August Flower

Dr. J. W. Fenimore is the son of Kent Co., Del., and lives in the County Seat and Cape State. The sheriff is a man fifty-nine years of age, and what he says: "I have used August Flower for several years in my family and for myself, and found it does me more than any other remedy. I have been troubled with that I call Headache. A pain comes back part of my head first, and soon a general headache becomes sick and vomits. I, too, I have a fullness in the stomach, a pressure after eating, and when food seemed to rise in my throat and mouth. When this comes on if I take a August Flower it relieves me. It is the best remedy I have ever used for it. For this reason I recommend it to you as a great remedy for Dyspepsia."

Biftings: "Now, my friend, you do with that money? I had given a nickel. (Tram the coin): "Well, I guess I'll spend the summer in the park instead of going to the beach."

Everybody Had a Show.

Miss Times: "I like the girl," said Scadley as a maiden on the beach in particular had bathed robes. "Know Rathbone." "No, but I could have a show."

An Eye for Business.
—May I ask why this?

—Certainly, doctor! You were married a lawyer, so I get any of papa's money I get a lawyer also.—Munsey's

Patent medicine which is medicine—paradoxical as it sounds. It's a discovery! the very of medical science! the medicine for you—tired, run-down, nerve-wasted men and women suffering from disease of the liver or lungs—its effect is to purify the blood—upon which all health depends. The medicine Golden Medical Discovery.

It has enough confidence in it. That is, from your druggist, and if it's claimed to do, your money back, every cent.

who keeps a fruit stand in New York, became so angry at the other day when he tried to get three apples. A policeman off duty the stand saying: "What Italy?" The boy said he was explaining the difficulty. The policeman to two juicy pears from the stand, and munched the other in his mouth.

Queer Things in Heligoland.
The Sabbath begins at 6 p. m. on Saturday, when the church bell is tolled, and ends on Sunday at the same hour. Formerly no vessel could leave the port between these hours. Marriage cancels every other engagement, so that there can be no breach of promise brought against a man when once he is married. The inhabitants have a strange custom on New Year's eve. They then ramble the street with broken pots and pans, which they place before their friend's doors, and the man who has the largest heap before his cottage is considered the most popular. The people rarely lock their doors, and when they do they leave the key where it can be reached by anyone seeking admission. The fisherfolk bait the hooks and carry them in a large wooden basket filled with sand to the fishermen on the beach. This is by no means a light burden, yet they may be seen cheerfully hating with their companions as they march onward with wooden shawls over their heads. The streets bear English names, as Leopold, Berlin, Church, Augusta, Thames, Short, O'Brien, Prince of Wales, Princess street, etc., but the natives have their own names for them. Heligoland has a small prison or lock-up, but they rarely lock any one up, as they do not care to board the prisoner, there is also a small cottage hospital ready for use if necessary, but patients are few and far between. There is also a poorhouse. Here poor people live free. The plan adopted is for parents and children to go before the magistrate, when the former resign the little property they may possess to their children, who in their turn promise to find them in food. When the husband dies the wife takes his property, and at her decease it is equally divided between the children. There are no horses or donkeys on Heligoland, for they would be useless there; but there are eight cows and about thirty sheep tethered and milked, the milk being considered superior to that of cows. There are three policemen, the junior being known by the extra amount of gold lace worn by him. The coast guard consists of five Englishmen, who are not permitted to act as constables. There are also sixteen active native coast guards and sixteen in the reserve. When there is a wreck the whole island claims the salvage. Most of the inhabitants are behind with their rates, but they are never prosecuted, for when a settling takes place in left in hopes of being recovered next year. The debtors are engaged to work on wrecks, and then old coxes are wiped off and the balance handed over to them. The natives only are permitted to rent small potato patches, which are much valued but the government reserves most of the land for their own purposes.

