A number of parties from Harrison are attending the marriage of county treasurer Lockwood to-day.

A sister of Mr. James Slattery arrived last week from Colorado and will visit for a few weeks with relatives.

There was an unusually large attendance at the Berean Bible class last Sunday. Let this state of affairs continue to grow.

Mr. Con. Lindeman has moved his family into town and is occupying the new house recently built by him just north of Sheriff Post's.

Seven new dresses in course of construction was the condition of business at Mrs. Post's Millinery and Dressmaking establishment recently.

The Republican prints a description of themselves and heads it "slander." It is wonderful how well a person can describe themselves when they try.

Lewis Gerlach says he has commenced work on next year's election canvass. Mr. Gerlach is one of the genuine "stay-ers," whose word is as good as his bond.

Several parties from here attended the firemen and breakmen's dance at Chadron yesterday evening. A round trip ticket and admittance to the ball all for $1.

A valuable addition to the professional talent of Harrison is Mr. H. T. Coffey, an attorney of more than average ability, who arrived here with his family last week.

A party of three, consisting of Mr. Christensen, Ed. Weir and the writer, spent a part of last Saturday and Sunday at Mr. Cook's at the Agate Spring's Ranch. It was with reluctance that we returned at all for the treatment and entertainment one receives there is intoxicating.

A surprise birthday party was given in honor of Miss Katie Henry, at the Harrison House on last Thursday evening. Several suitable and serviceable gifts were presented to Miss Henry. The friends enjoyed themselves at dancing for several hours and report a pleasant evening spent.

We have heard of cows eating coal and wood and of dogs digging and carrying off potatoes etc., but we never knew of a hog trying to steal a ladder until last week. One of the many porkers that infest this city became wedged between the rungs of Mr. Bartell's ladder and was making off when discovered, and released by breaking one of the rungs.

There are talks of contests in our county election. There is no doubt but that fraud was perpetrated, and it should be set down upon.—Lusk Herald. Same here.

Crawford is wild over the prospects of securing the B. & M. railway next summer. There seems little doubt but that Crawford will be the crossing point, but the people of that town will find that a division town will be built by the B. & M. north of their place, and that their town will receive no lasting benefit from the crossing.—Lusk Herald.

All Interested

In the Berean Bible School are requested to be sure and be present next Sunday at half past two o'clock as a short business meeting will be convened before the usual class exercises, to arrange for a social in the near future. Preparations are now going on for a social entertainment that bids fair to exceed all former efforts of the kind. Remember, at 2:30 sharp.

The Scranton Free Press editor took a position on the principal street of Scranton the other day for the purpose of ascertaining how many ladies of that town were obeying Mrs. Cleveland's edict against the bustle. He kept tally on a card for one hour, with this result: No bustle, 10; bushel-basket bustle, 50; moderate-sized bustle, 25; small-sized bustle, 40; couldn't tell whether it was a bustle or a girl, 64.

We would Like —To know where Mr. DeBrown's mustache is.

—To be an angel but the Herald and Republican won't let us.

—To see the man that eats more turkey to-day than the editor.

—To know if Ed. Weir is ready to take another horseback ride.

—To know if Sheriff Post will remember how to thread a set of pulleys.

An election contest has been inaugurated that will probably bring to light some facts hitherto unknown, concerning the "curious" returns from one or more precincts in this county. The result will show whether or not fraud has been perpetrated, and if so, the parties to the fraud should be dealt with criminally as the law provides. It is an offense punishable by confinement in the penitentiary, for clerks and judges of election to return fraudulent votes, knowing them to be fraudulent. Will our efficient(?) county attorney, whose business it is, attend to this matter?

While enroute to Harrison last Saturday driving a somewhat "frisky" span of mules, Mr. Jack Cook alighted to adjust the harness when a sudden side action of one of the mules threw him to the ground and the next thing Jack knew he was picking himself up and gazing after the fleeing team. This occurred about four miles from town and the mules came on in and went to the livery barn as usual, where Lory Trimbur secured them and took the back track meeting the somewhat crippled pedestrian about a mile from town. Jack still feels a little sore in seven or eight places but aside from his few bruises and sprains no other damage was done.

