A CLAIM TO HUMAN GRATITUDE

Charlotte Corday, the sad-faced, tender-hearted peasant girl of Normandy made great history by one desperate act!

Sickened by the saturnalia of the French revolution, and moved to desperation as Robespierre and Marat were leading the flower of France to the guillotine, she determined that she would put an end to Marat's bloody reign.

Marat had demanded two hundred thousand victims for the guillotine! He proposed to kill off the enemies of the Revolution to make it perpetual! Horrible thought!

No wonder it fired the blood of this patriotic peasant maid!

Gaining access to his closely guarded quarters by a subterfuge, she found him in his bath, even then inexorable and giving written directions for further slaughter!

He asked her the names of the imperial deputies who had taken refuge in Caen. She told him, and he wrote them down. "That is well! Before a week is over they shall all be brought to the guillotine."

At these words, Charlotte drew from her bosom the knife, and plunged it with supernatural force up to the hilt in the heart of Marat.

"Come to me, my dear friend, come to me," cried Marat, and expired under the blow!

In the Corcoran gallery at Washington is a famous painting of Charlotte, represented as behind the prison bars the day before her execution.

It is a thrilling, sad picture, full of sorrow for her suffering country, and of unconquerable hate for her country's enemies.

What a lesson in this tragic story! Two hundred, nay, five hundred thousand people would Marat have sacrificed to his unholy passion of power!

Methods are quite as murderous and inexorable as men, and they number their victims by the millions.

The page of history is full of murders by authority and by mistaken ideas! In the practice of medicine alone how many hundreds of millions have been allowed to die and as many more killed by unjustifiable bigotry and by bungling!

But the age is bettering. Men and methods are improving. A few years ago it was worth one's professional life to advise or permit the use of a proprietary medicine. To-day there are not two physicians in any town in this country who do not regularly prescribe some form of proprietary remedy!

H. H. Warner, famed all over the world as the discoverer of Warner's safe cure, began hunting up the old remedies of the Log Cabin days; after long and patient research he succeeded in securing some of the most valuable, among family records, and called them Warner's Log Cabin remedies—the simple preparations of roots, leaves, balsams and herbs which were the successful standbys of our grandmothers.

These simple, old-fashioned remedies, hops and hunch, cough and consumption and other remedies, have struck a popular chord and are in extraordinary demand all over the land. They are not the untried and imaginary remedies of some dabbler chemist intent on making money, but the long-sought principles of the healing art which for generations kept our ancestors in perfect health, put forth for the good of humanity by one who is known all over the world as a philanthropist—lover of his fellow man—whose name is a guarantee of the highest standard of excellence.

The preparations are of decided and known influence over disease, and as in the hands of our grandmothers they raised up the sick, cured the lame, and banded up the wounded, and in their new form but older power as Log Cabin remedies, they are sure to prove the "healing of the nations."

Corday did the world an incalculable service in ridding France of the bigoted and murderous Marat, just as this man is doing humanity a service by re-introducing to the world the simpler and better methods of our ancestors.

But—Than a Hero.

"What a coward that Major Smith is," said Jones to Robinson, "why, the very sight of gunpowder would make him ill. How did he ever manage to become an officer in the army?" "Don't say anything against Smith," answered Robinson, "he once saved my life." "Saved your life! Nonsense, impossible! What do you mean?" "I mean that I was in the first stages of consumption; I was losing strength and vitality every day with the terrible disease, when Smith advised me to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I had tried all kinds of medicine without success, and my physician had given me no hope; yet here I am, as well as ever a man was, and I owe my life to Smith, and to the wonderful remedy he recommended."

A Young Girl's Grief

At seeing her charms of face and form departing, and her health imperiled by functional irregularities, at her critical period of life, was turned to joy and gratitude after a brief self-treatment with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It purified and enriched her blood, gave a healthy activity to the kidneys, stomach, bowels and other organs, and her return to robust health speedily followed. It is the only medicine for women, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee from the manufacturer, that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money will be refunded. This guarantee has been printed on the bottle wrapper, and faithfully carried out for many years.

FACT AND FANCY.

The watermelon as an instrument of assassination has about had its day until next year.

The story that Joaquin Miller's wife slamed him around by the hair of the head and made his life one of fear and misery is vigorously denied by friends.

There are a good many devices for overcoming insomnia, but about the most sensible one yet published is the brief and brusque admonition: "Go to sleep."

An Indiana farmer got up in his sleep and stole his own mule and hid him in the woods, where the sheriff who came next day couldn't see him to serve an execution.

