In speaking of the independent of lemocratic party we do not refer to the udividual members of those parties, out to the principles, policy and often o the leaders who shape the policy and sy down the principles of the parties. lome of the very best men in York ounty vote wrong, according to our pinion, and we most earnestly desire o convince them of the fact. Of course re may be wrong and they right but we re open to conviction, and if convinced hat the record of the democratic party s such as to inspire confidence in their uture course, and that they will do beter by the country, by the old soldiers nd by the people than any other party. re will vote the demogratic ticket. If re are convinced that the country "is n the verge of mora', financial and soial ruin." that men are everywhere obbed in broad (av light, that the great uses of people urs slaves and paupers, ad that free silver and the election of uch men as McKeighan, Edgerton, Jech and Van Wyck would save the stion from impending ruin, and that vas the only way to save it, we will vote he independent ticket. Let us reason ogether as neighbors and friends, with in earnest desire to save our country, to reserve our institutions, to command he respect of other countries, to proect man from crime, and make every itizen, who will help himself, prosperous and happy.

Doza anyone believe that we would e more prosperous without banks, verchants and other business men than se now are? Would farming pay beter if everyone were driven to farming? is not the minister, the doctor, the lawver, the blackem th, the carpenter. the minter, the undertaker, or the tombstone artist as necessary to society as iny one else? When you want to borrow money, the money loaner is the sandiest man in the world; when you want to buy a draft or deposit your money, the banker is the very man you want; when you want a tooth pulled no one suits you so well as the dentist; when you need a shave the barber is inlispensible; when your horse is sick you are most happy when you find the vetrinary; when your tes-kettle lesks you thank the Lord that there are tinnors. If all these men were farmers eggs would be a drug on the market at a cent a dozen, potatose would rot in the cellar, if you had more oats than you could use yourself they would be worth no more than the straw they grew on. Nature and the law of supply and demand have adjusted the business world and each man fits in his little niche like a duck's foot in the mud. All are necessary, all have a right to live and to profit according to their skill and industry.

THEY want free trade to make things cheap, and piles of money to make things dear. First they want low prices and then they want high prices. The fact is they want something for nothing and

PITTSBURG, Pa., Aug. 4 .- The inquest as to the killing of the Pinkerton detectives and a steel worker at the Home stead riot July 6, was continued at the office of Coroner McDowell, and after a score of witnesses had been examined another adjournment was urdered Since the arrest of C. W. Mansfield, who testified to seeing the workmen shoot at the Pinkertons in their barges, the witnesses subprenasi have grown weary. and while all admit seeing or hearing shooting, none will swear who the guilty parties are. A number of Homestesu physicians and the undertakers who had charge of the remains of Morris and Si las Wain, were called, but told nothing important. Eimer Beale was the last witness, and although guarded in what he said, gave some important testimony. He stated that he was aroused on the morning of July 6 by the blowing of a whistle and heard shooting. Afterward he went to the river bank, with about 500 others, and heard more firing. Some one commanded the men to stop shoot ing, and it ceased for awhile. Shorth afterward, he said, about twenty armed men, in blue coats, came out of the barges and stood at the boat. One adthat they would land in tifteen minutes Some one on the bank cursed the blue coats and told them not to come ashore

Then the leader of the men on the boat turned by the milmen. Beale further give his memorial to the press. stated that at 9 s. m. the Pinkertons be gan picking off people who stood on the bank, and he became frightened and

Will Renew his Attack.

BERLIN, Aug. 8.-Prince Bismark's studied avoidance of any open reference to the government's policy in the brief speech he delivered upon his arrival resteries is a source of great relief in he official mind, which has been titled with forebodings that the pince would renew his attacks. Since his notable peech at Jena he has been made to fee fficial recontinent in various petty vays. Different railway stations in Prumin, when the prince was expected o pass, were virtually closed to the pubic. At Halle, where he had to alight to thange trains, the railway officiate reused to admit any one to the platform and asked the prince to leave his car and stay in the waiting room until the rain was ready to proceed. Similar salation was attempted here, but the fficials did not fare to face public wrath in further acts of insolence toward the exchancellor. The ovation y admirers became warmer owing to public indignation over his bad treatpent.

