LIVED AND DIED ON FRUIT. Carlous Quest of a German Lieutenant

for a Dietetic Paradise. Lieut, Wilhelm Boeter less than four years ago was an ordinary meat-cating, lager-beer drinking officer in the kalser's crack regiment of hussars, says the New York Herald. A treatise on the advantages of a "fruitarian" dlet came into his hands and he was completely won over. He was no common or garden vegetarian. Such individuals may revel in rice, riot on radishes and eat vegetables, but the lieutenant would have none of them. This fin de siecle purist would have nothing save nuts and some ripened fruits. But nuts from over the seas were hard to get and fruits that travel long distances became soft. Hence, to obtain them in a state of pristine purity and digestibility Herr Boeter resigned his commission and started for the land where he could make a home that met his special requirements. He visited Egypt, Tonga Fiji, New Zealand, Australia, Java, Ceylon and India. But none of these entirely commended itself. Finally he went to Jamaica. He had inherited several large estates in Germany and was possessed of a fortune of some $2,000,000. In December last he arrived in Jamalca accompanied by a salaried companion-Herr Georg Pentzke, a retired paymaster in the German army. "The fruitarians" became generally known They wore clothes made of the lightest possible silk fabrics and carried green sunshades. One serious fault that the lieutenant found with the Jamaicans was that they dressed improperly. His idea of fitness was but a trifle removed from what Trilby described as "the altogether." So far as diet was concerned Herr Boeter was perfectly satisfied with Jamaica. He found a continuous and abundant supply of the luscious fruit. His only tipple was the milk of the cocoanut. He kept a cutlass in his room for the special purpose of chopping off the husks of the nut. His habit was to take a quantity of oranges, star apples, bananas, etc., and, having removed the skins, pound the fruit together in a mortar, squeezing lime juice over the whole and making what he said was a dish fit for the gods. He took several coldwater baths daily. Instead of soap he used the lime fruit. He and his companion made a tour of the island in a covered van, in which they slept at night. While camping among swamps on the north side the lieutenant was attacked by malarial fever, in the and then went for a long walk in the sun. He became seriously ill and traveled back to Kingston. He refused to call a doctor, and when his landlady went for one on her own responsibility the lieutenant chucked the physic out of the window and persisted in his diet of fruit and on the 2d day of March last passed away in his sleep.

His effects were handed over to the German consul, among them being two drafts for £1,000 each and nearly £300 in gold. The deceased was 35 years old, a cultured gentleman and could converse fluently in seven languages. He was buried with a cocoanut bough on his coffin. A few days before his death he had a serious quarrel with his companion because he discovered that Pentzke was in the habit of indulging in the substantial pleasures of ham and eggs, mutton chops, etc.

Hotels at Home and Abroad.

Major Edgar A. De Bernales, editor try, has this to say of American hotels You can live at a London or Paris American house, and get better quality and more quantity of food. You do not practice in this country the science of economy. Tons and tons of good, valuable meats and breads are dumped daily out of the back doors of hotels in America, while we in London or England waste pounds. You can get a better meal for 30 or 40 cents at a Paris restaurant than is served you at the lealing American hotels for from $1 to $1.59. The French know how not to waste:
