ABSOLUTELY PURE

At an exposition the capital of the world, for the articles collected and also to give foreign manufacturers display their position of this special exhibition the industries would be well in American mind that it is a surprise and that not one represented at the any and Eng- hall wares and art machinery. The Guatemala Building.
The exposition commission of the republic of Guatemala has arranged for a contest at which architects may submit plans for the building of that country to be erected on the grounds at Chicago. The architects must be residents of Guatemala, and the building must be of a character to be easily transported to that country and erected at its cap tal after the close of the exposition. It is not to cost more than $20,000, and the space of two acres has been reserved for it. A building is desired which shall be typical of the country, and prizes of $400 are provided for.

Verdi Will Compose No More.
Verdi, the great composer, was asked a short time ago whether he did not intend to write some more operas. The old man must be failing, for he answered wearily, "I will not deny that I feel able to write another opera or two, because my imagination is not yet dead, but there is one miserable hindrance—the physical fatigue of writing, of filling an interminable forest of leaves of music, all the millions of notes and signs which compose a score—that's what frightens me."

An Anxious Husband.
Mrs. Judge Peterby is a very spare woman. She is excessively thin. A few days ago her husband said: "I don't really think that you ought to go out on the street, Maria." "Why not?" she asked. "Well you know there is so much danger just now of mad dogs. They will bite at almost anything." "But I don't think I am in any more danger than any body else." "O, yes you are. Dogs love to gnaw bones."—Texas Sittings.

Her Last Wish.
Mrs. Harriet Sanford, who died recently at Plymouth, Mass., at the age of ninety, was, in accordance with her wishes, not to be buried until the sun had gone down on the day set for her burial. Mrs. Sanford several years ago went to Bristol, picked out her tombstone and had it lettered and put in place in the cemetery.

Not Afraid of the Unlucky Number.
Thirteen girl graduates from Mount Auburn Young Ladies' institute, of Cincinnati, banqueted on Saturday night, defying in every possible way omens of evil. They walked under a ladder, broke a mirror, raised umbrellas in the house, had thirteen waiters and caused the orchestra to play thirteen pieces.

If Success be the true test of merit, it's a settled fact that "Brown's Bronchial Troches" have no equal for the prompt relief of Coughs, Colds, and Throat troubles.

It means something for a woman to be a peeress of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, for there any one of these favored beings, whose title has been acquired by birth, marriage or creation is free from arrest or imprisonment on civil process, and in the event of a peeress being charged with a criminal offence she would be tried by the house of lords.

A muscular colored man in Arundel county, Maryland, killed an infuriated bull which attacked him by seizing the animal by the horns and throwing him with violence sufficient to break his neck.

Old Gentleman—"Don't you think it is cruel to shut up a bird in a little cage like that?"
Little Girl—"Oh, I don't know. I have a pretty good time and I live in a flat."

Altogether Too Much.
The burglar came tumbling out through the back window in desperate haste. He had torn off his mask, his eyes were starting from their sockets, and his features worked convulsively. "What's the matter, Bill?" whispered his pal, hurriedly, when the two had reached a place of safety. "Was somebody after you with a gun?"
"Gun nothing!" gasped Bill. "There was a young woman in the parlor singing the Ta-ra-ra-boom-de-ay song!"—Chicagoan Tribune

The Federal Election Bill.

Hon. Henry Cabot Lodge and Grand Master Workman Powderly discuss in The North American Review Mr. Lodge's famous national election bill. Mr. Lodge says his bill simply provides for the appointment of United States officers, selected from the two leading political parties, to watch over and report upon naturalization, registration, the conduct of the congressional election, the count of the ballots and the certification of the members. These officers have no power to interfere. Their only duty is to protect the honest voter, secure evidence to punish wrong doers and make public every fact in connection with the election.

The whole purpose of the law may be summed up in one word—"publicity." When on petition of a hundred persons in any city of 20,000 inhabitants or upward, or petition of fifty persons in any congressional district that has no more than 20,000 inhabitants or upward, the law goes into effect, then the chief supervisor of elections appoints deputy supervisors and the other officers named. These make returns of the election to a United States board of canvassers, and it issues a certificate to the candidate who from these returns seems to be elected. In case their candidate is not the same as the one declared elected by the local authorities, then of course the certificate of the national board takes preference and their candidate is declared elected. Still, the defeated man has recourse to the circuit court of the United States.

Such are the leading provisions of what has been called the "Force bill." Mr. Lodge says it:

The president of the United States has from the beginning of the government had power to use the army and navy in support of the laws of the United States, and this general power was explicitly conferred many years ago in that portion of the Revised Statutes which now comes under the title "civil rights." The present bill neither adds to nor detracts from that power, and as the liberties of the country have been safe under it for at least twenty years it is not to be apprehended that they will now be in danger.