A Missouri horse fell over a cliff thirty-five feet high and escaped with only a scratch on his leg. Next day he got a piece of corn-cob in his throat and choked to death.

Before going to England Jake Kilrain was a perfect ignoramus in his grammar. Now it does not bother him the least bit to observe: "I can't, Chawley—weally, I can't, you know."

Joseph White, of New Jersey, slept for five days and nights and then jacked his wife for waking him up. He said she was always picking on him when she saw him taking comfort.

Melane, Pa., has a citizen exactly seven feet high, but he has a reasonable excuse for it. He got caught in the ruins of a house and they hitched a horse to his feet and pulled him out.

An Ohio farmer found his bees getting ready to swarm and he sweetened a gallon of whisky and put it in pans. The bees got drunk and he had no trouble in handling seventeen swarms.

It is against municipal law in China to dig over 100 feet to find well water. It is the idea that the bottom would fall through onto America if they dug about 222 feet and they don't want to damage us.

Houduras has just passed a law that women may compound medicines for family use, and in case they have no family they can take the doses themselves. Women have no wings, but they are getting there.

A stranger who jumped into the Ohio river the other day left behind him a note, which said: "Case the rich, dura the poor, and may I bring up in a warm and comfortable place." He probably did.

A good many chaps who were looking up maps and worrying about Stanley last summer are now looking through their pockets and worrying about their winter coat. The laws of nature are inflexible.

George Adams, a hotel clerk in Vicksburg, started to kick a dead beat out of doors and kicked the jamb with such force as to cripple him for life. There was a wild hat hat as the d. h. moved on to fresh fields.

Chicago business men, during the first half of this year, mailed over $63,000 worth of checks and notes without stamping the envelopes. It's mighty easy to lick on a stamp and powerful easy to forget to.

The Chinaman who can get back to the Celestial Empire with $300 in cash can be a big gun all the rest of his days. That's what he is dreaming of, when he squirts the dampness over the shirt-bosom before him.

Toson, A. T., pronounced his name Toson. If it wanted to be called so why not have spelled it so. Probably for the same reason that "Harfordshire" is pronounced Harfordshire and Chelmsfordley Chumley.

Jack Cooke fished at Beach Haven for twenty-eight full days this year, and his total catch of fish weighing half a pound and upwards was 2,651 fish. He can flounder a fish line as well as any man in America.

Lighting the eight rooms of the residence of N. B. Corbin, in Vioville, Ga., into ribbons. The bolt passed between the baby's cradle, in which it lay, and the mother's bed, and all around a negro servant sitting in the kitchen, yet all escaped.

A dagger eighteen inches long of finest steel, inscribed with blocks of gold engraved in Arabic characters, was found lately by a herdsman in Gillespie county, Texas, and is thought to be a relic of the time of Cortez, and to have been originally bought or captured from the Moors by some grantee of Spain.

An Englishman recently stated in court that he married at the age of 16 because he was out of work. He meant not that he took advantage of a holiday for the ceremony of marriage, but that the girl was doing something and he wanted to share her wages. Such marriages are not uncommon in England.

The swiftest bird on the wing is the frigate bird, a sort of nautical bird of prey. Sailors believe that it can start with the peep of dawn from the coast of Africa, and following the trade wind, land on the American coast before sunset. It can undoubtedly fly more than 200 miles an hour, but we do not know of any trustworthy record of the speed of which it is capable.

Amsterdam claims to have become the chief European tobacco market on account of the fine quality of Sumatra tobacco which is brought there. American cigar manufacturers are said to be specially eager to get this tobacco. Sumatra sent to Holland in 1887 128,000 bales, worth about $13,000,000, of which $5,500,000 worth was purchased by American buyers. The Dutch tobacco companies make enormous profits, the dividends of the Deli company having been 109 per cent and those of the Arendsborg company 109 per cent in a recent year.

It is asserted in a London paper that the discovery made by Mr. Hewitt in the artificial manufacture of quinine will result in the reduction of the price of that article to a few cents per pound. The importance of this discovery is rendered greater by the fact that while hitherto dependence has been on the cultivation of the cinchona tree for quinine, the bark yielding only about 2 per cent of the same, the new process admits of the substance being produced without limit from an article which can always be got in abundance in any part of the world.

