The red show-bills I mail you will show the saving effected by the people in using this bread, and these can be seen in many of the baker's windows in Berlin. You will notice the great increase in importation of our corn from the letter of the U. S. Consul at Rotterdam; the other letters and circulars will speak for themselves. Considerable opposition has come from the German Millers' Association, and many false charges have been made against it as human food, all of which have been successfully refuted. My firm opinion is that, when the German people know the full value of Indian corn as human food, they wili consume as much as Americans do in proportion to the number of inhabitants. The Government is now putting in a corn-milling plant in their large mill at Madgeburg, and the Government report on the value of corn as food will soon be published, which is the result of a thorough investigation and practical testing of bread-making at the Garrison bakery in this city, and which, I am informed by the commission, will be highly favorable."
