

CRIPPLE CREEK, COL.

Rich in Mineral Resources and Commercial Prospects.

Thousands of Fortune Hunters Swarming to the New Eldorado, Staking Out Claims and Opening New Mines.

[From the Cripple Creek American.] Probably not since the gold fever in '49 has there been as much excitement as has been manifested in every section of the country since the discovery of the new mines in the region of Cripple Creek, Col.

Men have mortgaged their homes, sold their household furniture, kissed their wives and babies good-by and set out for this land of fabulous wealth.

As a consequence the brain and brawn of every section of this grand country is here scrambling for the possession of some of God's foot-stool which may yield them the riches of the fabled Monte Cristo.

Many of them will certainly be successful, but others will be disappointed and in time give up the search for a paying mine and begin again to work at their various trades, which to-day afford the surest way to wealth, as artisans command fabulous prices for their services.

A little over four years ago there was not a house in Cripple Creek. Probably the foot of a white man had never ascended to the point where it is located, at any rate he never tarried any length of time prior to the discovery of the richest gold mines the world has ever known.

Nor is the fame that has spread all over the land greater than it should be, and it is not saying too much to declare that we shall deserve in the future more attention than we have commanded in the past.

Our resources are unequalled; our mines inexhaustible, and our businessmen energetic to the last degree. More, they are patriotic, and are proud in having it known that they are not dominated by the pope's Irish as are so many other mining camps throughout Colorado.

One year ago the leading business men could almost be counted upon the fingers of your two hands, but today their name is legion.

One year ago the leading merchants could be enumerated as follows:

Two assayers, Robinson Bros., 130 Bennett ave., and Herbert Warne, Elkton, (P. O. address, Box 466 Cripple Creek); one baker and confectioner, Horace I. Adams, 122 Bennett ave.; one barber, Abe Opp, Palace Hotel; one firm of bankers and brokers, Freyschlag, Kinna & Co., Third street, between Bennett and Myers ayes.; one blacksmith, M. Roberts, Carr ave., op. El Paso Livestock Stables; one stationer, Collier & Ackley, 123 Bennett ave.; one boot and shoe merchant, Weyand Bros., Bennett avenue, between Third and Fourth streets, and J. C. Tuff, cor. Bennett ave. and Fourth street; one coal dealer, Cripple Creek Coal Co., 221 Bennett ave.; one dry goods house, The Denver Store, 215 Myers ave.; two expressmen, Henry G. Hicks, No. 17, stand Third and Bennett, and L. Stroud, Nos. 10 and 12; two feed stores, A. B. Brannon, 120 Carr ave., and Tom Sawyer, 228 Myers ave.; three hotels, The Peavey, Carr ave., op. Congregational church; The Hillsdale, cor. Second st. and Carr ave.; and The Vendome, cor. Myers avenue and Fourth street; two grocers, Fowler & Work, cor. Bennett ave. and Fourth street, and E. M. Simmons, Third street, between Bennett and Myers; one dealer in harness and saddles, Reynolds & O'Brien, 128 Bennett ave.; two hardware dealers, The Wilson Hardware Co., 120 Bennett ave., and The Morrell Hardware Co., Second street; one insurance agent, Smith Bros. & Van Orden, Third st., between Bennett and Myers; two jewelers, The Rushmer Jewelry Co., Bennett ave., and A. K. Chamblin, 226 1/2 Bennett ave.; one laundry, Peter Lewis, cor. Fifth street and Myers ave.; three lawyers, Howard & Kingman, Conlon Block; W. D. Gortner, LL. B., Main street (Notary in office), and Wm. M. Burris, Bennett ave., near Fourth st.; three dealers in meat and provisions, The Palace Market (Iwick & Sanders), 122 Bennett ave.; James I. Mosier, 318 Bennett ave., and The Little Windsor Meat Market, 406 Bennett ave.; one daily newspaper, The Morning Journal (C. S. Irwin, editor, Willing Hotel, Cripple Creek, Mo.); one newspaper, The Cripple Creek American, between Second and Third streets; one notary and conveyancer, H. D. Gortner, LL. B., Main street; one ore hauler, A. B. Brannon, 120 Carr ave.; one paper-hanger and painter, C. F. Elich & Co., Third street, near Fairley Bros.; two physicians, Dr. J. A. Smith, 309 1/2 Bennett ave., and

Dr. R. N. Mayfield, 221 1/2 Bennett ave.; one plumber, Peavey & Worrall, Fourth street and Myers ave.; one firm dealing in real estate and mines, Hight, Shepherd & Ballard, 227 Bennett ave.; one restaurant, The Chicago Waffle House (W. G. Hones), Bennett ave., between Second and Third; two shoemakers, Hall & Donlon, 120 Bennett ave., and O. Hegland, 203 1/2 Bennett ave.; one stenographer, C. A. Sheetz, cor. Fourth and Bennett; and one tailor, Anderson Bros., 317 Bennett ave.

