BRED BY LAUGHTER.

Joseph Jefferson's Funny Experiences in London.

Jefferson relates in the Century following concerning a London experience of his: "My approaching experience was the important dramatic moment of my life. I had been five years in America and was on my way home, but I was satisfied that if this new version of 'El Van Winkle' succeeded in my way was quite clear when I reached the United States.

Sunday evening, being alone in my new wig and beard, the moment of my heart, and which I was to be the last act. I could not resist them for the twentieth time, so I got in front of the glass adjusted them to my perfect satisfaction. I soon became enthused and laughing and posing in front of the glass. In about twenty minutes there was a knock at the door.

"Who's there?" said I.

"Me, if you please," said the generated voice of the chamber-

"May I come in?"

"I'm afraid not," I replied; for I had no room in my present makeshift.

"There's any thing wrong in the room?" said she.

"Nothing at all. Go away," I replied.

"Tell sir," she continued, "there's a man at the door, and he says as you're a crazy old man in your cabinets of his arms about and is awful, and there's a crowd across the street a-blockin' up towards the window, and to see if I found that I had forgotten down the curtain, and, as it was taking in my first sight. I was unconsciously acting with the full up, to an astonished audience and not paid for their admission, of my wig and beard a shout up. Quickly pulling down the curtains, I threw myself in a chair, over-with mortification at the occurrence.

In a few minutes the comical picture presented itself, and I have laughed for an hour. I had suffering from an attack of nervousness, consequent upon the experiment of the past week, and I firmly believed that this continuous fit of laughing had driven me mad.

HYPNOTIZING A HEN.

BISHOP'S INTERESTING EXPERIMENT
WITH A FOWL.

In the last month I have made interesting experiment with a local correspondent of the London Times. Some choice eggs being sent hatching purposes, having no that time broody and no incu-pitated to set one of my these eggs and keep her there of mesmeric power. The eggs are not fresh when I received them to keep them with the uncertainty of a hen becoming broody have been fatal to their hatching.
We went against nature and sat upon these eggs; she was in full the time, and remained so out the three weeks that she was laying, according to her out of three days. Those who poultry will appreciate that will do this, having become naturally, although for the first day after being set on eggs I have lay once, or even twice.
The eggs I set upon, I was now and withdraw the eggs she had.

At day I placed her on the eggs half an hour to bring her into condition, but each successive having roused her to drink I was able to soothe her to slumber in much less time.
We were days, for which I can assure, when I had to go to her once in a day, she being in a excited state, trying to get off the result has been, much to astonishment, that four out of those eggs have hatched, and my little chickens. At can still influence their mother maternal duties, but in the day she takes no notice of them.
