Would I had been, fair thes, That guitant cavalier
Who rede so gayly by thy side,
And whisper'd thee so near
Were there no — dames at nome, Or no true lovers here, That he should cross the seas to win The dearest of the dear?

I saw thee, levely Incs. Descend along the shore. With bands of noble gentlemen, And hanners waved before: And gentle youth and maidens gay, And snowy plumes they wore: would have been a beauteous dream-If it had been no more!

Alas, slas, fair Incs. She went away with song, With music waiting on her steps. And shoutings of the throng: But some were sad and felt no mirth, But only music's wrong, n sounds that sang Farewell, farewell,

To her you've loved so long

Farewell, farewell, fair lnes, That vessel never bore So fair a lady on its deck, Nor danced so light before-And sorrow on the shore! The smile that blest one lover's heart Has broken many more!

Women as Pharmacists.

-Thos. Hood.

The first graduated woman pharmacist in the world received her diploma from the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy. This institute has also graduated the largest number of women who have actively engaged in the work. It is the oldest of the American colleges of pharmacy, having been opened in 1821. Thirty women have been enrolled as certified practitioners who have received degrees. These students have been recruited from all over the world-one of those in the present class is from Russia-and their ages have ranged from 18 to 25. The secretaries of several of the associations of pharmacy, notably those of Kansas, Nebraska and Louisiana, have been women graduates of the profession, and the vice president of the American association is Mrs. Mary O. Miner.

In Kansas City a woman has been the assistant for thirteen years in one of the largest drug stores. She is Miss Toni Sanntrock, and in her place beme perfectly familiar with all branches of the business before taking her course at the pharmacy college. Another young woman, although competent to mix drugs and put up prescriptions, will not do so until she has received her diploma, which will shortly be given her. She, too, is engaged in one of the pharmacles of Kansas City. She will be the only woman to graduate this spring in a class of fifteen men. Seven women in all have been graduated from the Kansas City College of Pharmacy; several are employed in the town and others have sought places in different parts of the country, where on the walls of memory hangs a sign that reads: "What man can judge a woman, knowing her; and not knowing her, how much less." In the current issue of the Arena is an article headed, "Feminine Bohemians." It is an article that every young girl in this country ought to see and read. A man can filrt with Bohemia and when sick and tired of it seek a nice, quiet, sensible little wife and retire to seclusion and really enjoy life, simply because a man can love a clinging, incocent little soul that looks up to him and depends upon him, but where is the woman who once has gone the way of midnight lunches, elgarettes and "a little champagne to wash it down," who can settre to seclusion with a nice, innocent clinging little man to look

Hop Yeast.

Pare six common-sized potatoes and boil in three pints of water. Tie a good handful of hops in cheesecloth and boll with them. When the potatoes are done take out the hops, drain the water into a clean dish, mash the potatoes, add the potato water with one cupful each of salt and sugar and two tablespoonfuls of ginger. Let it come to a boil and pour into a clean jar. When cool enough not to scald, stir in a pint of good lively yeast. Keep in a warm place till very light, take out what is wanted for yeast cakes, and tie up the remainder closely in the jar and so in a cool place. Thicken the yeast with bolted corn meal for yeast cakes, make into small shapes and dry in the shade. Two cakes or a cupful of the liquid yeast will make five medium loaves.

Soups Without Meat.

Mrs. S. T. Rorer gives in the Ladies Home Journal for June recipes for 30 different soups which can be made without meat. The base of each is a vegetable. The following list of Mrs. Rorer's principal soups will give an idea of the great variety that can be introduced into the first course at dinner, at a very slight expense:

Asparagus soup, cream of artichoke cream of lima bean, black bean, bisque of cucumber, cream of corn, cream of artichoke, cream of cabbage, cream of carrot, cream of celery, green peasoup, cream of spinach, cream of potato, bisque of turnip, mock oyster, mobisque, clear tomato, soup maigre, and creole soup.

> Recorder Goff of New York grows more indignant every day over the unwillingness of the citizen to serve on juries. He evidently thinks this unwillingness is a crime. It doesn't occur to him that it is not pleasant to neglect your own business to attend to that of somebody else; that it doesn't pay a business man to serve others for next to nothing; that a citizen's personal diberty is a thing to be valued; and that nobody wants to be lectured like a school-boy by a judge or treated as if he were a scoundrel by a lawyer.