It has transpired that the government ried to influence the grand duke of Saxe-Weimar to order the municipal uthorities of Jens and the chiefs of the iniversity to refuse the prince a public eception. Prof. Haeckel, however, peronally saw the grand duke. The Naional Zeitung and other national liber l organs rightly boast of a revival of of Prince Bismarck's influence and pro laim him to still be the greatest ruling cereonality in Germany, even though he s never again invested in office.

Herr Herrfurnh, Prussian minister of he interior, delays his formal resignaion until the return of Emperor Wil iam, but his withdrawal is a practical act. Herr Helm, president of the imperial board of railways, also intends to esign. This rupture in the ministry is lue to a majority of the members of the sabinet supporting Miquel's financial eforms. Miquel proposes to relinquish taration by the state of real estate and nines, permitting communes to levy such taxes for their administrative expenses. He would meet the shortage on the budget resulting from the loss of taxes on real estate by an increase of the income tax and levy ing a tax on funded property.

In his opening remarks the coroner reviewed for what purpose the jury had been elected and sworn, and recited what his duty coosists of when called to s ton sudden deaths. The coroner next outlined to the jury the information to be contained in its findings. In connection with this he said:

"No disagreement between any perons will justify the use of fire arms or felonous assault, or the killing of any person. At 4:10 the verdict was rendered. The return in the cases of seven strikers who were killed reads almost alike in each one. That on the death of Silas Wain states that he came to his death while in the company of others in uslawful assembly upon the property of Carnegie. Phipps & Co.'s steel works to prevent the landing of two model barges loaded with Pinkerton guards to protect said property, he being struck by a missile rom a cannon which had been taken ferent states. by said unlawful assembly to the Pitts burg side of the Monongabela river and discharged by them striking and instantly killing the said Silas Wain, and we recommend the said unlawful assembly be certified to the September session of the grand jury. In the cases of three Pinkerton mer similar returns were made in each. That of J. Connors states that it was caused from shock and exhaustion, due to a shot by a ball from an unlawful assemblage, and "That said shooting was done by a party or parties unknown. with felonous intent and we recommend that said unlawful assemblage be certified to the September Sessions of the grand jury."

No attempt was male by the jury in any of the ten cases to designate the persons by whom the fatal shots were ired, fugher than to declare that there was an unlawful assemblage on the Carnegie property which led to a battle.

Waiting For a Funeral to Pass.

The passengers on one of the traction cable cars fumed the other day when the gripman stopped the car to wait for the passing of a funeral. It took ten minutes for the last carriage to roll by, for it was an unusually long procession As they slowly rolled best, two of those in the car gave vent to feelings in some such manner as this: "Did you ever see such feolisiness?" "No, not foolish-ness, bit superstition!" Do you think so?" "Behaw, cant you see by that gripman's face that he is superstitious? What else can you expect from him?" At this point the consinctor broke in. "It's not superstition; it's the law."-Philadelphin Press.

There will be at least 350 delegates in he grand encampment. The encampm sat, however, will attract little public stention. It is the festivities accom panying it, and which have already be run, which are calling more than 100,-00 knights and others to rush to Danver. This immense throng began coming in this morning. Today was the earliest that persons availing themselves of the reduced rates on the railreads could reach Denver. Tomorrow the first trains from Chicago and Missouri river points will come in. The crowds at the union depct this morning was something wonderful. The arrival of the official train, the first special to reach Denver, attracted the first congregation of Denverites at 6.30 in the morning. They were anxious to see the kingliest knight of this vast and ancient army. They were gratified. Although the train stopped bat a short time, only an hour, Grand Master Gobin, Grand Prelate Leighton Coleman, and all the members of their distinguished escort. St. John's commandery of Philadephia, left their trian and took a hasty view of the city. The grand master and escort were not officially recognized. Sonled in His Blood.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 8.-Lying dead on his bed which was soaked with his own blood, B. H. Billings, an ex-alderman and prominent citizen of Minneapolis, was found by his landlady last night. In his band was clasped a large knife and on his body was found no lets than fourteen stab wounds which had been inflicted by it. At first it was thought to be a case of suicide, but later investigation makes it appear like murder. An autopsy reveals the fact that four of the stab wounds penetrated the heart while one severed the windpipe and several physicians say it would have been impossible for the man to inflict more than one of these wounds on his own person. It is also developed that he carried several large diamonds, a costly gold watch and several hundred dollars on his person, but no trace of these for his berson, out no trace of these can now be found. No cause is known for his aucide, as he had been in excel-lent spirits and had an interesting and happy family in the northwest.
