claims. They are given out by the register of the land office. Well, they changed registers on me when things.

there was a gleam in his eye that caused his auditors to straighten up and draw their chairs closer.

"That ain't the point," he went on. "While I was oiling my gun the coroner tame in grinning, and I knew I was too late.

"Your esteemed contemporary," he tays, "has already referred that chicken-breasted register to me for an inquest as to cause."

"Well, I haven't had any trouble with registers since, and, as I said, the Noose in doing nicely with public printing. But I felt cut up over that affair for a while. You see our esteemed contemporary didn't have as good a case against that register as I did by eight copies."
