English Ignorance of America.
"Did you find out the nationality of the stranger who joined our party yesterday?" asked one traveler of another in Egypt.
"Yes; I discovered he was an Englishman."
"How did you discover it?"
"I asked him if he knew what part of the United States Kansas was in and he said it was in Buffalo. Nobody but an Englishman could be so ignorant of the geography of the United States."—New York Press.

The True Laxative Principle
Of the plants used in manufacturing the pleasant remedy, Syrup of Figs, has a permanently beneficial effect on the human system, while the cheap vegetable extracts and mineral solutions, usually sold as medicines, are permanently injurious. Being well-informed, you will use the true remedy only. Manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co.

A Dangerous Question.
Little Girl—How old are you?
Miss Antique—I—er how old do I look?
Little Girl (after reflection)—'Bout a hundred.—Good News.

For allaying Hoarseness and Irritation of the Throat, it is daily proved that "Brown's Bronchial Tablets" are a mild remedy, yet very efficacious.

Utilizing Slag.
The quantity of heat wasted by slag has suggested projects for utilizing it in raising steam, but nothing practical has been obtained until recently. At a mine in New South Wales the molten slag is run into the bottoms of iron chambers that can withstand internal steam pressure, and jets of water are forced on the slag. In a short time the chambers are filled with steam that can be utilized in other parts of the works.

A Gift of Slaves.
A short time ago the Kaid's gave the sultan of Morocco and his son a present of 200 male and female slaves to celebrate the event of the marriage of the heir to the Moorish throne.

A New York Dog Official.
The New York gas works board of directors recently appointed a dog as assistant superintendent of its works and a truly efficient officer he is. His name is Beauty and he made his appearance at the works some months ago, refusing to go away on any conditions. He has a curious habit, besides catching all the rats and mice about the building, of compelling a stranger to give up his portable property before departing.

The Only One Ever Printed. Can You Find the Word?
There is a three-inch display advertisement in this paper, this week, which has no two words the same in it. The same is true of each new one appearing each week, from Dr. Harter's Medicine Co. This house places a "treasure" on everything they make and publishes a list of the names of the words. Look for it, and then the name of the word and they will return you BOOK, BEAUTIFUL LITHOGRAPHIES or SAMPLES FREE.

Watercress.
The watercress is a plant containing medicinal qualities. A curious characteristic of it is that, if grown in a ferruginous stream, it absorbs into itself five times the amount of iron that any other plant does. For all anemic constitutions it is therefore specially of value. But it also contains proportions of garlic and sulphur, of iodine and phosphates, and is a blood purifier, while abroad it is thought a most wholesome condiment with meat roast or grilled. The cultivated plant is rather more easy of digestion than the wild one.

Shaving Wins Love.

"If a man wants to win and retain a woman's love," remarked a pretty girl "I know of no surer means than to shave every day. I know that sounds dreadfully material, but it is just the attention to such little matters that makes him either delightfully lovable or altogether unbearable. A woman doesn't admire a man with a two-day-growth of stubby beard on his face. One cannot be sentimental over a countenance marked by dirty patches here and there, and if one is married and obliged to kiss such an object just think how red he will make one's chin with such a grater-like adornment. No, indeed, give me the man who shaves regularly," enthusiastically cried this pretty preacher, while a soured-face creature in the corner murmured that "Such familiarity with so sacred a topic was simply disgusting." Now whether she meant the kissing or the shaving the listener was unable to discover.—Philadelphia Times.

Hanged, But Lives.
"I was hanged for a horse-thief once," said F. H. Stephens, a contractor hailing from the sunflower state to a Globe Democrat man. "It was just after the war. Stock thieves were pretty thick, and when caught were not allowed to waste much time repeating their sins. I had just moved into the state from Michigan. I bought a horse, a regular old plow plug, from a youngster who appeared to be all right, and the next day mounted him and started to Fort Scott to transact some business. I had ridden, perhaps, a dozen miles when I was overhauled by a posse of armed men who were hunting stock thieves. The horse I was riding had been stolen from a member of the party, and I was swung up to a limb of a tree by the roadside without being given a chance to explain. There was a sharp, momentary pain, choking sensation, succeeded by one that I can only compare to the delightful intoxication of the opium smoker, and then unconsciousness. I would like to experience that sensation again, but do not care to undergo the necessary preliminaries. The party concluded that I might have confederates and let me down, hoping that I would peach.

