From the number of trips the officials' car makes up this line of late it is evident something is going to be done at the west end.

The reports show that in the seven surplus corn states the decrease compared to last year is 12,972,571 acres. From that it is safe to infer that there will not be any great surplus this year.

Prof. C. E. Holmes, formerly of this place, has been elected professor of Greek in an academy at Lincoln. He is a young man of ability and his friends are glad to know that he is climbing the ladder of fame.

Nice samples of the growing crops are being brought to this office and we want our friends to keep right on bringing. We want them here so that when people come from the east we can show them what is produced here.

A communication was sent to Lincoln in regard to a statement made by Prof. Leach before the institute which put that gentleman in a false light. The communication was published in the State Journal. A statement signed by the county superintendent and thirteen of the teachers was sent down correcting the first statement, and setting Prof. Leach right and that was published in the State Journal of last Sunday.

In another column appears a call by H. W. MacLachlan, secretary of the county agricultural society, for a meeting of the members of the society and all others interested to take steps for exhibits at the county, state and world's fair. This is a matter of importance to all. For three years exhibits have been made at the state fair under had circumstances and now with an era of prosperity shining on the county an exhibit can be made that will bring about practical results. A large number should be in attendance at the meeting next Wednesday.

Among the outing party from Lincoln was Prof. Woods, and he stopped off at points along the Elkhorn to make up a crop report and did not arrive here until the Saturday following the arrival of the rest of the party and left for camp with James Nolan about 6 o'clock of the same evening and after spending the night with Mr. Nolan, walked a couple of miles to the camp on Sunday morning. On arriving there he found that Prof. Bruner and J. B. White had left camp the evening before and walked to Harrison, a distance of 16 miles, in answer to a note, purporting to be from him stating that he was sick at Harrison and asking that some of them come and take care of him. The note was signed "F. M. Woods" which are the initials of his father. The note and signature was a forgery, some one having seen the initials on a grip which Prof. Woods brought with him, had thought to be smart and play a joke on the party, and had written the note and sent it to the camp. Whoever wrote the note had the satisfaction of knowing that he caused two of the gentlemen to tramp to town and of causing the rest of the party to spend a night of uneasiness, and by this time he quite likely knows that the people of the town and community very severely condemn and such silly, hair-brained, contemptible work. The party from Lincoln are spending a good many dollars with our merchants and others and if they have a pleasant time other parties will likely come here and it will prove a source of pleasure and profit to our people and all who are possessed of any degree of common sense and courtesy would seem to do such an act.

What It Shows.

The institute which closed last week has a record that is interesting in many ways, and as there is no better index to a community than the condition its schools and educators it may be of interest to note some of them.

The enrollment this year exceeded that of any previous year in the history of the county, which indicates a growth in the schools, and as a number of those in attendance who did good work are the product of the district schools of the county the fact is apparent that the schools of Sioux county are, as rule, well conducted.

The visit of State Superintendent Goudy, was another new feature in the institute work of Sioux county and the pleasant, earnest, business-like and scholarly address by that gentleman pleased, instructed and encouraged the teachers, and made them warm friends of the head of the educational interests of the state.

The lecture of Prof. Frank L. Ferguson, of the Chadron Academy was of a character which awakened new thoughts and opened new fields of labor for the educators of the county and there is no question but good results will follow.

The teachers showed a more lively interest in their work than prevailed at any previous institute, and Prof. Leach informed us that the examination papers showed a higher per cent. to prevail among the applicants, and an increased number of first and second grade certificates were earned, which goes to show that the schools of Sioux county will be better taught in future than they have been in the past.

It was noticeable in the work of Prof. Leach that he keeps right up with the general progress of school work in all its departments and he is fully abreast of the times. This is the third year he has been here as an instructor and a large majority of the teachers asked that he be secured next year, which is a compliment to him and his methods. State Superintendent Goudy also stated that he found that good work was being done and coming in upon them at an unexpected time gave him an excellent opportunity to judge.

With the better qualifications possessed by the teachers and the general prosperity of the people throughout the county, provision should be made by the county districts to pay wages which will warrant teachers in properly preparing themselves for their work.

Moore & Scott, the well-makers, have a card in this issue.

Parties are making arrangements to build a grain house on the track and be ready to buy the wheat as soon as it is ready for market. Work is progressing on the new road so that by the time the crop is ready for market the road will be in shape. Whoever buys grain here should make it a point to give the highest price the market will admit. Last year wheat sold as high in Harrison as it did about 200 miles east of here and if the place gets a good name as a grain market it will draw people for a long distance in each direction.

Important Meeting.

There will be a meeting of the Agricultural Society at the court house in Harrison on Wednesday Aug. 31 at 2 p. m., for the purpose of arranging exhibits for the county, state and world's fair. All interested are invited to be present whether members of the society or not.