Color and Form in Dress.
The popular idea of absolute color needs reforming. From the fashion column of a leading newspaper I clip two paragraphs—one decanting or some very handsome tints of heliocyte which have just appeared, and the other saying that in consequence of the Princess of Wales having worn a gown of a beautiful shade of golden olive "this 'favorite color' is likely to become 'yet more popular.'" Now the fact that a clever writer on fashion topics can gravely talk about "hand some" and "beautiful" and "favorite" and "popular" colors is in itself a startling commentary on the need of an educated public taste. How can any color have an aesthetic character of its own? As regards its value, all color is relative. The green that might adorn a man's necktie would do for his nose (he red that becomes black-eyed Jean makes fair haired Nellie look like a bright. The yellow which adds a new charm to Cornelia's rich beauty robe Lillian of all her loveliness. Or take our weds, both of them colors which my friend the fashion writer would call handsome, and put them together in a gown; a dentist himself couldn't keep his teeth from grating. Or, again, suppose a blue which is most effective in silk velvet drapery, hanging in folds, were transferred to a piece of cotton heating stretched on a screen—would he effect be the same? Any one who reads these lines can call up in his own mind a dozen such comparisons. How ridiculous then to have a "favorite" color, or to call one "beautiful" without peering its surroundings!—Kate Field's Washington.

No Did Not Come.
"These interminable newspaper discussions on 'the coming man, make me weary," remarked Miss Ann Teek. "Why?" remarked Mrs. Gazam. "Because my experience teaches me that no such thing exists."—Harper's Bazar.

Highly Priced Way.
Smith, Gray & Co.'s Monthly: "Old" Blake, who attributes his success in life to his abstemious habits, now offers an opportunity to lecture on the club on temperance. Seeing Charlie Highflyer looking rather "rooky" the other morning, he opened in him with: "Young man, do you know the quickest way to get ahead in this world?" "Yes, sir," said Charlie; "the quickest way to get a head is to mix your drinks, 'b' love!"

NEBRASKA STATE NEWS.
The state press reports a great many weddings on Christmas and New Years days. The beautiful weather is mashed on Nebraska. Hence the lingering near John Mooney of Filly was kicked in the face by a horse and he is very badly disfigured. Three farmers residing south of Junction have lost more than 100 head of hogs by cholera. There are ten persons who want a clerkship in the legislature for one position to be filled. The new school building at Sterling has been accepted by the school board. It is a credit to the enterprise of that town. Sylvester Farringer and John Morgan of Wallace precinct, Lincoln county, were arrested for stealing wheat and each got thirty days in jail at North Platte. The night the wind blew so hard twenty firemen at Kearney patrolled the streets all night. They had not forgotten the windy day last march, when the Midway hotel burned down. The Standard cattle company of Dodge county is feeding 7,000 head of cattle this winter. R. M. Allen, the manager says it cost them $1,000 a day to feed the immense herd. He says this fine weather has been a blessing to cattle feeders and that he never before saw cattle do so well in the winter time. This company has been of incalculable benefit to the farmers in that region of country. The Broken Bow Leader thus reports the coming of the "third house": N. K. Griggs, ex-governor, post and auditor, was in the city last Monday interviewing his constituents. The governor was busily engaged in preparing his message to third house, and submitted some portions of it to a Leader representative for criticism. It is rumored that he will appoint one of our citizens to an important office. Diller will soon have a masonic lodge. Hay thieves are foraging in the barns at Beatrice. The Oak Citizen of Oak, Nuckolls county, is the latest newspaper venture. The farmers and business men of Anley and neighborhood, are going to build a cheese factory. Some wretches at Davenport, Thayer county, threw a bottle of whiskey through the window of the Methodist church during the progress of a meeting. Frank Eggleson of Beatrice, who had both arms out of by the train in Beatrice, not long since, has sued the K. C. & N. W. railway company for $45,000 damages. When anyone writes you that a fortune awaits you in the old country and they will look it up for you for a fee of $10, just put that man down as a swindler. Shoot all such agencies. E. M. Brown and two lady skaters broke through the ice on Kearney lake while skating. This is the seventh town to report a like occurrence this month. Only at Lincoln was the accident fatal. Madison is negotiating for an electric light plant. John Rice of South Omaha got drunk and whipped his wife. The police judge fined him $5. The fine weather went south only to spend New Year's day. It is back at the old stand doing business as before. Richard Hughes of Kearney went hunting behind a mule team. He shot at a rabbit, and the mule shot at him at a 150 yard distance, throwing him out of his buggy and dislocating his elbow. Twenty-two wolves have been hounded to death near Ainsworth this winter. Summer has been offered a $15,000 woolen mill for a subsidy of $500. The Frontier figures up the improvements at O'Neil during 1890 at $140,270. Warren Clough, pardoned by the governor on New Year's day, went straight from the pen to the palatial residence of Hon. R. J. Norval at Seward and was tendered a reception and dinner, which was participated in by some of the leading citizens of Seward. While walking in the eastern part of town James McIntyre of Nebraska City was accosted by three unknown men, and turning about was slugged and rendered unconscious by the blow. The robbers then relieved him of $65 in cash and a gold watch and chain. When he regained consciousness, about an hour later, he informed the police of the robbery, but the guilty parties have not yet been apprehended. Alex Brandt, living below Homer, recently sent to President Harrison a watch chain and charm made by himself, out of Dakota county straw, says the Dakota City Eagle. It was a fine piece of handiwork and must have found the appreciation of the president, for on Christmas day Alex received a picture of the White House, with "Congratulations of Benjamin J. Harrison" written thereon. Alex feels proud of his gift, claiming he is the only person in Nebraska who was remembered by President Harrison with a Christmas present.