The number of business men in Cripple Creek today is several times what it was then, and as we make their acquaintance we shall not hesitate to give them their full share of credit for making this the greatest and most widely known mining center in the world.

We expect, in time, to find something worthy of notice in our sister cities, Victor, Anaconda and Florence, but this week we shall not stir outside our own "diggins."

To our friends in the east we say, if you have money and want to make more, come and help us build up the phenomena of the west. Our mines are the richest in this part of the world, and our climate is as healthy as that of any mountain town.

ONE of the things that has materially assisted in the upbuilding of Cripple Creek, is the Florence & Cripple Creek railroad, the connecting line of the C. B. & Q., the B. & M. and the D. & R. G. railroads leading into the greatest mining center in the world, and is the route traveled by the correspondent of the Omaha office of this publication, upon his recent visit to this section.

ONE of the recent additions to our population and to our business circle is Mr. John J. Heller, the merchant tailor. He was for years connected with and was one of a firm operating the leading tailoring establishment in Omaha. He is already doing a rushing business in this city.

TELLS HOW HE WAS BEATEN.

Little Charles Czeglowski Describes His Chastisement at the Hands of Father Nawocki.

Little Charles Czeglowski, the 12-year-old boy, for the beating of whom the Rev. Father Stanislaus Nawocki, of St. Mary's Church of Perpetual Help, was yesterday found guilty in Justice Lee's court, lay propped up in a chair this morning.

The beating occurred Tuesday afternoon, and the priest pleaded guilty and agreed to pay the doctor's bill of $25. What further fine would be imposed the justice said he had not decided, but he thought it would be $10.

The boy lives at 878 Thirty-second street. He said to day he was still suffering from the reverend father's attentions. He is a nice-looking boy, and in a grievous tone related the circumstances of the beating.

"The priest doesn't like it," he said, "for any of the children in his church to go to the Polish Turning Society, where we exercise and turn and have gymnastic classes. The reason he doesn't like it is because he doesn't get the money out of it—that's why. Last Sunday in church he said that he wouldn't allow anybody at first communion who went to the turning. So Tuesday afternoon he came round to the school—the Koslusko school, which is managed by the church—and said for all the scholars who went to the turning society to stand up. Only one little girl and I stood up, and then we got it. He hit me—I don't know how many times—first on the hands and then on the back and shoulder.

"He used a rawhide with tin on it and wire on the inside, and I tell you I hurt. I don't know why it made me sick. It seemed to hurt my head, with the fright and all, though he didn't hit me on the head, and I have been sick ever since. The little girl was in the middle of the room, and he couldn't get at her so well, but he whipped her, too. The teacher didn't try to stop him. He had told the priest that I wouldn't go to school regularly, when the truth is I just staid home now and then when I had to help my mother with the washing. He left a big welt three inches long on my shoulder and scratches on my back. The little girl wasn't so badly hurt."

The neighborhood in general seems not to entertain so high an opinion of the reverend father since the display of what he deems his righteous wrath. The gymnasium of the turning society is conducted in the rear of the saloon of the Czeglowski boy's uncle. The boy is rapidly improving, but he seems to have been oddly affected by the beating. He is a delicate child, and the excitement and pain resulted, it is thought, in some injury to his head. His parents are of the working class, and poor. They belong to the priest's church, and their children go to the school which the church supports.—Chicago Daily News.

An Open Letter.

EDITOR THE AMERICAN—I notice in your issue of February 8th, 1896, a leading editorial entitled: "Roman Corporation vs. Obligation to the State." There can be no question but the editorial is a scathing denunciation of the Roman corporation, and as such

I give it due credit; but there are one or two things I would like to ask the writer: Does not the general government exempt the property, real and personal, of all churches at the same time that it exempts the property of the Roman corporation from taxation? Such being the case, why does the writer single out the Roman corporation for attack and denunciation, when all religious bodies are equally guilty? The writer says in the editorial that by this exemption the government tacitly recognizes the claim that the Roman church is and by right ought to be independent of the state; that the government thus recognizes the supremacy of the church. Admitting the truth of this claim, does not the government equally admit the supremacy of all other churches? If, as the editorial asserts, it is contrary to law and equity not to tax the Roman Catholic church, does not the same assertion apply to all the other churches? The writer of the editorial has made a grave mistake; he has shown bigotry by singling out from all our churches the Roman church and attacking it for a wrong in which all the others participate. We can not and must not lay ourselves open to a charge of bigotry. The A. P. A. attacks the Roman church as a bigoted institution. Editorials like the above lay us open justly to the same charge. Let us be men enough to fight fairly. Let us lay aside all bigotry and narrow-mindedness, and fight for the grand American principle, "Taxation of all Church Property." Yours for Americanism, DAISY G. MACK.

[And that is what we always advocate, and nothing in that editorial justifies the opinion that because we favor taxing Roman property we do not favor taxing all church property.—EDITOR.]
