Henry Malone, of Platte Center, makes known to the press that from ten acres of sugar beets he cleared $250. His gross receipts were $632.

It is reported that President Cleveland is in favor of putting army officers in charge of Indian affairs in order to remove the Indian bureau from politics.

The Rushville Standard will go back to the weekly publication the first of next month. It will have been a semi-weekly for a year, but the editor says it does not pay.

The government report on the condition of winter wheat throughout the United States on April 1st shows the average to be 77.4. In Kansas large areas are reported as total failures on account of drought.

One of the Homestead mines at Deadwood is on fire and it is out of the question to flood it and a large body of earth is liable to cave in. The land which is likely to sink is thickly populated and great damage is certain to result.

Five hundred iron workers in the Union Pacific shops at Omaha went out on a strike at noon on Monday. The iron workers demanded that the company sign articles of agreement which the officials thought to be unjust and so they declined to sign and the strike was the result.

The Defender, a new monthly published in the interest of the C. A. R., S. V., and W. R. C., comes to hand. It is published at Lincoln and J. C. Seares is in command. The number of people belonging to the orders it represents ought to make the paper a winner from the start.

The legislature of Minnesota has stirred up a nest of corruption in the matter of swamp and timber lands which have been disposed of contrary to law, thus defrauding the state and state institutions out of vast sums of money. Public land appears to be considered a legitimate prey by most people.

The sugar company at Grand Island has fixed the price to be paid for beets this season at $5 per ton for beets that contain 12 per cent or more of sugar. The growers can now figure with more certainty on what they will realize on their crop. If the legislature had provided a bounty to be paid to the grower, it would have greatly helped to develop what will, without doubt, be the industry of the most importance in northwest Nebraska.

On last Wednesday Governor Crouse placed his official signature to house roll No. 33, and in three months it will become a law. During that time the railroads will have to change their schedule of rates to conform to the new order. Under the circumstances the governor could not have been expected to do otherwise. The people of the state have become stonily of the opinion that the railroads were robbing them and were getting rich too fast, and they would take no one's word to the contrary. Now that a law has been made the action of the railroad companies will settle the question as to the position taken by those who have been charging that they have been robbed. If that claim was false the new law will cripple the railroads and check the progress of the state.

The Chadron Signal takes THE JOURNAL to task for its position in regard to the railroad bill and calls attention to the fact that it fixes the maximum and not the minimum rate. That is very true, but THE JOURNAL believes it is human nature to "play even" whenever possible, and while a railroad company is a soulless corporation its course is directed by a set of men who are intensely human. The rates now charged are supposed to be based on business principles. If a law is made which compels the railroads to do certain business for less than a fair rate, and leaves a loophole so that a large profit may be made on certain other business, the company would display a great lack of human instinct if it did not take advantage of the chance. If railroads, like private individuals, could do such business as, under the law, they could do at a profit and let the other business alone, it would put matters in a different light, but with decision after decision of the courts to the effect that railroads are common carriers, it is impossible for them to avoid handling all business, and it is not fair or just to attempt to make any company or person do business for less than a reasonable compensation. THE JOURNAL believes that the new law is a mistake and that it will be repealed, but if, after trial, it has been mistaken it will acknowledge its error.

The cost of raising a ton of sugar beets at the state experimental station is shown to be $1 on an average. With a yield of 12 tons, which is a low yield, per acre and the grower getting $5 a ton at the factories there is no reason why the growing of beets should not be a profitable one to the farmers as soon as factories can be secured within reach.

An attack was made by some pet papers of Congressman Bryan on W. E. Annin, the Washington correspondent of the Lincoln Journal, and that gentleman proceeds to answer it through the columns of that paper. He shows quite clearly that the gentleman with a mouth who represents the first district of Nebraska has simply imitated the flight of a meteor. He sailed through the sky of notoriety in a single speech in which he reached his zenith, and ever since has been on the decline, and at the end of his present term he will sink low in view.

The first of last week will long be remembered by the people of a good many places. Akron, Iowa, Willis, Everest and Powhattan, Kas., and a number of towns in Missouri were almost totally destroyed by cyclones and many people killed. In Nebraska the only places damaged were Page, Inman and Chambers, in eastern Holt county. At those places a number of buildings were destroyed and several people injured and killed. Northwest Nebraska is to be congratulated on the fact that it is out of the cyclone belt and the settlers need have no fear on that score.

It is claimed by the Lincoln Journal that direct evidence has been obtained to prove that Convict Powell, whose death at the penitentiary some months ago led much discussion and an investigation by a committee of the legislature, was murdered by those in charge of the institution. The case should be taken in hand by a grand jury, and if those who had charge of the convicts brought about Powell's death, they should be punished. The fact that a man has been convicted of a crime and sent to the penitentiary should not be taken by his keepers as giving them license to mistreat or murder him. If the reports are true—men of those who have charge of the men in striped suits would be called on to exchange places with them if strict justice were meted out.

The Kearney Hub refers to another point of difference just discovered between Governor Crouse and Would-be Governor Van Wyck. The latter drew two salaries during the war and Crouse has just vetoed the item in the appropriation bill which provides for paying his house rent, contrary to the statutes made and provided. The populists didn't catch the governor, and so he did not undo the good work he performed when in the joint debate he punctured the "old man's" record.—Fountain Tribune.

Just the same difference as the above illustrates is found to prevail among the leaders of the republican and populist parties. The former are what they are from principle and the latter are what they are for what there is in it.

The last issue of the Independent contained a lot of hogwash about the editor of THE JOURNAL in order to detract attention from the parties who worked the little trick in the late village election. With the editor of the Independent we have no quarrel, as it is well understood that when the prime movers in the village election deal pull the string he has to dance, whether he likes the music or not. The tactics used against the editor of THE JOURNAL are the same as have been resorted to by the opposition paper for almost four years and if the Independent can get any satisfaction out of it it is welcome to it. The fact that no denial is made of the statements made by THE JOURNAL and the actions of some who managed the cute deal in the village election indicate that the nail was struck pretty squarely on the head, and in addition THE JOURNAL is informed that the plotters were overheard fixing up the plan. In regard to the liquor question THE JOURNAL hopes to see it controlled according to law. When the license fee and bond is put up let the license be granted and then let the board see that the screens and gambling are removed, that the saloon is closed at the proper time at night, and that it remain closed on Sundays, election days and such times as provided by law, and in return let the man who pays $500 for the privilege of selling liquor be protected in his trade from any who do not pay for the right. If a druggist's permit is desired let the applicant comply with the law and then let a record be kept of the liquor sold and to whom, as the law provides.

Impeachment Comes High.
Lincoln Call.
The legislative appropriation to meet the expenses of trying the state officers was passed as $15,000. When it reached the governor it was in the bill $25,000, and the bill was so signed. Whether the latter amount can be used is the question. In the meantime there will be no lack of effort to use it. The three attorneys have already put in the modest claim of $5,000 each for thirty days prosecuting, and the committee of the legislature that has the work in charge are not in it for their health and are not expecting to live in luxury in Lincoln and pay their own freight. Whether the amount appropriated be found to be $15,000 or $25,000 the result will be the same. It will all vanish and be as nothing. In the meantime there is evidence that the indictments drawn are faulty. That speculations at the asylum are charged against some of the indicted officials when they had not yet taken office at the time the wrongs were committed. This will materially lessen the chances to convict and none may be surprised to find no convictions after all is over.