KANSAS IN BRIEF.
After a determined effort W. E. Stanley has given up the task of closing the Wichita joints. So it seems there are some dark places that even the Stanley family can not let light into. The city authorities of Newton have been asked to suppress gambling in the city. This is a severe blow to the town, as everybody in the state thought that a town that could produce three such men as Sam Peters, Joe Ady and Tom Norton could not be bad if it tried. The alliance is going to start an insurance department soon. It is believed that no application from Senator Ingalls will be accepted. A Kansas man is never satisfied unless he is at the head. The same newspapers that were quarreling a week ago as to which town had the best spring weather are now scrapping as to the velocity in their respective towns during the blizzard. Nobody in Kansas gave much attention to Chautauque county until the people there began to make cob pipes and raise cotton. Now, there is not a county in the state that refuses to take off its hat when Chautauque goes by. Kansas newspapers are very liberal this year. Not one man has been mentioned for United States senator as yet but has received a good "send off" from them. Whatever the coming legislature of Kansas may do it is pretty safe to bet that it will not give the state printer a salary of from $40,000 to $60,000 a year. Lots of the old members of the Kansas guard are standing around with their hands in their pockets expecting as much fun out of the coming senatorial election as they had when "times was times" in the state. Wolves are reported to be very troublesome in Wilson county and the item in the local paper does not have a political look about it, either. A Kansas editor has written a poem on the "Kreutzer Sonata." There are very few things in this world that a Kansas editor don't "see" and go on better. Kansas wheat only stopped growing for about two days while the snow was falling and then went to work again with renewed vigor. The Kansas wheat crop understands that it has very little time to lose if it reaches the 50,000,000 bushel mark next year. The next day after the Oklahoma legislature adjourned, Kansas sent a blizzard down there to stir them up. Kansas is determined to divide whatever she can with Oklahoma and will also see that some one of some kind is not lacking. Fred Funston, the bright son of the congressman from the second district has gone to California to explore "The Valley of Death."

The farmers around Stafford had over $40,000 worth of broom corn to sell after they had completed their November sweeping. A man in McPherson county whipped his wife and was fined 1 cent for it. When a man insists upon indulging in such pleasures he must make up his mind to pay well for it. A law suit over the killing of a dog took the attention of the judge, jury and a crowded court room one day last week. And it was one of the days when the joints were not closed, too. The board of directors of a school district in Sumner county suspended a young couple for engaging in a hugging match, but the county superintendent promptly reinstated both of them. Thus does Kansas again vindicate the freedom of the press. Topeka has got to work in earnest for her dam. As the water in the Kaw is not deep enough to drown the workmen, however, it is not anticipated that the newspapers will find the enterprise as fruitful a field as the state house has been. A Topeka barber has been arrested for selling liquor and it is said it will be a close shave for him if he gets out of the scrape. The Santa Fe paintshops are to be removed to Kansas. And, judging by the color of the new cars, it is the intention of the road to paint things red when the ships are in. The Christmas snow storm did not last long enough to permit the Kansas millinery stores to put away their straw hats and winter flowers. There is a pond at the soldiers' home at Leavenworth in which the fish are so tame that the veterans can pick them up in their hands. This plan destroys a good many excellent stories, but is said to cause a large amount of truthfulness among the inmates. Stanley first made his mark reporting the great council at Medicine Lodge. And he had no such material to work on as he would have now with Jerry Simpson at home. If the recommendations of the codifying committee are followed the army of pretty girls that are to be seen sitting about the corridors of the state house during the biennial session, will be materially diminished. But the coming legislature isn't going to spend much time looking after the pretty girls, any way. If it does all that it has been told to do,