The real objection to the bill comes from the fact that one of the two great parties believe that free elections imperil their power. They know that by this bill the United States officers, taken from both parties, are appointed by the courts, the body farthest removed from politics. They know that these United States officers will be held in check by local officers, and will be unable to interfere with the proper conduct of the election. But they know also that the result will be publicity, and they believe that in consequence of publicity many districts will be lost to them. This law is as fair to one party as another; but if one party is cheating, that party will suffer, and where the cry against the law is loudest, the best evidence of its necessity, and proves that those who resist it profit by the wrongdoing which it seeks to cure.

The constitution of the United States promises equal representation to the people, and it makes the negro a citizen. Equality of representation has been destroyed by the system in the south which makes every vote there outweigh five or six votes in the north, and the negro has been deprived of the rights the nation gave. No people can afford to stand quiet and see its charter of government made a dead letter, and no wrong can endure and not be either cured or explained. Fair elections north and south are vital to the public. If we fail to secure them, or if we permit any citizen, no matter how humble, to be wronged we shall atone for it to the last jot and tittle.

Master Workman Powderly is opposed to the Federal election law for many reasons. One is that it will give too much power to the nine chief supervisors, one for each judicial district in the Union. Each of the nine will be able to dictate the nominations of his party in his district. Mr. Powderly, belonging to neither political party, says:

The fault does not lie with the people, and their rights should not be abridged. There is not one man on the floor of congress today who can conscientiously or truthfully say that during the canvass which ended in his election he did not resort to some mean act in order to get votes or to prevent losing them. The aspirant for office and the indignant man who beholds the voters, and the indignation manifested on the floor of congress during the debates on the federal election bill came with a very poor grace from many who owe their seats to little tricks, illegal use of money, false representations and the use of liquor. The federal election law provides that more ballots are to be put in the congressional box than there are voters in the election district, the supervisor and inspector shall be blindfolded and draw out a number of ballots sufficient to equal the excess. Two wrongs never make a right; to find more ballots than voters proves that illegal votes have been cast, but it does not right the wrong to draw the ballot out indiscriminately. It should first be ascertained who cast the illegal ballots, and then such tickets should be removed or another election called.

The framers of the bill made no attempt to deny that it was introduced because of the limitation of the negro voters of the south, and there is no doubt that colored citizens in many places in the south were outrageously deprived of their rights in being driven from the polls by the Democrats. Notwithstanding their deprivation of the right to vote the colored men are represented in congress by the men who deprived them of the right to vote, or who were guilty of the wrong. The constitution of the United States makes provision for such emergencies, if I read it right, where it says:

"But when the right to vote at any election for the choice of electors for president and vice president of the United States, representatives in congress, the executive and judicial officers of a state, or the members of the legislature thereof, is denied to any of the male inhabitants of such state, being 21 years of age and citizens of the United States, or in any way abridged, except for participation in rebellion or other crime, the basis of representation therein shall be reduced in the proportion which the number of such male citizens shall bear to the whole number of male citizens 21 years of age in such state."

It seems to me that the proper thing to do, after the fact is established that a number of negro citizens are not allowed to vote, is to base the representation in congress from the district of state on the number who exercise the right of suffrage therein.

It would not be strange yet if the Prince of Wales died before his hale and sound old mother. He looks tired and fagged, and is said to be subject to fits of deep melancholy. His health is not at all firm. Victoria has always taken very good care of herself, which the prince never did.

"August Flower"

"One of my neighbors, Mr. John Gilbert, has been sick for a long time. All thought him past recovery. He was horribly emaciated from the inaction of his liver and kidneys. It is difficult to describe his appearance and the miserable state of his health at that time. Help from any source seemed impossible. He tried your August Flower and the effect upon him was magical. It restored him to perfect health to the great astonishment of his family and friends." John Quibell, Holt, Ont.

A boy 14 years old who lives near Waycross, Ga., is said to greatly resemble an alligator. Scales of a delicate texture can be seen all over his body. He has a flat head, a long, wide mouth and eyes like an alligator. His legs and arms are flat and crooked at the joints; he can neither talk nor walk, but bellows and crawls like a reptile.

There is now on exhibition in Philadelphia a gigantic tarpon and a splendid specimen of the silver king about six feet in length and weighing 125 pounds. The fish jumped clear out of the water six different times and took an hour and twenty-five minutes to bring him to gaff.

Some idea may be formed of what it costs to indulge in the inexpressible luxury of a large standing army, when it is stated that Germany since the Franco-Prussian war has spent more than $1,250,000,000 on her army and navy. These are figures which almost take one's breath away, but they are correct notwithstanding.

No actor who is imbued with the superstitions of his profession will give yellow roses to a friend, nor will he accept them himself, as he fancies the flowers are harbingers of misfortune, jealousy and loss of friendship. Some managers will allow no natural flowers whatever to be used by way of "properties" upon the stage, but that is carrying the matter further than is usually considered essential.—Chicago Post.
