asked by beginners what sheep, and we have been vice since we were so untreated, as it were, through giving such glowing the sheep industry by an and writer in Jefferson we will attempt to give experience, and trust it to the many readers who this matter.

any of which the sheep will eat with a relish if they not enough food in the pasture. It goes without saying that a flock of good sheep in the hands of a careful farmer can be made profitable, even when wool is low in price. To the contrary, sheep will be a losing business in the hands of a careless farmer whose and fences are allowed to get out of repair, and who permits the hogs and sheep to run together at all seasons of the year.

Kansas City.—Post-Dispatch.