According to a writer in the Liverpool Post it is not the least part of the price of Wales, enjoyment of Hamburg that it is one of the few places in the civilized world where he is not mobbed. What in past years has annoyed the prices has been the slave's imitation of his dress by the mashers and slaves, more especially the latter, who are of American birth. Last year he took effectual means for putting a stop to this folly. Immediately on his arrival the old order of things prevailed. The cut of his coat, the pattern of his waistcoat, the shade of his necktie were accurately copied. Then a happy idea occurred to the prince. He ordered from some unknown source a hideous suit of dirty blauket tweed. He put on a red shirt with a blue collar; wore a soft felt, low-crowned, cream-colored hat, with a band of orange ribbon, and thrust a blue silk handkerchief into his breast pocket. This, with tan shoes, completed a costume the like of which was never seen on land or sea. But it effected its purpose. The price had all to himself, and this year has had no occasion to repeat the practical joke.

Funeral at Death's Door.

A story is told of a man who suffered severely from ague, which neither medicine nor charms could alleviate, but being advised to devote himself to punning became so interested in the pursuit that he speedily laughed himself into robust health. It cannot be denied that a hearty laugh, even at the cost of a bad pun, is no mean thing in itself, and has often been known to be of inestimable service at the crisis of a serious malady. A physician, visiting one of the brotherhood, who was in extremis, apologized for being late one day, but said he had been to see a man who had fallen down a well. "Did he kick the bucket, doctor?" growled the punster. Again, the story is told, if I remember rightly, of Theodore Hook, who, as he lay dying, encased in mustard plaster poultices, was visited by a friend, to whom he remarked: "Plenty of mustard, my boy, but very little beef."

Too Rashful by Half.

"Laura," exclaimed the youth, as he laid his arm timidly on the back of her chair, "now that you have promised to be mine, it surely does not seem like asking too much if I—"
"Well, George," George took her hand in his, swallowed once or twice spasmodically and proceeded: "As your affianced husband, Laura, whom you will some day promise in sight of high heaven to love, honor and—er—cherish, you will not think me presuming, dearest, I hope, if—"
"Well, George?"
"I venture to claim the privilege of a k— of a kiss!" The lovely maiden laid her head trustingly on the young man's shoulder, a tender light shone in her dreamy eyes, and her fragrant breath swept the cheek of the rapturous lover as she softly murmured: "George, don't be a claim!"—Chicago News.

A Cat's Marvelous Instinct.

It was an ordinary, every-day, sun-drenched cat that to all appearances had no soul above milk and possibly diminutive rodents; but beneath its coat of cat hair there lurked almost a human intelligence. The cat had, says the Providence Journal, been wearing a collar encircled with tinkling bells, and with more or less pride had displayed it to other cats, and the feline jealousy awakened thereby had resulted in sundry fights, in which the cat with the musical collar had lost one or more bells. His mistress, who is a firm believer in the ability of mind to triumph over matter, argued the case with the cat, and finally, by the aid of mental suggestion, coupled with the use of a small switch, succeeded in teaching the cat that to lose a bell was to get a whipping. Recently the cat dropped a bell on the street, but heard the tinkle as it fell, and realized the compromising situation. He left the bell as it fell, and in a twinkling he was at the door, trotting home, and with a whipping, he left the bell on the lap of his mistress, jumping into his bed, and held up his head to have it replaced on the collar. The cat and the bell can be shown if this story is doubted.

The True American has a

Why New York Was Called Gotham.

Because the inhabitants thereof were such wisecracks—the allusion being to the three wise men of Gotham "who went to sea in a bowl." Gotham is a parish in Nottinghamshire, in England, the inhabitants of which were famed throughout England for their stupidity. The name was first applied to this city by Washington Irving and James K. Paulding, in their "Salmagundi," the last number of which appeared in 1808.

Wood Choppers Strike.

Deadwood, Col., Pioneer, Aug. 28.

Joe Rivard, who held one-twentieth of ticket No. 3,894, which drew $15,000 or one-twentieth of the capital price ($300,000) in the Louisiana State Lottery drawing of August 7th, received his money through the First National Bank of this city and left Wednesday for his former home in Canada, where he will purchase a comfortable home for his parents and then return to the hills.

Joe was a wood chopper in the Home-stake camp near Brownsville, working for day's wages, and this money will place himself and parents above want. Joe Berry (Mormon Joe) of Brownsville, who had the number of Rivard's ticket, and learning from the Pioneer of August 8th that it was a lucky number, went to the wood camp and purchased it for $50, but after some difficulty the matter was compromised by Rivard getting $10,000 and Berry $5,000. Purchasers of Louisiana Lottery tickets in this vicinity will hereafter hold their tickets until they learn the result of the drawing.