In a Boston newspaper office not long ago the chief proof reader had been greatly annoyed by an extraordinary use of commas that cropped out in occasional "takes" on his proofs, and finding that they occurred regularly under a certain "slug," went to "slug fifteen's" frame to expostulate with him. He found that the new man was a "sub," who said he came lately from Nova Scotia, and had learned his trade in a first-class office in Halifax. "For pity's sake," exclaimed the proof reader, "what sort of a system of punctuation do they employ in Halifax?" "The rule in our office," replied the compositor with a patronizing air, "was to put about three commas to a line."

Some Little Things.

See to it that the children thoroughly warm their feet before going to school, and on returning home. They are seldom disposed to do it themselves. Many a serious cold, or other inflammatory attack, might be prevented by attention to this precaution.

Teach the children, when out of doors, to keep their mouths closed, and breathe through their nostrils. This prevents the air—the temperature of which may be zero—from striking directly on the tonsils and the larynx. As the nasal passages are kept constantly warmed by the breath from the heated lungs, the inbreathed air is warmed as it passes circuitously through them.

Children who are liable to inflammation and swelling of the tonsils, or to troubles of the ear, should wear hoods that come well down on the forehead and well down on the neck. Hats are dangerous for such children, and so are bonnets, unless care is taken to bring them well down over the sides of the head.

In our cities and large towns especially, children are inclined to sit together on the stone door steps, which are often ice-cold. This practice needs to be guarded against. Every thoughtful mother will readily see how dangerous it is for her girls.

On returning from a cold walk or ride, throw off all but the home clothing at once. The outer clothing is nearly at the temperature of the outside atmosphere, and, if kept on, must absorb much heat, which might otherwise come to the wearer immediately.

In dressing and undressing in a cold room move about as little as possible when the slippers are off. The carpet just under the feet is warmed by abstracting heat from the feet, and the person has the advantage of it; while every change takes additional heat to warm a new place. In undressing keep the slippers on as long as convenient; in dressing put them on as soon as possible. If a chamber is without a woolen carpet, be sure to have a woolen mat or rug or bit of carpeting near the bed on which to stand.

All slippers for use in cold weather should have extra inner soles, to lift the feet from the cold floor and retain the natural heat. Where nothing else can be had, such soles can be cut from cardboard, and a thickness of woolen cloth should be stitched on either side.

For women in the kitchen slippers made of woolen uppers and thick felt soles are desirable. Slippers are preferable for home use to buttoned boots, as they facilitate the warming of the feet, which is otherwise apt to be unduly neglected.—Youth's Companion.

A Long Winded Orator.

Long speeches are common. In the Georgia legislature, when the question of expelling the negro members was up, Aron Alpeoria Bradley spoke four days. The Tichborne trial brought L. R. Kenaley to the front with a speech running through 140 days. But these speakers did not talk continuously. Adjournments for dinner and over night, and for Sunday made their work easy.

The longest speech on record, says the Chicago Times, is probably the one made by Mr. Le Cosmos, a member of the legislature of British Columbia some time ago. A bill was pending which, if passed, would deprive many settlers of their lands, and the temper of the majority made it certain that it would pass. The legislature was within a day and a half of the hour of its final adjournment and the vote was about to be taken.

At this juncture Le Cosmos rose to address the body. It was ten o'clock in the morning, and the members thought that he would finish in an hour or two. The clock struck 11, 12 and 1 but the speaker kept right on.

How long would he speak? The members in a spirit of fun omitted to adjourn for dinner, but Le Cosmos spoke on without a break. At 6 o'clock he was still on the floor. He was forced by the speaker to stick to the question and was not allowed to pause except to take a drink of water. The majority decided to continue the session through the night slipping out in small parties to eat and sleep. Still, without faltering, the orator poured forth his torrent of words. This was the situation at midnight, and also when the morning sun flooded the hall with the light of day.

As the hour hand of the clock pointed to 12, the limit prescribed by law for the session had arrived and the legislature stood adjourned sine die. At the last stroke of 12 the brave Le Cosmos stopped in the middle of a sentence and fell fainting in his seat.

He had spoken, standing on his feet, twenty-six hours. His eyes were bleared and red, and his parched lips were cracked and running blood. He was nearly dead, but he had prevented the bill from becoming a law and had saved the settlers their homes.
