Curiosities preserved by a historical society is a copy of an engraving of a proclamation, signed by one W. H. Pratt of Indiana, who was so very skillful in the use of the pen that he could produce a copy of the letters in producing a portrait of Abraham Lincoln in the center of the copy. In the lettering itself is made a portrait of Mr. Lincoln. There probably a large number of copies of this proclamation have been made, but copies of this nature are very rare. As a specimen of the art of calligraphy it is certainly very fine.

Toilet of a Cat.

Cats, large and small, make the most careful toilet of any class of animals, excepting some of the opossums. The lions and tigers wash themselves in exactly the same manner as the cat, wetting the dark India rubber like ball of the fore foot and the inner toe, and passing it over the face and behind the ears. The foot is thus at the same time a face sponge and brush, and the rough tongue counts the rest of the body. Hares also use their feet to wash their faces, and the hare's foot is so suitable for a brush that it is always used to apply the "paint" to the face for the stage.

$100 Reward, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of Testimonials. Address, F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, Etc.

An Original Method.

A half dozen prominent young women of Sault Ste Marie adopted a novel way recently of punishing Fred Clayton, a young man who had been scattering scandalous tales regarding them. Dressed in old clothes and armed with brushes and two buckets of bright red paint, they called at his home and inveigled him out. Four of the young women seized and dragged him a block down the street and held him while the other two vigorously plied the paintbrush. When they finally released him there was not a spot on his clothes, face or head that was not covered with a coat of fiery paint.

When Nature Needs Assistance.

Needs assistance it may be thought to render it promptly, but one should remember to use even the most perfect remedy only when needed. The best and most simple and gentle remedy is the Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co.

The Poor Savage.

About 22,000 people of the Kaffir race are settled in one of the divisions of Cape Colony, in Southern Africa. They have a finally cultivated tract of country there, and have made remarkable progress in civilization within a few years. They are of a peculiarly peaceable, law-abiding character, and have little use for the few policemen whom they keep. Mr. Gresswell, an African geographer who knows them well holds that they are of a higher type than the Malays, or the Maories, or the red Indians and believe that they will become very influential in southern and central Africa.

Not Very Encouraging.

Algy had spent a long evening with Miss Edith. At last he arose to go. Her handshake was not cordial enough to suit him; in fact, it was very limp and exhausted. He was disappointed, for he had expected a very different parting, but in a vein of pleasantry he said: "Oh, shake hands with a man, Miss Edith!" "I should be pleased to, Mr Brown" was her quiet rejoinder. Algy has not called since.

Student Dueling.

During the time between the examination and immatriculation in a German university, said Professor Schliens to a reporter of the Indianapolis News, "the young student is called a mule, because he is neither an ass nor a horse, but something between both. But when he is smart enough to enter one of the students' societies—o 'verbindungen'—he is called a fox—you would call it freshman—becomes later on a burned fox, which indicates that he has been in the fire; then a fellow, and gradually rises to the different honors in his 'crops' or club, as fox major, who educates the young freshman in the art of drinking, fencing major who drills the foxes in the use of their rapier and sword; and senator, or moss head, after he has been in the crops for half a century.

"Each fox chooses a fellow or a moss head, to whom he attaches with body and soul, for whom he goes on errands whose boots he blacks, whose debts he pays, whose correspondence he writes, for whom he learns and puts down the lectures; for whom, in short, he does everything short of stealing and murdering. The fellow, in his turn, protects the fox—or, as he is called, his body fox in quarrels of all sorts, accepts duels for him, makes his cause his own whenever the fox is too inexperienced to stand his own ground, and is like an elder brother to him. Friendships like that are to last a life time.

He has sold many a bottle of German Syrup on his personal recommendation. If you drop him a line he'll give you the full facts of the case direct, as he did us, and that Boschee's German Syrup brought him through nicely. It always will. It is a good medicine and thorough in its work.
