An author manager, whose name is quite well known in theatrical circles, lived at this board ing house something over a year ago, and when he was ready to depart he was financially embarrassed. So he stated his case to the landlord, and left with him as collateral a seal-and successful with juries, who became and successful with juries, who became a judge in an insolvent court, that two manuscripts of a well known when he had detected a witness kissing two manuscripts of a well known play. Boniface was good natured and lenient. He thought the play was valuable and that the author would in time pay the bill. The package remained for a year. Then the landlord called a theatrical business agent into council and they broke the seals. The contents were 250 "property plots" of the play, but there was no manuscript in the package. The "property plots" list of the properties required at 8 performance—are worth the price of old paper.—New York Star.

Have a Bath Hoom

It is often a mystery to those to whom a bath room is a necessity as well as a ful laxury, how some families will get along year after year without any such convenience. There are many homes in Maine where the occupants are fully qualified for all the work necessary to build such a room, and who could easily give the time and money required, and who yet have no place down stairs for washing hands except the kitchen sink, and sometimes even this is unprovided with a spont for carrying off the water. There often is a place near the kitchen where a regular room may be finished off, with set tub, wash bowl, etc., but where there is not a room with a wet sink, table and looking glass kept provided with water, towels, brush, combaand seissors can usually be provided. and after such a place for washing and combing hair is once enjoyed no one will be willing to give it up. Even a rough lean-to just outside of the back kitchen door will be found convenient on a farm for the use of the men from their work in the fields, or a corner of ed both the rifle and the shot gun, where cooking and dishwashing is carried on may be fitted up. Girls Kept in Cages.

United States Consul Griffin, stationed at Sydney, N. S. W., tells of a remarkable costom of the inhabitants of New Britain, as follows: "The inhabitants, it is said by Wallace, have a peculiar enstem of confining their girls in cages until they are old enough to be married. This custom is said to be peculiar to the peculiar New Britain. The cages are made of the palm tree and the girls are put into them when two or three years of age. The Rev. George Brown established a Wesleyan raission in New Britain in 1876, and I learn from him that these cages are built inside of the houses, and that the girls are never allowed to leave the house under any eigenvalues. circumstances. The houses are closely fenced in with a sort of wicker work made of reads. Ventilation under the circumstances is rendered difficult. The ciris are said to grow up strong and bealthful in spite of base circum-stances, New York Telegram.

Permanent Benefits of Irrigation. Persons who have watched the pro-served how civilization and wealth have followed in its wake have been impressed by the uniform permanency and steady growth of these owes dotting the wilderness of sand comprising what is known as the arid region. The unvarying, albeit sometimes slow, progress of these agricultural communities has been in marked contrast with the erratic course of mining towns, which as a rule have experienced alternate periods of excitement and depression. These facts have impressed themselves upon the rective mind, and many, doubtless, have indulged in the dream of the ultimate subjugation of the arid region to the rposes of agriculture and have pictured to themselves the wondrous bean of the great west when prairie, mesa and valley have been clothed in an

Query: What has the distillery to do

An Old Chestnut Bevived, An old preacher after service one Sunday announced his reading for the following Sunday. During the week some mischievious boys obtained his gether, right where he was to read. Sunday morning coming, the aged di-vine opened his book and read as fol-lows: "And Noah took unto himself a wife who was " and here he turned the leaf "fort cubits broad, one hundred and forty cubits long." With a look of astonishment he wiped his glasses, reread and verified the passage, and then said: "My friends, although I have the Bilds many times this is the read the Bible many times, this is the first time I have ever seen this passage, but I take it as another evidence of the fact that man is most fearfully and wonderfully made."—New York Mer-

A Pick-Up of $15,000 by Three Well Known Chesenne People.

Cherenne Wy Leader August 8.
The drawing of $15,000 from the Louisi and State Lottery in the July drawing by three well known Cheyenne people has created a decided sensation. The children of fortune are all employed at H. H. Ellis' that eventful day, and Dead Pine bakery. They are Louis Salada and wife, and Edward P. Gaylor an old-timer and a prominent Odd Fellow.

Forty eight hours after the drawing Sa-lada and his wife and Mr. Gaylor were overjoved to learn from a list that ticket No. 42 758 had drawn the capital prize of some part and that they were entitled to $300,000 and that they were entitled to une-twentieth of that sum, or $15,000. Advices from New Orleans confirmed the list and the money was collected through the First National Bank of this city, being valid for several years, is to retire to an eastern hospital for several months and will be treated by eminent specialists.

Couldn't Deceive Him.

Speaking of custom house onths some one recalls the story of Charles Phillips, a clever London criminal lawyer of Irish descent, shrewd in dealing with facts his thumb instead of the Testament, on taking the oath, a practice then common among certain quasi-religious people who fancied that false swearing in this world, under such circumstances, would not prejudice them in the next, he said to the witness, after reluking him "You may think to desaye God, sir, but you won't desaye me."—Boston Tran-

Japanese horticulture shows a wonder patience and a sort of ill directed skill. The object of the Japanese uye-kiya, like that of his Chinese brother, but in a greater degree, is to deform, main and cripple nature, as we see especially in the dwarfing of trees and shrubs—nanization, as Dr. Rein some-what pedantically terms the process, which consists mainly in starving the plant and crippling the circulation of is juices. Kaempfer is quoted as de scribing a trio he once saw in a small box one and a balf inches broad, four hes long and six inches deep, for which the price of £100 was asked. bree denizens of the box were a bamboo, a blossoming plum tree and a pine tree, perfectly formed, but in a piccolo.