"The coming back to life was a good deal more painful than taking leave of it. When I got so I could talk I told my story, but it was not believed, and they were about to swing me up again, when a neighbor, returning from Fort Scott, chanced along and convinced them that they had the wrong man."

How It Feels to Fall a Mile.
Delos E. Goldsmith, the only survivor of those who ascended in the ill-fated balloon at Boston on the Fourth of July is twenty-eight years old, fond of athletics, and is an expert yachtsman and swimmer. He went up as a newspaper reporter, intending to write up his sensations. He told the story of the trip as he lay on a cot in the hospital after the terrible fall of over a mile, as he is still suffering from the nervous shock. He said:
"When the balloon rose in the air the sun was declining and the scene from the car was beautiful. We all anticipated an enjoyable trip. At first it seemed as if the balloon would take a westerly course, but a strong wind from the west suddenly arose and swept it toward South Boston. It was soon evident that we were heading for the harbor. It was then that Professor Rogers said that he would land on Thompson's island. To fail this we knew meant to be carried to sea. The professor seemed to realize this and became a trifle nervous.

He pulled the escape-valve cord, but it refused to work. It now became a question of life and death. Again and again he pulled. For a moment the huge mass shook and quivered. Soon our position became uncomfortable because of the odor of the gas. To mitigate this the hold on the cord was relaxed. To our amazement the valve refused to close. Suddenly a noise overhead caused us to look up. There was a small rent in the balloon which, as the gas escaped, increased to a yard. At first slowly, then like an arrow the balloon descended.

In this awful descent it occurred to me that two carrier pigeons were in the bottom of the car. With one wrench I pulled the cover from the cage and they were free. A moment later we struck the water. It seemed as if I went ten feet below the surface. I knew we would have to swim, and before we struck the water I threw my coat away. I had not time to remove my shoes, but while in the water I lay on my back and removed them. There I became tangled up in the netting. When we came up I wriggled free and jumped out of the basket. The land seemed far away, though I am told it was only 500 yards. All this time I heard Professor Rogers behind me and supposed, he, too, was swimming for the shore. I felt sick at the stomach as I swam, from the effects of breathing the gas, and if I had not been picked up quick I would have given out.

Whether Professor Rogers died from the effects of the gas or from his fall I don't know. He was near me all this time until he sank in my wake."

A Modern Editor.
The avalanche is left on my hands to run or dispose of, as I may think best. * * * I am left with an elephant (to me) to manage. I know nothing about the business whatever. * * * To my brother editors (I think that is the term used by the craft) I would most respectfully make my bow and simply say—don't make fun of me, for I feel the magnitude and profundity of my position. It is a great thing to be an editor and see your thoughts and words in print. I know it must be for I have seen numbers of boys and young men in the business that seemed to be puffed up with their importance. I trust the "puffing up" will not attack me. * * * I am puffed enough already.—Loup City Avalanche.

A Wonderful Son.—Fussy Old Gentleman.—"Have you any children?"
"Yes, sir; a son." "Ah! Does he smoke?" "No sir; he has never touched a cigarette." "Does he frequent the clubs?" "He has never put his foot in one." "Does he come home late?" "He goes to bed directly after dinner." "A model young man, madam. How old is he?" "Just two months."—As You Like It.

We always admire a dentist for one thing at least. He isn't afraid to say a thing right to your teeth.—Baltimore American.

Not to be Taken Literally.

"Is it your opinion," said the theological professor, "that the portion of the parable which represents the prodigal son as feeding among swine is to be taken literally?"
"Perhaps not," the thoughtful young man replied: "maybe it is a reference to the meals he ate at a railway lunch counter."—Washington Star.

Never Saw One.
Jeweler—Really, miss I've shown you the best rings in our stock. There are diamonds, and rubies and—
Miss Green—Oh, but everybody wears those. I would like to see a weikun ring.
Jeweler—Well, I'll send my office boy out and see if he can make one.—N. Y. Herald.

German Syrup
Just a bad cold, and a hacking cough. We all suffer that way sometimes. How to get rid of them is the study. Listen—"I am a Ranchman and Stock Raiser. My life is rough and exposed. I meet all weather in the Colorado mountains. I sometimes take colds. Often they are severe. I have used German Syrup five years for these. A few doses will cure them at any stage. The last one I had was stopped in 24 hours. It is infallible." James A. Lee, Jefferson, Col.
